I DANCED, BUT NOT IN MY HEART, SAYS MRS. DE SAULLES

Wrote Gay Letters and Flattered Her Husband to Keep Him, She Testifies.

STROVE TO HIDE DISTRESS

State Reads Letters to Prove She Was Not Low Spirited When De Saulles Was Away.

CROSS-EXAMINATION ENDS

Story of $20,000 Ring for Mme. Errazuriz Brought Out—Nurses Take the Stand.

Mrs. Blanca De Saulles underwent an exhaustive cross-examination yesterday at the hands of District Attorney Charles R. Weeks. She was confronted with letters she had written which apparently contradicted her direct story on the witness stand, because the letters were bright, cheerful, and gossipy, although written at times when she said her heart was broken by the treatment she had received at the hands of her husband. She was apparently trapped again and again by gay letters written when she said she was suffering most, but she explained that they were written to seem cheerful, to please her husband, and to flatter him in order to hold him.

The mentality of the young woman appeared to be roused by the questions of the prosecutor. She had answered her own counsel almost automatically, but she used her wits to fashion answers to questions from a hostile source. When her attention was called to a letter written in 1914 to De Saulles, in which she said she had danced her "heels off," and was asked how she reconciled it with the statement that she was depressed and suffering at that time, she answered: "We don't dance with our hearts."

At another time, when she was questioned regarding the cheerful tone of letters to her husband, though she said she had been pained by his affronts or by discovering his mode of life, she said: "I meant the letters to show that I was anything but unhappy."

"Whether you were unhappy or not?" asked Justice Manning.

"Yes," she replied.

Made Use of Woman's Wiles.

Some of the letters introduced yesterday and some of the replies she made on the witness stand threw light on the social and mental attitude of the young woman, which had not appeared before. Her character as a devoted wife and mother did not suffer, but it was shown that she was thoroughly human. Her gay letters, read yesterday, showed her prompt enough to sneer at those she considered below her. One paragraph in a letter described how she had flattered and despised a customs official who met her at the pier on the arrival of the Lusitania, which brought her back to this country from England in December, 1914. This official accompanied Dudley Field Malone, then Collector of the Port, who met her at the dock. Of this subordinate official, she wrote:

"He said, 'It isn't always we have such a passenger as you, and although we all know who Mrs. De Saulles is, we have not the honor of knowing you.' So I told him that he was perfectly splendid. It was bitterly cold and we had to wait some time for my case of silver to come out of the hold. So I said it was a shame he had to wait so much, and he answered that he would not mind waiting every day of his life, if he were to see me. So I said I would not mind arriving every day, if I could see him. The result was that everything was expedited—no questions asked. I shook hands when I said good-bye. I told him he must come to see us, &c., &c., &c. Of course he was in the seventh heaven of delight. You know better than any one what saying that means to people of that class. It was all very amusing and very useful."

Later in her examination, District Attorney Weeks suddenly asked:

"This is not the first time you have been in a courtroom, is it?"

She replied that it was not, and he asked her if she had ever attended the Carman trial.

"Yes," she said, "one afternoon I drove Mrs. Degener over to the trial." This was Mrs. Caroline Degener, a sister of De Saulles.

"Did you hear any of the proceedings?"

"Yes, I heard a black thing testify."

"Did you say you heard a black thing testify?" asked Justice Manning.

"Yes."

"What did you mean?"

"A nigger."

"Is that the way you refer to colored people in the country you come from?"

"We don't have any of them."

Turns to British Slang.

In her gayer letters Mrs. De Saulles frequently fell into the slang she had picked up while she was being educated in England, and many things were "beastly" or "rotten." In her letters to her husband she occasionally spoke in a manner that appeared disrespectful of her own mother, possibly because she knew that De Saulles had had a violent quarrel with his mother-in-law. In a letter written from London in June, 1914, when she was preparing to go to Uruguay, where her husband had been appointed Minister, she said:

"I got another beastly letter from my mother, so that I have given up trying to bridge the gulf. She is out of her mind. Shall tell you about it later."

Mme. Vergara-Errazwig, the girl's mother, did not seem to hear this when it was read, but later during the cross-examination she began to cry, her first display of emotion since the trial began. A little later she left the courtroom. In a letter written from London at about the same period, she told frankly of her love of luxury and of her high social ambitions. Later she reproached herself for spending money too extravagantly on dress. She wrote:

"Dinky, London is delightful, and you must get named Minister here just as soon as you've made money enough to live comfortably, (or in other words luxuriously.) It's nicer to be Minister here, because there's the court and all that which makes it very interesting and amusing."

Mrs. De Saulles spoke without emphasis and with no marked change of expression, but her eyes, which had been half closed throughout the trial, became wide and bright and her manner vivacious by contrast with her previous attitude. When she finally left the stand, her cheeks were flushed and she looked a little like the pictures taken before or shortly after her marriage.

Americans Killed Must Lie in France Until War Ends

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 27.—The Commissioners of Allegheny County today were informed by the War Department of the refusal of their request that the body of Thomas F. Enright, a private with the American forces in France, who was one of the three men killed in the Americans' first action, be sent to his home in Pittsburgh for burial.

The War Department announced that on recommendation of General Pershing no bodies of deceased officers and soldiers would be sent to this country until after the close of the war.

MURPHY CALLS ON JUDGE HYLAN

Tammany Leader and Mayor-Elect Hold a Long, Secret Conference.

PATRONAGE TALK DENIED

"General Topics" Only Discussed, Judge Hylan Announces.

For the first time since Tammany won its great victory on Election Day, Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, yesterday afternoon visited Mayor-elect John F. Hylan at the headquarters of the Business Men's League, 50 East Forty-second Street. Mr. Murphy and the Mayor-elect came up in the elevator and entered the room together. According to Judge Hylan, Mr. Murphy and he met in the elevator. According to the Hylan version the meeting was accidental so far as the Mayor-elect was concerned, although Mr. Murphy may have come there for the avowed purpose of seeing him. According to some other persons Mr. Murphy and the Mayor-elect entered the building together. With Mr. Murphy was John A. McCarthy, a contractor, who is Treasurer of the Democratic Fusion Committee. Mr. McCarthy did not sit in at the conference however.

In any event, the Tammany chieftain and Mayor-elect Hylan remained in secret conference for fully an hour and a half. When Mr. Murphy emerged he was happy and smiling. Judge Hylan, when he appeared in the ante-room where a score or more office-seekers had been waiting, seemed in a happy mood, too. Mr. Murphy did not have a great deal to say to the reporters who were awaiting him as he came from his meeting with the Mayor-elect.

"The man inside will do all the talking," said the Tammany chief, when the reporters asked him if he had anything to say.

"Does that mean that you are willing to leave it all to Judge Hylan?" asked one of the reporters.

"Yes, sure," said the Tammany leader as he entered an elevator.

Mr. Murphy had not been out of the building long when a telephone call came for one of the newspaper men. It was from Mr. Murphy. The Tammany leader, prompted possibly by fear that his allusion to Mayor-elect Hylan as "the man inside" might be regarded as disrespectful or informal, in the case of a man with much patronage to bestow, urged that "the Mayor" be substituted for the phrase used on the spur of the moment.

It was fully half an hour later when Judge Hylan emerged. Last week Judge Hylan, in an interview, denied that he had any appointment with Leader Murphy or "anybody else," but he added that he was at his headquarters every afternoon, that the door to his private room always was open, and that Mr. Murphy, John H. McCooey, Democratic leader of Kings, the Republican leaders, or anybody who had supported him or honestly opposed him and who had aid or suggestions to offer, would be made welcome.

"Mr. Murphy referred us to you as the man who was to do all the talking about your conference. What can you tell us?" the Mayor-elect was asked.

"There isn't much to tell," was his reply. "Mr. Murphy told me that he wanted to be of help to me and my administration in every way possible. He told me to call upon him for any help it was in his power to give. Of course, I want the help of everybody in what I am trying to do for the people of this city. That includes Democrats, Republicans, and the press."

"And the suffragists?" one of the reporters suggested.

"Yes," said the Judge, with a laugh, "and the ladies."

Talked on General Topics.

"Did Mr. Murphy make any recommendations regarding appointments?" the Mayor-elect was asked.

"No, no," said Judge Hylan. "We just talked on general topics."

"Did not Mr. Murphy manifest any curiosity as to the amount of patronage the organization is to receive?" he then was asked.

"No, no," said the Mayor-elect. "We just talked in a general way."

Judge Hylan was asked whether during the hour and a half that Leader Murphy remained in conference with him prospective budget cuts had been discussed. He answered this question in the negative, as he did another question as to whether the proposed municipal ownership program of the incoming administration had been taken up at the conference.

Before his conference with Judge Hylan, Mr. Murphy was interviewed at Tammany Hall, where he seemed in a very happy frame of mind. Many politicians were waiting to see him after his absence from the city of two weeks.

"Who are all these people around here—are they job hunters?" Mr. Murphy was asked. The Tammany leader smiled broadly.

"Not at all," he replied. "There isn't a man in the crowd that would take a job. They're all patriots."

"Then, don't you want a job for yourself?" asked one of the reporters.

"I've got one right here," said the Tammany Chief with a comprehensive

RUSSIAN LEADERS MEET TO OPPOSE THE BOLSHEVIKI

Milukoff and Tchernoff in Group That Plans to Organize New Government.

GATHER AT HEADQUARTERS

Meanwhile London Hears German Officers Have Reached Petrograd to Advise Lenine.

"WARNING" BY DUKHONIN

Vienna Says He Told Army We Would Stop Sending Supplies—Allies Likely to Act.

LONDON, Wednesday, Nov. 28.—A conference of Russian political leaders has assembled at army headquarters for the purpose of forming a Government representing all parties, according to a Petrograd dispatch to The Times.

The leaders have been joined by M. Tchernoff, M. Avksentieff, Professor Milukoff, and Generals Verkhovski, Ivanoff, and others.

Professor Paul H. Milukoff was Minister of Foreign Affairs in the first revolutionary Cabinet and is leader of the Constitutional Democratic Party. M. Tchernoff was Minister of Agriculture in the Kerensky Cabinets of July 24 and Aug. 7. M. Avksentieff was Minister of the Interior in the Kerensky Cabinet of Aug. 7. Both he and Tchernoff are Socialists. General Verkhovski was Minister of War in the recent Kerensky Cabinet and resigned before the recent Bolsheviki revolt. He favored using strong measures in the army. General Ivanoff was formerly commander on the Volhnian and Galician fronts.

German Officers Advising Lenine.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Information was received here today from Petrograd that a number of German staff officers have arrived there and are acting in an advisory capacity to Nikolai Lenine, the Bolshevist Premier.

A dispatch from Copenhagen today reads:

"General Dukhonin, the Russian Commander in Chief, has sent an order to the Russian Army pointing out that the Entente had protested to the Russian supreme command against any breach of the treaty of Sept. 5, 1915, (the treaty of London pledging the Entente Powers not to make separate peace,) and threatening that any breach from the Russian side, especially the calling of a separate truce, would be fraught with serious danger, according to the semi-official Austrian Correspondence Bureau, says a Vienna dispatch.

"The Russian supreme command has further announced, according to the same authority, that the United States had stopped the transportation of supplies to Russia until the situation cleared, and that should the Bolsheviki retain power and make peace with Germany this prohibition would be maintained."

All Government officials who decline to recognize the Leninite Government, according to a Petrograd dispatch to The Times, will be dismissed from office, as were the employes of the Ministry of Finance who declined to work for the Bolsheviki.

The Central Committee of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates announces its firm intention to crush the opposition in the Ministry of Finance and among bank officials and to undertake to control the State expenses itself.

Judson Warns Chief of Staff.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 27.—Lieut. Col. William V. Judson, Chief of the American Military Mission to Russia, has addressed to the Chief of the General Staff at Petrograd a declaration concerning the alleged embargo on shipments to Russia. He disclaims knowledge of such embargo, but asserts that such a measure would be the logical result of Russia's persistent efforts for an armistice and peace.

Reviewing the press statement about the embargo, Colonel Judson says:

"It seems only just to inform your Excellency that neither I nor the American Ambassador has received from America instructions or information regarding the alleged facts given above. Nevertheless, justice demands that I should inform your Excellency that the declarations of the press correctly express the point of view of the United

Austria and Germany Close the Last Swiss Frontiers

GENEVA, Nov. 27.—The Austrian and German frontiers were closed last night.

Both the French and Italian frontiers had already been closed for an indefinite period.

100 ITALIANS TAKEN IN ANARCHIST PLOT

Federal Agents in Northwest Charge a World-Wide Pro-Teuton Conspiracy.

PRESIDENT'S LIFE SOUGHT

200,000 in a Secret Society Alleged to Have Planned to Foment Uprisings.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 27.—More than 100 Italians, most of them miners and shipyard employes, said to belong to the Corcola Studi Sociali, an alleged anarchistic society, were arrested in Seattle, Portland, Spokane, Tacoma, and other Northwest cities by Federal agents in raids which ended today, according to announcement by H. M. White, Federal Immigration Commissioner.

The society is said to have a membership of 200,000 in the United States and is alleged to have plotted bloody disturbances in this country as part of the world-wide propaganda for Teutonic victory in the war. The ruining of the morale of the Italian armies also was planned.

According to Federal agents, the Italians plotted to help Germany in the war by fomenting revolution in Italy to overthrow King Victor Emmanuel. Federal officers in disguise, it was announced, attended some of the society's recent meetings, at which calls were issued for volunteers to cause disturbances in this country. It is alleged that some of the prisoners had plotted to kill President Wilson.

The roundup was carried through to a finish by thirty-five Secret Service and other Federal agents working quietly in the Northwest, particularly among the mines and shipyards of the Puget Sound country. The first arrests were made Saturday night when several meetings had been planned and others were being held in attics and basements known only to "faithful" members of the society, whose books show members from all parts of the Pacific Northwest.

Plot to Kill President.

It was two weeks ago that a plot to murder President Wilson was being hatched, where Secret Service men in disguise attended a meeting of the society.

The books and literature seized here and at other places, including Spokane, Portland, and Tacoma, show that the plotting has been going on for some months, and has been especially active since the Austro-German drive on the Italian front. The literature which has been sent broadcast from this city, the headquarters of the conspirators, asked for volunteers to carry out the plans to kill President Wilson and King Victor.

The Federal Immigration Inspector at Spokane, Wash., received word to arrest six Italians said to belong to an anarchist society, and today reported that he had arrested one at Walla Walla and another at Lind, and that four others would be arrested at or near Spokane.

Officials plan to gather all the prisoners together in one camp, where they probably will be interned for the duration of the war. Nineteen Italians arrested in the raid in Cleelum, Roslyn, and Easton, in Kittitas County, Washington, were brought here today in a special car and lodged in cells at the Federal Immigration Station. Fifteen armed Government agents accompanied the prisoners.

Incited Italians to Revolt.

Pamphlets entitled "Buttale il Fucile" were among the papers Federal agents said they seized at the society's headquarters here. According to the officers, the title, when translated, means "Throw down your arms." The propaganda, it was said, urged Italians everywhere to rise against their Governments and resist all military service. The officers said the literature was printed by the society's newspaper, Cronaca Sowersiva of Lynn, Mass.

Federal officials recently raided rooms in Weller street here, which are said to be the Pacific Coast headquarters of the society. Industrial Workers of the World posters, red flags, and pictures of notorious anarchists hung on the walls, they said.

In a glass case near the door, officers said, they found framed photographs of some of the Industrial Workers of the World killed in a riot at Everett, Wash., Nov. 5, 1916.

Berlin Says Americans Fought Desperately; Calls Prisoners 'Sturdy and Sportsmanlike'

BERLIN, Sunday, Nov. 25, (via London, Nov. 27.)—A report received from the western front, describing the American troops in action, says:

"Independent American units have been thrown into the trench line. The felt hat has given way to the English-fashioned steel helmet, and the whistling and bursting of the shells have become familiar sounds to American ears.

"For the first time since they have been participating as independent contingents the Americans have tasted the real earnestness of war, even though it was but a minor hand-to-hand scuffle. But this time the shells did not merely fly over their heads, but into the very trenches they had selected, and presently, with an infernal noise, these things which the young soldiers believed to be a firm protection began to quake and burst.

"And hard on the heels of this a firm attack by our onrushing Bavarian reserves forced the way into the American trenches, and musket shots and bursting hand grenades relieved the artillery fire.

"Our new opponents made a most determined defense, and desperate hand-to-hand fighting set in. Butts of guns, fists, and hand grenades were freely brought into play, and many men fell to the ground before the rest gave up resistance and surrendered. After a bare hour the German storming troops were back in their own trenches with booty and prisoners.

"There they stood before us—these young men from the land of liberty. They were sturdy and sportsmanlike in build. Good-natured smiles radiated from their blue eyes, and they were quite surprised that we did not propose to shoot them down, as they had been led in the French training camp to believe we would do.

"They know no reply to our query, 'Why does the United States carry on war against Germany?' The sinking of American ships by U-boats, which was the favorite pretext, sounds a trifle stale. One prisoner expressed the opinion that we had treated Belgium rather badly. Another asserted that it was Lafayette who brought America French aid in the war of independence, and because of this the United States would now stand by France."

GERMAN THREAT TO SEIZE DENMARK IF NORWAY LETS ALLIES GET A BASE; BRITISH RETAKE PART OF FONTAINE

BERLIN FEARS ANOTHER FOE

THREE MONARCHS TO MEET

Danish Belief Is That Norway's U-Boat Grievances Will Not Drive Her to War.

HOPES TO COMBAT EMBARGO

Germany's Plan Evidently to Frighten Northern Kingdoms Into Ignoring Our Demands.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 27.—Behind the meeting of the Scandinavian monarchs and Ministers at Christiania this week lies the fear, unfounded though it may be, of Norway's entry into the war and of the German threat that, in such a case, she would feel called upon to occupy Denmark as a countermeasure.

The Associated Press learns from a responsible source that the proceedings of the conference, which was arranged in consequence of an intimation from Germany that the growth of anti-German sentiment in Norway, particularly after the sinking of convoys in the North Sea by German cruisers, are being followed with concern by Germany, and that it is feared that Norway may be impelled, either by excited public opinion or pressure from the Allies, to enter the struggle at least to the point of granting a naval base to England and the United States, in which event Germany would hold it imperative to seize a corresponding base in Denmark.

Hurried to Berlin.

On the receipt of this information at Copenhagen word was hurriedly sent to King Gustaf of Sweden, and Denmark's most prominent citizen, President Andersen of the Danish East Asiatic Company, who is high in the confidence of Berlin, as well as London, was dispatched to Berlin to verify the report and, if possible, to change the German attitude.

Mr. Andersen conferred with Dr. van Kühlmann, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and the former has confirmed the report, adding that, in consequence of the Italian and Russian developments, the militarist and Pan German elements are again in the saddle in Germany and exerting influence against which the Foreign Office, with its more moderate views, has found it most difficult to contend.

King Gustaf came to Copenhagen and spent a day in conference with King Christian, President Anderson, and the Danish Ministers, the subject matter of the conferences being covered by a display of gala performances, an opera ballet, a ceremonial banquet, and the conventional interchange of speeches.

As a result of the conference a decision was reached to make every possible effort to moderate the excited Norwegian sentiment and hold the three Scandinavian kingdoms to the path of joint neutrality.

King Gustaf returned to Stockholm and launched the suggestion of a conference of the three Kings, accompanied by the Premiers and Foreign Ministers, at Christiania, which was accepted, the Norwegians being flattered at the idea of a visit from a Swedish monarch for the first time since the separation of the two countries.

Part of Pan German Policy.

It is difficult to judge how far Germany was actuated in its step by genuine fear of Norwegian action, and how far by a desire to force Norway into toning down its strongly anti-German sentiment, and to wave the "big stick" over the three countries during the pending negotiations with the United States and the Entente regarding the embargo, and thereby get as good a bargain as possible for Germany.

On the one hand, a Dane in high position with whom the correspondent discussed the subject considered it utterly out of the question that Norway, of her own accord, should abandon neutrality, and said he attached no importance to the sporadic reports of an intention on the part of England or America to seize a base in Norway the better to combat submarines. Prominent Norwegians assert that war sentiment in their country is negligible. The same view has been expressed in statements in the Norwegian Parliament, probably inspired by the German warning.

Berlin Has Fears of Norway.

On the other hand, Germany is evidently perturbed by the state of Norwegian public opinion. The German Minister to Norway, Admiral von Hintze, who, it is reported, had been sent to that country as the apostle of the strong hand, has been visiting Berlin to report on the situation. A Danish member of the German Reichstag has just visited Norway on what may undoubtedly be described as a pacifying mission, and a mass of inspired editorial matter is being telegraphed from the German press by the correspondents in Berlin in an endeavor to convince Norwegians of the unwisdom of extreme anti-German feeling and of the benevolence of German intentions as respects them.

Many Peace Demonstrations in Berlin Sunday; Vorwaerts Wishes for Them in Allied Capitals

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Copyright, 1917, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 27.—Vorwärts reports numerous peace demonstrations in Berlin on Sunday. Especially in the northern part of the city did they assume considerable proportions.

In going through the streets the demonstrators called for cheers for peace, and the name of Karl Liebknecht was loudly applauded. At one point there was a struggle with the police, and several arrests were made.

The German Socialist organ says that the police authorities ought not to regard such gatherings as dangerous, "because the whole people are at one with the demonstrators in their aim of bringing about peace and because this effort calls forth no serious opposition throughout the country." Vorwärts wishes that such demonstrations would take place in Paris and London, for then "we would not be far from peace."

PREMIERS GATHER FOR PARIS COUNCIL

Plan Direct and Businesslike Discussion of War Unity Problems.

BRITISH OFFICIALS ARRIVE

Sonnino and Venizelos Also There for Meeting—House Holds Conferences.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—The clans are assembling rather slowly for the interallied meetings. The English delegates were delayed by the weather, which interfered with the Channel crossings.

It is understood that an effort is being made to cut out oratory in the conference and get right down to business.

One of the Premiers is expected to open the proceedings with a statement in one sentence, to the effect that "we are here to transact war business; what is the pleasure of the meeting?" This brief opening will strike the keynote of short, sharp, decisive methods.

The members of the American mission are less busy here than they were in London owing to the fact that much detail of the relationship of the French Government has been disposed of by the Tardieu mission in Washington and the special representatives who met the mission in London. There remain considerable negotiations with Spain and Switzerland, which are now proceeding here.

Ambassador Willard, who left Madrid a few weeks ago on his doctor's orders for rest, is here, very opportunely, to help the mission.

One of the biggest obstacles in the way of reducing unity of control to the concrete is national pride, and it is on this rock that any effort to have a single military head may split. As a member of the mission put it: "There is an irreducible minimum of indestructible individualism in every country, and no mere academic principle, however sound, can be carried too far in face of this condition."

The more closely the scheme of a Supreme War Council is studied, the more shrewdly it seems to have been contrived to avoid the obstacle mentioned, and still reach the goal of unity. The Supreme War Council practically consolidates in one group the civil power of the European allies, thus fixing the gravamen for the various national war authorities. It is probable that the decision of all large inter-allied policy will naturally gravitate toward the Supreme War Council. While this body would not concern itself with the strategy on any single front, it might settle all overlapping questions.

For example, the matter of whether and how to help Cadorna, which hung on the horns of indecision all Summer and Autumn, could have been promptly settled if the Supreme War Council had existed. It is also fair to assume that the council could and would have supported efficient measures for steadying Russia at the time when Kerensky made and broke his agreement with Korniloff, the carrying out of which might have composed the Russian situation on a basis of a temporary military dictatorship, and thus prevented the subsequent catastrophes.

All these possibilities are discussed among Americans and others now in Paris as fortifying the argument for maintaining a Supreme War Council and allowing it the fullest power in action.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—The members of the Interallied Conference, which is to open its sessions here on Thursday, are beginning to gather.

Premier Lloyd George arrived tonight accompanied by Foreign Secretary Balfour. Sir Eric Campbell Geddes, First Lord of the Admiralty; Admiral Sir John Jellicoe, Chief of the Naval Staff; Earl Reading, the Lord Chief Justice, and General Sir William Robertson, Chief of the Imperial Staff at British Army Headquarters. They were met at the station by Premier Clemenceau, former Premier Painlevé, and Stephen Pichon, French Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Mr. Lloyd George has a suite of rooms across the corridor from the apartment occupied by Colonel House. Premier

ITALIANS SHATTER BRENTA ATTACK

Reinforcements Drive Back an Entire Teuton Division and Take Prisoners.

HOLDING HILL POSITIONS

Fourth Italian Army Repulses Five Assaults on Its Lines Near Monte Pertica.

ROME, Nov. 27.—An entire division of the enemy made an attack yesterday in the Branta Valley in an effort to break through the Italian northern front. Today's official statement says that these troops, which attacked in massed formation, were driven back.

The text of the announcement follows:

Yesterday afternoon the enemy, after bombarding furiously our positions on Col della Berretta, to the east of the Brenta Valley, launched against it a massed attack of an entire division of infantry. The ensuing struggle was very fierce, and the defenders, isolated by a violent barrage fire, would perhaps have been compelled to give way, in view of the size of the attacking force and the violence of its assault, had not their support, composed of splendid Sicilians of the ancient and glorious Aosta Brigade, with parties of the 94th Infantry and the Brenta Valley battalion of Alpini, arrived in time.

Having crossed the death zone with élan, our gallant troops rushed against the enemy with irresistible impetus, carrying all before them and compelling him to retire with very severe losses, leaving prisoners in our hands.

BERLIN, Nov. 27, (via London.)—The situation on the Italian front is unchanged, Army Headquarters announces.

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN NORTHERN ITALY, Nov. 27, (Associated Press.)—The reports from the Italian line on the northern front were favorable today. The heavy fighting is continuing, with the Italians holding in the main.

Five Austro-German Attacks Fail.

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN NORTHERN ITALY, Nov. 26, (Delayed.)—(Associated Press.)—Five determined attacks by Austro-German forces on the left wing of the Italian Fourth Army, near Monte Pertica, between the Brenta and the Piave, were delivered today. The enemy rushes were broken by the defensive troops with heavy losses to the attackers.

Not only the left but the right wing and the centre of the army holding this sector were subjected to attack, the enemy effort now attaining its full force here. On the right and the centre the struggle raged from Monte Monfenera westward, with the Italians holding their lines at all points.

The fluctuations of the great battle have now developed to a stage where the resisting power of the Italian army has been demonstrated to be sufficient to retard, if not to prevent any sudden rush through the passes leading to the Venetian plains. This was regarded as a serious menace six days ago, but as each day has shown the Italian lines holding solid against repeated attacks and their defenders ready even to take the aggressive against heavy odds, the feeling of apprehension that then prevailed is changing to one of restored confidence and unwavering determination, coupled with a spirit of buoyancy which pervades all ranks of the army and civilian life.

There is also the feeling that allied support is near at a timely moment, and that the mingled ranks of gray, blue and khaki will combine to offer the resistance that Italy has maintained alone until now.

Many British officers were at headquarters today, and the streets showed almost as much khaki as gray. The Prince of Wales renewed his earlier visit, going about the streets and mingling with the officers at public restaurants in the most democratic fashion.

It is reported from the Friuli region occupied by the enemy that the civil population has been required to turn over all copper articles, grease and oils in its possession within five days. Emperor Charles is said to have made

RENEW FIGHT FOR CAMBRAI

Byng's Men Advance Both Their Fontaine and Bourlon Lines.

CAPTURE MORE THAN 500

Daring Drive Rescues English Troops Isolated in the Thick of the Conflict.

GERMANS ARE REINFORCED

Attempt to Restore the Hindenburg Line West of Moeuvres Fails.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Nov. 27, (Associated Press.)—The British have made another advance in the Cambrai area, and, according to the latest reports, have worked their way forward though the northwestern part of Fontaine Notre Dame, which they captured at the beginning of the attack last week, but subsequently lost.

They are now said to have advanced almost to the main street, which runs east and west through the centre of the village, and are pressing their attack in the face of strong resistance.

A new assault was made at Fontaine at dawn after a comparatively quiet night. Hot fighting developed immediately. The Germans poured a heavy machine gun fire against the British from the windows and roofs of buildings. A large concentration of enemy machine guns in La Folie Wood, southeast of Fontaine, was also brought into action against the attacking troops.

This machine gun fire presented the main difficulty to the advance, for the Germans in the hamlet were working behind walls and other cover, while it was necessary for the British to charge across more or less open stretches, giving the Germans a good chance to sweep their ranks with an intense fire.

British Rescue Isolated Comrades.

The battle on the southern edge of Bourlon Village continued last night. As a result of a determined drive against the German line the British were enabled to break through at one point and bring back a party of English troops that had been holding out in the southern part of the hamlet and had been isolated for some time. No attempt was made to remain in the village after this body of men had been rescued and gotten back through the gap in the German line.

It was reported this morning that another body of British troops was holding a position in the northern section of the village with Germans all about them. But this is uncertain.

The Germans delivered a counterattack against the northeast corner of Bourlon Wood about 10 o'clock last night, but were repulsed. The British line this morning is holding firm along the northern fringe of the wood and up to the edge of Bourlon Village.

Outside of the operations about Fontaine and Bourlon, there was little infantry action on the rest of the front last night. The British artillery has been hammering the Germans heavily at various points, and during the night projected a considerable quantity of gas into Queant.

The weather changed late yesterday and heavy storms set in. It rained torrents most of the night, and for a time this turned to snow, small patches of which are still to be seen about the countryside. The rain continued today, making the position of the troops operating in the new territory most uncomfortable.

The air service was active yesterday. A party of British machines destroyed one enemy machine and brought down two others out of control in a fight.

Haig Reports Advancing His Line.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Field Marshal Haig reports an advance of the British line in the neighborhood of Fontaine Notre Dame and Bourlon and the capture of more than 500 prisoners. The official statement tonight says:

> At dawn today our local attacks in the neighborhood of the villages of Fontaine Notre Dame and Bourlon led to severe fighting. The enemy, strongly reinforced, contested our advance with great stubbornness, and the fight swayed backward and forward during the day.
> We have advanced our line and taken over 500 prisoners.
>
> During the afternoon the enemy attempted to attack the position we hold in the Hindenburg line on the spur west of Moeuvres, but was driven off by our fire.
>
> The enemy's artillery has again shown great activity east and northeast of Ypres.

The afternoon official statement reads:

> During the night the Germans undertook another counterattack against our position in the northeast corner of Bourlon Wood. The attack was repulsed.
>
> There is nothing of special interest to report on the remainder of the front. The weather is stormy and wet.

The Belgian communication issued at Havre says:

> During the course of yesterday we bombarded various German works in the region of Dixmude. The German artillery has for the most part directed its fire against our organizations at Steenstraete and Dixmude. In reprisal for the enemy bombardment near Furnes and Avecapelle we shelled St. Pierre Capelle and encampments at Leke.
>
> The night of Sept. 26-27 was marked by great activity. Enemy patrols near Kippe, south of Dixmude, were driven back by our fire.

South of Stuyvekenskerke an encounter took place between one of our patrols and an enemy patrol, the latter being forced to retire with considerable losses.

Today our works south of Stuyvekenskerke, around Pervyse, Caeskerke, Dixmude, Oestkerke and Kippe were bombarded. Our batteries replied energetically against the German trenches.

BERLIN, Nov. 27, (via London.)—The repulse of a British attack on Bourlon Wood and Village, in the Cambrai area, is announced in today's official communication from Army Headquarters.

The text of the communication reads:

Western theatre, front of Crown Prince Rupprecht: In Flanders the artillery activity again assumed great violence in the afternoon between Houtholst Wood and Zandvoorde.

In some sectors of the battlefield southwest of Cambrai there was an intense firing duel throughout the day. British infantry, which had been drawn up ready, attacked in the evening under the cover of darkness the village and wood of Bourlon, but were repulsed in heavy hand-to-hand fighting. Forefield activity continued lively on the whole battlefront.

FRENCH ROUND OUT GAINS.

Complete the Possession of Verdun Field Won on Sunday.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—The French last night overcame the resistance of Germans still holding out on the field of operations of the French attack on the Verdun front Sunday, says today's official report. Prisoners were taken in raids elsewhere on the battle line. The communication follows:

Active artillery fighting is under way north of the Aisne, in the sector between Filain and Pinon.

In Champagne one of our detachments last night penetrated German trenches north of Prunay. After having explored the positions, destroyed shelters, and captured materials our men returned to their own lines without losses. This morning we made a successful raid west of Tahure.

On the right bank of the Meuse (Verdun front) we carried out with success last night an operation in detail north of Hill 344. We reduced a point of resistance, rounding out the gains obtained on Sunday afternoon. On the left bank of the river a patrol action near Bethincourt enabled us to take prisoners, including an officer.

In Lorraine, northeast of Nomeny, we made a raid and brought back prisoners.

The communication from the War Office tonight reads:

Quite spirited artillery actions occurred in Belgium, in the region of Juvincourt and on the front of the Chaume Wood. There was no infantry action.

BERLIN, Nov. 27.—The official statement issued at Army Headquarters today says of the fighting on the French front:

Front of the German Crown Prince.—North of Prunay a French attack was repulsed as a result of trench fighting. On the eastern bank of the Meuse the fighting activity was moderate throughout the day. In the evening there was a considerable increase in the fighting between Samogneux and Beaumont. Between St. Mihiel and Pont-à-Mousson the firing at times revived.

FIERCE HAND-TO-HAND FIGHTS.

Struggle Before Cambrai Inspires American Officers' Ardor.

BRITISH ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Monday, Nov. 26, (Associated Press.)—British troops, including some from London, continued last night to bore their way forward through the Hindenburg support line west of Moeuvres. There was vigorous fighting at close quarters in this region, and, as a result, the British today were in possession of a further section of support trenches 2,000 yards long running east and west, just south of Pronville and Inchy-en-Artois.

The British advance in the last few days had made this section of the line virtually untenable, and the Germans were forced to withdraw when pressed by a new attack.

Fighting was renewed today between Bourlon Wood and Cambrai about Fontaine Notre Dame, where the Germans were still installed and continued to work machine guns from roofs and windows. At Bourlon Wood and Bourlon Village the situation remained much as it was last night after the Germans had forced the British out of most of the village in a fierce counterattack which involved still more furious hand-to-hand fighting through the streets. The battle continued here today.

The fight for Bourlon Wood and village will long be remembered as one of the most bitterly contested and sanguinary yet fought along the British front in France. American officers visiting the Cambrai sector have been thrilled at this renewal of old-type warfare, and with one accord say:

"That's the kind of fighting American troops would like to be in, for you are in the open, where you can get at the enemy with cold steel."

The Germans have been concentrating all efforts in the attempt to oust the British from this elevation, which is vital for the enemy to hold if he is to maintain himself in the present positions further north.

The British have clung tenaciously to Bourlon Wood, defended partly by tanks, which have taken positions at advantageous locations from which they can work their guns. Fontaine Notre Dame was being hard pressed by the British at latest reports. Throughout yesterday this hamlet remained unmolested, for it in no way hampered the operations about Bourlon Wood.

In a certain British casualty clearing station on the Cambrai front there has been working for several days a well-known New York surgeon, who belongs to the American Medical Corps and who volunteered his services for the present battle. Most of his work has been done among the German prisoners, who have come to look upon this big, cheerful officer as almost superhuman because of several remarkable operations he has performed. The Germans all swear by the "big American" and treat him with utmost deference.

It fell to the lot of this surgeon to operate upon a German who had left the Russian front only thirty-six hours before. He was among the reinforcements rushed from the east. It took him twenty-four hours to get into the battle before Cambrai and twelve hours later he was a prisoner in a British clearing station.

CAMBRAI RAILROAD BOMBED.

British Airmen Also Raid Douai Station at Night.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The official communication issued this evening dealing with aviation, says:

The weather Monday was slightly better for flying, but low clouds and a strong wind again hindered work in the air. Some successful artillery work was done by our airplanes and many photographs were taken.

Enemy troops, batteries, and transports were constantly attacked by our low-flying machines. During the day bombs were dropped on the crossings over the River Sensee and the railheads near Cambrai and north of Douai. At night the Douai Station was attacked. Bombs also were dropped on the Souain Station and sidings. In all, over three tons of bombs were dropped.

A few fights in the air occurred in which one hostile machine was downed and four were driven down out of control. Another hostile machine was shot down by our fire from the ground. None of our machines is missing.

Succeeds Judge of Bolo Notoriety.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—Paul André has been appointed by the Government to replace Fernand Monier as First President of the Court of Appeals in Paris. Monier was recently dismissed from office because of his connection with the Bolo case.

BRITISH HAMMERING TO GO ON STEADILY

Midwinter Campaign on West Front Is Expected to Set New Precedent.

BYNG IN CIRCLING MOVE

If Present Operations Succeed Germans May Be Forced to Retreat on a Large Front.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The British drive on Cambrai will be followed up relentlessly by similar offensives along the western front, in the opinion of officers familiar with what is in prospect in France. Authoritative announcement has been made abroad already that this Winter would see no halt in operations, and with the return of American divisional commanders from observation tours in France it has become certain that the French and British armies will prosecute midwinter campaigns such as were never before attempted.

Secretary Baker said today that the returning officers would proceed to their divisional camps and resume the personal direction of the training of their men. So far as known, there will be no general conference of the officers here, but it is likely that they will call on Mr. Baker and General Staff officials while on the way to their posts.

Already the allied troops have forced their way forward against more serious obstaces than they will encounter later when the cold has hardened the ground for the passage of troops and artillery. The mud of Flanders has been the greatest barrier to major operations during the last few weeks, but the Cambrai attack was forced home despite it.

Meagre official reports ofthe progress of the drive on Cambrai indicate clearly that General Byng's forces are aiming at a great encircling movement. With a wide wedge driven into the Cambrai front, the British commander apparently is working his way behind the German lines on his left flank. If he succeeds in penetrating deeply in that direction many officers here believe he will force a retirement by the Germans on a wide front.

Meanwhile the British and French pressure further toward the Belgian coast is unceasing. A new offensive effort there is expected as a part of the whole plan on which the Allies are engaged of forcing the Germans back from a long section of the coast, where submarine bases are situated. The Cambrai successes have an important bearing, in the opinion of officers here, on this general plan of accomplishing during the Winter a decisive result in the coastal region as the foundation upon which next year's offensive campaign can be laid.

POPE'S APPEAL FAILS.

Baron de la Grange Remains in a German Prison in Spite of It.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 27.—After Pope Benedict, at the request of Cardinal Gibbons, had made intercession with the German officials, word came here today that Baron Louis de la Grange, whose wife was Miss Anita Carroll, daughter of the former Governor of Maryland, John Lee Carroll, would not be released from a detention camp, where he has been for some time. The German officials announced that for military reasons the Baron, who is over 60 and said to be in feeble health, must remain a prisoner indefinitely.

Cardinal Gibbons, who is a close friend of the Carroll family, made the appeal to the Pope. Cablegrams have passed between the Pope, the Cardinal, and the German Foreign Office, but the Cardinal said tonight that his efforts appeared fruitless.

In another German prison camp is Bertrand Kergolay, son of Countess Jean Kergolay of Paris, who was Miss Louisa Carroll, sister of Baroness de la Grange.

AMERICAN AMBITION BLAMED FOR THE WAR

German Paper Says Wilson Seeks World Leadership and People Covet Trade.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 27.—The German press continues in the field of editorial exploration as to why America declared war. Every organ brings some new discovery. The Catholic-Annexationist Cologne Volkszeitung says that any one who knows President Wilson and his vanity realizes that his reasons were personal, and that when future world history is written he aspires to figure as the great man of insight, energy, and power, who brought the war to a happy ending.

"He wishes to be President of the supreme court of the world and judge of the highest court of justice and humanity," says this paper.

The Volkszeitung comments on the statement that "America now is to be an official Entente ally" and is to send representatives to the coming Paris conference, saying that up to the present time America has been unwilling to become involved in European politics and so has declined to take part in conferences, but that Wilson is now advocating a less independent attitude in order to assume a more important rôle in the peace negotiations. Washington, says the paper, has decided to become a more demonstrative ally of the Entente.

It asserts that President Wilson once stated in an unguarded moment that England and America must share the world's commerce, and that "this is another of Uncle Sam's war aims, even if he talks of freedom." America, says the Volkszeitung, would never have entered the war if she had not already lent so much money and if she did not regard the war as big business.

The paper quotes the American banker, Henry Clews, as saying that the war would bring tremendous prosperity to American industry, which otherwise would require a century to build up, that she would become the second greatest world power and that every conceivable industry would be swamped with orders for Europe. This may be correct, says the Volkszeitung, but there is no reason why America shoulud have all the benefit, for the same thing would apply in other countries and in Germany trades and industries would likewise be busuyu, although the lack of workmen would be felt much more in Europe than America so that high wages would be required.

Mr. Clews's statement about America's tremendous development in foreign trade and shipping is correct, the Volkszeitung says. It continues:

"From now on America may be considered a seafaring nation. Before the war shipping was in European hands, and this weakness was long a thorn to American national pride, but the United States will now compare with England as a sea power."

The paper asserts that Americans are too good business men not to rejoice over the war, and that if they pray for peace on Sundays they work in munition factories all the week for the Entente, and they are now dreaming of untold wealth after wthe war, though hiding their joy behind the idea that they are bringing peace on earth.

RUSSIAN LEADERS OPPOSE RADICALS

States of America. We daily expect to receive instructions in line with these facts. Before sending this I submitted it to the Ambassador, who fully agrees."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Official confirmation of the news from London that German Staff officers are in Petrograd acting as military advisers of the Lenine faction probably will be followed promptly by action on the part of the United States and the Allies definitely to place the Bolsheviki régime in the list of Germany's allies.

If the Germans are there all doubt as to the purpose of the Bolsheviki is removed, and the diplomats will be obliged to withdraw to a neutral capital, probably Stockholm, to await instructions from their Governments. Such a development undoubtedly would be followed by immediate cancellation of all orders now in process of execution for military and other supplies for Russia both in the United States and Japan. Several cargoes from the United States are now on the way to Vladivostok, but these can be diverted by wireless orders, and it has been understood that their delivery would be contingent upon evidence that they would not fall into unfriendly hands.

Reports that come from the Don Cossack county that the Hetman, General Kaledines, may be the master of the situation through his control of the food which is necessary to maintain any military force in the North of Russia, have encouraged military experts here to believe that in spite of the aid of his German advisers, Lenine and his faction may be brought to terms.

The Viennese reports crediting General Dukhonin, the Russian Commander in Chief, previously reported to have been deposed by the Bolsheviki, with having received a communication from the Entente Powers threatening grave dangers if Russia should make separate peace with Germany are accepted in Washington with a large grain of salt. It is believed to be part of the German game of propaganda being played for purpose of throwing dust in the eyes of the outside world and stirring up trouble in Russia against the Allies. Officials of the Washington Government have insisted during the past week that there was no foundation for the report that this country was cutting off Russian supplies.

From private conversations in Russian circles here it is gathered that Russian diplomats feel that the withdrawal of the allied, or of American, diplomatic officers from Petrograd or the treatment of Russia, while in the grasp of the Bolsheviki, as a semi-hostile country, might tend to drive Russia into the hands of the enemy, whereas statesmanship, guided by forbearance and sympathetic consideration, might ultimately result in saving Russia not only from her enemies in Berlin and Vienna, but also from her present internal political perils and restore Russia to her proper place in the Entente Alliance.

MOVE AGAINST BOLSHEVIKI.

Committee of Safety Socialists Appeals to the Army.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAPARANDA, Sweden, Nov. 27.—A counterproclamation to the army has been made in reply to the Bolshevist peace decree by the non-Bolshevist Socialists and Moderates of the Committee of Safety. The proclamation states that the step taken by the Bolsheviki means the definite destruction of Russia. The Bolshevist Government is recognized by no allied State nor by Germany. When the Bolsheviki, however, have brought about a truce with the German Generals the Allies, it says, will regard Russia as a traitor and will refuse help and support after the war.

This, the proclamation goes on, will rapidly weaken Russia, which has not an effective army or money or food, with the result that it will fall an easy prey to those who intend to plunder and divide it. Repudiated in every quarter, Russia will have to pray the Kaiser on its knees for peace, and pay in territory and money whatever he claims.

According to the Novaya Zhiza, Lenine and Trotzky sent letters to all army organizations and revolutionary committees at the front pointing out that Admiral Verkhovsky, M. Auksentieff or Tchernoff, M Tseretelli and others had been summoned to the headquarters of the ex-Commander in Chief for the purpose of forming a new Government. Lenine and Trotzky appeal to the army committees to arrest these "enemies of the people" if they refuse to leave military headquarters.

NORTH CUT OFF FROM SOUTH.

Official Messages Reaching Odessa by Way of Persia.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—All communication has been broken between North and South Russia. The Foreign Embassies at Petrograd are unable to establish any touch with Odessa and other points in Southern Russia. Official messages, however, are reaching Odessa by way of Persia.

The Russian Army on the northern front has had no bread for several days, according to reports received in Petrograd and transmitted by the correspondent of The Daily Express, and only two or three days' supply of army biscuit is on hand. The army delegates are reported to have recommended the withdrawal of the troops in order to prevent a general flight with its consequent excesses. Instead of a hundred cars of food arriving daily at the Dvinsk front, only twenty have been received.

Large numbers of troops being moved to different places have been stopped by the removal of sections of railroad track to prevent their reaching Petrograd. They were stopped at towns where food could not be obtained.

The Russian revolutionists have made a "ghastly failure" of their attempt at administration, according to the Petrograd correspondent of The Morning Post, writing under date of Saturday. He adds:

"But behind or beyond all this apparently hopeless chaos, the forces which made Russia an empire are not idle, and those who know Russian history understand perfectly well how matters will end.

"Even as I write the situation is becoming clear. The elections to the Constituent Assembly will take place, but the Constituent Assembly will not meet with success. The Bolshevist movement, whatever that movement may really mean, already has damned the Constituent Assembly.

"Meantime I would call attention to the following facts:

"The vast gold reserve of the Russian Empire, which was removed from Petrograd to the Kremlin in 1913, was later carried still further into the interior. It is in safe hands.

"General Kaledines, Hetman of United Cossackdom, is in secure possession, with trustworthy and disciplined troops of all arms of all those regions of European Russia that produced a harvest this year, and is rapidly capturing those remaining territories upon which Russia relies for its daily bread.

"A vast union, under the name of the Southeastern Union has been formed. It includes the Don territory, a great part of Little Russia, the lower Volga provinces and Turkestan—the area which feeds all Russia. This union is extending and promises to cover the Siberian corn land.

"General Kaledines, holding the gold reserve and the bread supplies, is master of the situation and those he serves will accept dictation neither from Kerensky, Lenine, nor anybody else, least of all from Germany.

"The Allies may safely admit a bowing acquaintance with the curious individualities thrown up from the depths by internal disturbances, but for intimate friendship and future partnership they must look elsewhere, and in the meantime they must wait unconcernedly until their old friends reappear above the present turmoil."

The Council of People's Commissaries, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Petrograd dated Sunday, has declared a two months' moratorium from the day of the beginning of the recent revolt.

A decree issued by the council creates a special State Education Commission to replace the Ministry of Education. All schools are placed under the control of the municipalities.

The Petrograd authorities yesterday published a long list of employes of the Ministry of Finance who have been declared dismissed for failure to resume their posts. They include M. Shipoff, manager of the State Bank, which is still under control nominally of the old authority.

Efforts to force a resumption of work under a Commissioner failed. The final effort was made Saturday, when it was demanded that the employes of the bank and Ministry should line up for or against the Bolshevist Government. They all walked out.

MORE SECRET DOCUMENTS.

Show Germany Sought a Separate Peace with Russia and Japan.

PETROGRAD, Sunday, Nov. 25.—The Bolshevik Government continued today the publication of secret documents of the old Government. Among the documents printed today was a telegram from Sergius Sazonoff, former Foreign Minister, to the allied countries dealing with the efforts of Germany to make peace between Germany, Russia, and Japan through the German Embassy at Stockholm.

In reply to Germany, M. Sazonoff is quoted as having said that he advised the Japanese Ambassador that Russia was willing to listen to a peace proposal, provided the proposal was made to Russia, Great Britain, France, and Japan, in which event he would notify Italy, which then was not in the alliance.

Another telegram, sent by the Russian Ambassador at Rome Oct. 31, 1917, told of a desire of the Italians to have Russia make an attack on or a demonstration against the Austro-Germans to relieve the pressure on Italy.

WANTS FINLAND RESCUED.

Stockholm Paper Advises Swedish or Joint Scandinavian Intervention.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen quotes the Stockholm Aftenbladet as advising Swedish or joint Scandinavian interference for the salvation of Finland, for humanitarian, rather than political reasons.

The Aftenbladet says Sweden has sufficient means to carry out intervention in the interest of culture and humanity and for the protection of Swedes and of Swedish property in Finland.

TROTZKY PRESENTS DEMAND ON BRITAIN

Calls for Release of "Heroes of Revolution" Under Arrest in England.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—A Reuter dispatch from Petrograd says that Leon Trotzky, Bolshevist Foreign Minister, has written to Sir George W. Buchanan, the British Ambassador, demanding the release of two Russian citizens—Chichirin and Petroff—under arrest in England, characterizing them as "stainless and self-sacrificing men of high ideals." He demands also the release of others under arrest.

Trotzky alleges that many Englishmen living in Russia are openly engaged in political activities with the counter-revolutionary Russian bourgeoisie, and adds:

"The revolutionary democracy cannot accept the position that worthy heroes of the Russian revolution languish in concentration camps in England while counter-revolutionary British citizens suffer no restraint in Russian revolutionary territory."

DEPLORES TATIANA STORY.

Russian Relief Association's Head Calls It Most Unfortunate.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—In behalf of the Russian Civilian Relief Association, C. C. Calhoun, President of the organization, today disclaimed all responsibility for the published story that Tatiana Nicolaevna Romanoff, a daughter of the deposed Czar of Russia, had escaped from Siberia and would sing, dance, and write in this country for the benefit of the society.

The society, organized to gather funds for the relief of the civilian population in Russia, Mr. Calhoun declared, aimed to conduct its propaganda in a dignified manner, and he considered such an appearance of the former Grand Duchess as most improbable and publication of such a story as most unfortunate.

The story of her escape through a mock marriage, accredited to Ivan Narodny, one of the members of the New York office of the society, now is regarded by most Russians in the United States and many others as somebody's idea of a practical joke.

CHECK AUSTRIANS IN ALBANIA.

Italians Rout Assaults That Gained Initial Success.

ROME, Nov. 27.—Austrian troops made another attack on the Italian lines in Albania on Sunday, in which they scored an initial success, the War Office announced today. Regulars came to the assistance of the Albanian bands that had been driven back in the region southeast of Berat, and the Austrians were forced to retreat with heavy casualties.

The text of the statement follows:

In Albania on Sunday night the enemy forced a passage of the Osum River between Cipan and Kobkara, southeast of Berat, attacking our Albanian bands there. The prompt intervention of regular troops drove the enemy back with the infliction of heavy losses upon him.

Clemenceau will confer with Mr. Lloyd George tomorrow morning.

Premier Venizelos of Greece also arrived tonight. Admiral Sims is also here.

Baron Sonnino, the Italian Foreign Minister, came this morning. The Italian Premier, Vittorio Orlando, Minister of the Treasury Francisco Nitti, Minister of Munitions Alfredo Dallolio, Minister of Transport Bianchi, and Aviation Commissioner Chiosa left Rome for Paris last night.

General Bliss and Admiral Benson, each accompanied by two members of his staff, motored to French Army Headquarters today. They were the guests at luncheon of General Pétain, the French Commander in Chief. Marquis de Chambrun, who was a member of the French mission to the United States, went with the party.

Colonel House and the other members of the American mission to the conference spent the day in conferences here.

Captain André Tardieu, High Commissioner to the United States; Etienne Clementel, Minister of Commerce, and Albert Thomas, former Minister of Munitions, called on Colonel House at his headquarters this afternoon. In the evening Colonel House was a dinner guest of William Graves Sharp, the American Ambassador.

ITALIANS SHATTER BRENTA ATTACK

another visit to the invaded region, going to the coast cities of Grado and Monfalcone.

ITALIAN LOSSES ARE HEAVY.

Outnumbered 4 or 5 to 1, Mountain Troops Are Fighting Heroically.

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN NORTHERN ITALY, Nov. 26, (Delayed,) (Associated Press.)—In the course of a trip of 100 miles today through the fighting zone in the north, The Associated Press correspondent met the Major General in command of the most exposed front between the Brenta and Piave Rivers, where the pressure has been greatest and the losses heaviest, and obtained from him details of the situation. As the General spoke a heavy cannonading resounded through his field headquarters, and he looked out upon a great stretch of the Brenta Valley, where the enemy was concentrating his forces in an effort to break through to Bassano and the Venetian Plains.

Staff officers and orderlies were arriving with reports from all vital points and hurrying off with orders for the manoeuvring of troops. It was a stirring scene, but the General paused long enough to give a good general idea of the situation, and details of the condition of the troops and the splendid fight they were making against heavy odds.

He estimated these odds at four or five to one; but even against such odds, he said, his men were fighting with a power of resistance, courage, and dash beyond all praise. Attacks were almost continuous at one point or another; but the Italians were always ready to respond, and had not only repulsed attacks, but driven the enemy back after a series of heroic charges.

The General summed up the physical conditions of the battle ground which made the struggle particularly trying to the troops. First, he said, there was that terrible strain and natural fatigue accompanying nights and days of ceaseless fighting with the relentless foe. Then there was the extreme cold, with the temperature at nights at about 14 degrees above zero, Fahrenheit. This extreme cold was made worse, he said, because the men were without any kind of shelter, everything having been swept away in the terrific artillery action, and the constant shifting of position.

There were no trenches or dugouts, and there was no water from unfailing sources, such as soldiers should have when going through such an ordeal. The troops were on the barren foothills, covered with rocks and stones. This ground was without habitation and the slightest natural facilities usually required by fighting troops.

After summing up the physical hardships, the General added that there was the still more serious condition of many commands being with very few officers, as the continuous fighting had told terribly on officers. As a result, new men were suddenly called upon to lead forces far exceeding those they had been accustomed to command, and sub-officers as well as junior officers were directing superior commands in many instances.

The General said that there had been fearful losses among the troops, which required a constant re-forming of companies, regiments, brigades, and divisions. But, with all these terrible conditions, the spirit of the men was unabated in the determination to hold at any cost.

The rumble of heavy artillery fire continued throughout the General's talk, while through a dense mist over the valley was seen a faint outline of the rising hills where one attack was following another in this fateful battle.

Enemy's Losses Enormous.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Nov. 26, (Delayed.)—It is now a month since the Austro-German offensive started, and more than a fortnight since the Italians checked the enemy on the Piave line. The whole campaign is made up of episodes of heroism too numerous to be catalogued. The battle still rages in the mountain region. One brigade fought for eight days together, stopping neither day nor night—all this in this terrible cold, ten degrees below the freezing point, in a region covered with snow, where the soldiers are compelled to remain for a long time motionless, lest they be discovered against the whiteness of the snow, before they pounce in surprise attacks upon the enemy.

The Alpini and Bersaglieri who defend the strongholds on the Asiago Plateau are troops taken from the Carnia and Cadore fronts, where they have passed their lives in the mountains. They dig trenches in the solid rock during the battle, build shelters for the wounded, hide machine guns under ground and suffer hardships which are aggravated by the Winter season. A battalion of Alpini which were attacked by great enemy masses near Meletta di Gallio lost two-thirds of its effectives without yielding an inch of ground.

The enemy's losses are enormous. Three divisions on a front of ten miles, between San Marino and Fener, have been withdrawn because they were decimated.

One group of Alpini, fighting against Prussian Jägers, seeing one of their officers wounded by an explosive bullet, flung themselves furiously against the enemy, charging with the bayonet. The Germans tried to escape, but got entangled in barbed wire, where they were all caught and killed with the exception of one who fled crying: "I am an Alsatian!"

One of the Alpini after the battle remarked with satisfaction: "I have discovered that the Prussians are made of flesh and blood, like us."

Another division of Alpini charged over unprotected ground against opponents who were the best troops the Austro-Germans could muster, having been fighting in the Vosges, and drove them from their higher positions.

The sacrifices which they are undergoing have not for an instant shaken the determination of the Italian soldiers, who understand the momentous character of this mountain fighting.

Teutons Used Up Six Divisions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Semi-official advices from Rome received today indicated that the Italian Army had withstood successfully all attempts of the Austro-German forces to break the solidarity of the Italian line along the lower Piave and in the mountain sectors. According to this dispatch, the Italians have vigorously resisted and repulsed the enemy attacks and inflicted severe losses upon the invaders.

"Some enemy outposts," it says, "in the confusion of the struggle, fought among themselves. So the 31st Landsturm, during an action near Monte Fior, fought from the evening until dawn against other Austro-German troops, which were decimated.

"From the Asiago Plateau to the Piave the enemy has suffered appalling losses without gaining any advantage. Between the Piave and the Brenta the enemy has already worn out six divisions."

FORMER GERMAN LINER SUNK BY A U-BOAT

The Actaeon, Flying American Flag, Is Destroyed in Mediterranean—Many of Crew Missing.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The American steamship Actaeon was torpedoed on Sunday, a dispatch from Corunna, Spain, reports. Twenty-one survivors have arrived at Port Camarinas. Three boats with the remainder of the crew are missing.

The crew of the American steamship Actaeon was composed of fifty-eight men, including twenty-six American citizens and five naturalized Americans. The vessel also is believed to have had on board a crew of United States naval gunners, inasmuch as the vessel was controlled by the United States Shipping Board.

Formerly the German steamship Adamsturm, of 5,000 tons, the Actaeon left New York early in October, carrying Government supplies for Bordeaux. It is believed she was on the return voyage when sunk. She was commanded by W. J. Johnson. The vessel was built in Germany in 1909, and was seized by this Government after war was declared.

The American citizens on board were C. H. Hurley, second mate, Gardner, Mass.; A. B. Bradley, third mate, 636 West 172d Street, New York City; G. A. Jensen of Ferndale, Cal., and J. A. Atkins, Hood, Cal., wireless operators; Louis R. Carson, cadet officer, Los Angeles; H. B. Smith, boatswain, Baltimore; Peter Sullivan, seaman, Fall River, Mass.; F. B. Atwood, seaman, Nantucket, Mass.; H. Wotton, seaman, St. Paul, Minn.; I. F. Wildey, second assistant engineer, Woodycrest, N. Y.; James R. Healey, third assistant engineer, New Orleans; B. Ford, cadet engineer, Algiers, La.; J. Moriarty, oiler, Asbury Park, N. J.; R. L. Marsden, coal passer, Philadelphia; W. B. Crada, coal passer, Bellhaven, N. C.; F. Rotman, second cook, 496 East 162d Street, New York City; John O'Connell, messman, Lowell, Mass.; J. McCaffrey, messman, Haverhill, Mass.; E. C. Wallace, messman, Philadelphia; Henry Fallon, deck boy, Steubenville, Ohio; Thomas R. Correro, seaman, no address, born in California; W. M. Gilvey, cadet engineer, home in England; J. H. Jennings, oiler, no address, born in Massachusetts; Arthur J. Lyon, coal passer, Bristol, Conn.; Benjamin Paul, seaman, Philadelphia.

NOTED AMERICAN FLIER KILLED BY A HORSE

Paul Pavelka of Foreign Legion and Lafayette Squadron Dies Near Monastir.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—Advices have been received here from Saloniki to the effect that Sergeant Paul Pavelka of the French Flying Squadron was killed recently by being thrown from a horse near Monastir. He was buried at Saloniki.

Pavelka was the first American fighter killed on the Macedonian front. His home was Madison, Conn. He enlisted in the Foreign Legion at the outbreak of the war but was transferred to the aviation branch in November, 1915. He served with the Lafayette Squadron before Verdun and in the Somme battle and later volunteered for service at Saloniki, where he was decorated with the War Cross for his bombing and fighting exploits.

MANY OF OUR SAILORS WON BRIDES IN IRELAND

Nearly a Hundred Said to Have Married Since the Flotillas Went Abroad.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD OF AN AMERICAN NAVAL BASE, Nov. 27.—Although I have no exact figures, I am told that the number of marriages among American sailors since their arrival here is very great and that in the flotillas stationed in Ireland the marriages now number nearly a hundred since they first made their headquarters here, about six months ago.

The Irish girls and the men of the American fleet get on very well together, and the smiling blue eyes of the Irish colleens capitivate the strangers. A large percentage of the American sailors are Irishmen, and they have married girls whom they knew before they went to the United States.

Uncle Sam is looking well after his sailor men and an ordinary day's menu on an American ship is good enough for a first-class hotel. When the fleet arrived here first, whole herds of cattle were bought up for their use and killed as required, but now the meat is brought direct from the United States. Of all the forces fighting in the world war the Americans are the best fed.

WOODS TELLS SECRET OF STEAMSHIP FIRES

Commissioner Says White Liquid Timed to Burst Into Flame Was the Cause.

BOSTON, Nov. 27.—An innocent-looking white liquid, timed to burst into flame by the strength or weakness of the solution, has been the source of fires with which American shipping has been menaced ever since the war began, according to Arthur Woods, Police Commissioner of New York, who delivered an address here tonight. The chemical, Mr. Woods said, was the cause of ruinous fires aboard sugar ships at sea some months ago.

"For a long time," he said, "we couldn't find out how the inflammable material which caused these fires was put aboard ship. But we think we have it now—at least, no more ships are being burned."

STIRS ZEAL FOR COLONIES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 27.—Germany is trying to educate its people on the subject of colonies. With this end in view the Duke of Mecklenburg has just formed a new committee, with headquarters in Dresden, with the idea of awakening more enthusiasm for colonial politics.

The committee is to form a traveling exhibition of colonial products, to be sent all over Germany.

The company has systematically distributed among these, at its own expense, reprints of SYSTEM'S figures on safe expense for rent, salaries, delivery, heat and other retailing items. MARTIAL LAW RULES CITY'S WATERFRONT

First Detachment of Soldiers Ordered to Take Up Patrol Duty at Atlantic Piers.

MORE WILL FOLLOW SOON

Barbed-Wire Fences Will Be Erected at Barred Zones Today, and No Enemy Alien May Pass.

Coast artillerymen drawn from the fortifications in and near New York City, under command of Captain W. A. Heath, U. S. A., have been ordered to guard great Atlantic piers which are included in what is known as the Chelsea Docks, south of Twenty-third Street, and the Southern Pacific piers, in the Christopher Street section of the North River river front. These are the first Federal troops assigned to duty on the New York waterfront. Barbed-wire fences will be erected in front of these piers this morning, and from now on no person will be permitted in the reservation who fails to prove he has business there and is a loyal citizen or a friendly alien.

The artillerymen will probably go on duty today or tonight, the patrol beats in West Street being about ten feet beyond the pier entrances. Other piers will be taken over as speedily as possible, and soon every pier in the waterfront zone will be in charge of the army.

It is probable that troops will be ordered to duty today at the more important points, such as the Bush Terminal reservation, the India Wharves section, and certain of the South American docks in Brooklyn.

The decision to place barbed-wire fences in front of the more important piers was arrived at yesterday afternoon at a conference attended by Brig. Gen. Eli Hoyle, commanding the Eastern Department, on Governors Island; Chief Inspector James E. Dillon of the Police Department, Dock Commissioner R. A. C. Smith, United States Marshal Thomas D. McCarthy, Assistant United States District Attorney John C. Knox, and representatives of the various transatlantic lines. Following this conference it was stated that, in addition to the soldiers who will be in charge outside the piers, police will continue on duty at the entrances.

In addition to the registration of all enemy aliens, resident in New York, which will probably begin the latter part of this week, it has been decided to make a census of all persons living in or doing business within the limits of the 100-yard zone. The taking of this census will probably begin within twenty-four hours and when it is completed the guard commanders will be given the names of all persons entitled to reside or do business in their section of the zone. All these persons will get identification cards which they must show on entering the zone.

Marshal McCarthy delivered to the police last night several thousand placards, to be posted on all buildings in the barred zones and at the foot of all crosstown streets at a point 100 yards from the waterfront. These cards are printed in English and German, and will be put in place today.

"All Germans, if they heed my advice," said Marshal McCarthy, "will strictly live up to the warning on the placards. When a German arrives at a point opposite one of these placards he had better execute an about face, for if he keeps on going it means his arrest and internment. The soldier guards will be on duty just outside the barbed wire, which will be stretched about twenty yards from the street car tracks, on the river side. It should be made plain that the Government intends to be absolutely just in this matter. The orders cannot possibly be misunderstood by any person who reads them."

As soon as the waterfront guard situation is cleared up the Federal authorities will arrange for the registration of enemy aliens throughout the city. This registration will probably be handled by the police, and will mean the grouping of enemy aliens by police precincts and the reporting by them at stipulated periods to the Police Captains.

Several hundred German subjects visited the Federal Building yesterday to find out what was the last day of grace, so far as the order to move out of the waterfront zones is concerned. They were informed that the orders were to move immediately, and that the period during which they are expected to get out of the zone ends at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. A delegation from the Gansevoort Market section called on the Marshal to plead for several Germans employed within the barred zone at that point.

"Who are these Germans?" the Marshal asked.

"They are Gansevoort Market butchers and we can't get along without them," the spokesman said.

"Well, if they are in the zone you will have to get along without them, and I hereby order you to direct them to move at once," replied the Marshal.

Another man, head of the company which does the largest business in hops in the United States, pleaded for several German employes. He finally gave in and said that he would move his business out of the zone. "I can't do business without those Teutons," he added.

Another request came from a woman who owns a restaurant on West Street and who employs a German cook. She said that her kitchen is exactly 264 feet from the pier, that the German cook enters the building from the rear, and that he could not see out of any door or window, and that she had a chalk line drawn on the floor beyond which he had been instructed not to pass. For him she asked special consideration, but was told that the rule could not be altered to suit her cook, and that if he went within 100 yards of any pier he would be arrested and interned.

So rigid have become the regulations that persons wishing to use public telephones within the restricted area are forbidden to enter unless they display identification cards, and the telephones on piers are forbidden to all who are not personally known to the watchmen on duty.

Special inspectors and guards provided by the owners and leasees of piers were on duty on all piers in Brooklyn and Staten Island yesterday and will be continued until they are replaced by troops. In addition a policeman is assigned to duty on all of the more important piers. Inspectors and guards are also on duty on piers north of Seventy-second Street in the North River, and at certain of the piers in Yonkers. The same is true of all piers on the New Jersey shore.

TRIPLEX GLASS FOR WAR.

British Patents Acquired for Its Manufacture in This Country.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—A group of New York financiers has acquired the patent rights for manufacturing a triplex safety glass for war purposes, including its use in automobile wind screens, ships port-lights, chart table tops, bridge screens, aviation goggles, airplane wind screens and observation panels.

W. J. Finlay, a member of the syndicate, who is at present in London, says that a factory is in course of construction in America for the manufacture of this glass, and that it will soon be in operation.

RECORD MEAT ORDER GIVEN.

Largest in World's History Placed with Packers in Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—A group of about fifteen packers sat around a table in the food administration offices today. At its head was Joseph P. Cotton, Chief of the Government Meat Division. Before him was a long list specifying the meat needs of the Allies, the Red Cross, and the Belgian relief organizations. For about two hours the group conferred, and when the session broke up the greatest meat order in the history of the world had been placed.

A large order, covering meat for the American Aarmy, failed to arrive in time and will be divided later. The greater part of the meat will go forward early next year. Cured meats and lard make up no inconsiderable portion of the total.

FOOD BOARD NAMED TO EXPEDITE WORK

New Plan Worked Out by Hoover to Prevent Confusion in New York State.

MITCHELL NAMED CHAIRMAN

National Administrator Will Define Policies of the Body and Superintend Price Fixing.

In order to prevent further duplication of work and confusion between the State Food Commission, of which John Mitchell is the Chairman, and Arthur Williams, City Food Administrator of the National Food Administration, a Federal Food Board for New York State was created yesterday. The plan was worked out by Herbert C. Hoover, National Food Administrator. It was brought from Washington by his personal representative, F. C. Walcott, and accepted at a joint meeting of State and city food administrators.

The new Federal Food Board consists of five members, as follows: John Mitchell, Chairman; Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, and Charles A. Wieting, State Food Commissioners; Arthur Williams, City Food Administrator, and Charles E. Treman of Utica, Food Administrator for the State outside of New York City. Mr. Treman is a banker and a Trustee of Cornell University. He was Superintendent of Public Works under Governor Dix.

The agreement signed by the members of the new board states specifically that the National Food Administration and not the State will define policies and superintend the carrying out of the food conservation and price-fixing campaign. A statement given out after the meeting reads:

"The Food Administration at Washington must determine the broad national policies, but the administration of these policies must be carried out largely by organizations within the State." John Mitchell called the agreement a happy solution of the problem of conflicting authority.

Under the terms of agreement the general policy to be maintained during the war in food matters must be national and will be directed from Washington. Enforcement of regulations of retail distribution, including milk, will be directed by State authority, and while the Federal Board will have supervision, it will not interfere with the work of the Federal Milk Commission.

While it is recognized that at certain points Federal and State authority overlaps, it is understood that the State Commission possesses much wider authority over retailers, control of public eating places, established public markets, collection of information, control of transportation, established markets, the stimulation of production, and the purchase and sale of foods by the municipality.

The authority of the Federal Administration extends in the main to interstate transportation and distribution of food through the manufacturers, wholesale and commission men, which can only be administered from Washington. It was decided that the control of transportation and distribution, the regulation of manufacturers, wholesalers, storage and commission men, and enforcement of the law against hoarding, being in a large degree interstate trading, shall be under Federal direction.

State and Federal authorities will cooperate in investigating complaints. For expedition in administration, Mr. Williams is to act as the direct representative of Washington in New York City, and Mr. Treman outside of the city.

The board may be dissolved without notice by the National Food Administration.

Mr. Hoover will be in New York Monday to attend the first meeting of the new board.

While the Federal Board was being formed Henry Moskowitz, City Commissioner of Markets, was conferring with a committee of civic bodies appointed last week to organize a Citizens' Food Council for New York City. This committee will have organizations in all the election districts. Its objects, according to the commissioner, are:

That this Food Council is to act as the co-operating agency for all three commissions, the Federal Food Administration, State Food Commission, and Department of Public Markets.

To act as a Citizens' Food Agency for the three food administrations in connection with complaints. This council will have representatives in all parts of the city who can check up abuses in retail stores, send in complaints to the Commissioner of Markets, check up any complaints which the Commissioner may receive through other channels. The council will also exercise local influence in every part of the city in obtaining the enforcement of regulations.

To act as an organization for the distribution of literature on food matters for the food administrations and to organize meetings in local districts.

To promote wherever possible the co-operative movement, such as the organization of co-operative purchasing through co-operative stores and buying clubs.

To aid in the formulation of such a comprehensive market and food program for the city by the food administrations as will merit the support of public opinion.

To co-ordinate the work of all existing organizations to the end that duplication and overlapping in their respective activities may be eliminated.

The meeting of the Federal Milk Commission was abandoned for the day after the Commissioners had waited more than an hour for the milk producers to appear. Dr. W. H. Jordan, the Chairman, said the Commission would resume the inquiry Monday morning.

Cyrus C. Miller, Fuel Administrator for the Bronx, and Joseph A. Hall, Controller of Peddlers' Supplies, said yesterday that there is not much suffering in the city because of the scarcity of coal. Ninety per cent. of the cases investigated, Mr. Hall said, showed that the complainants have from two to three tons of coal in their cellars and wanted to get more because of a fear that prices might increase.

Mr. Miller said that the Fuel Administrator had obtained 20,000 tons of coal from barges moored in the harbor and of this amount 9,000 tons are going to Manhattan, 7,000 tons to Brooklyn, and 4,000 tons to the Bronx.

Patrick Jones, Superintendent of Supplies of the Board of Education, said that there was coal enough on hand to keep the schools running.

CALLS ON JEWS TO HELP.

Jacob H. Schiff Urges That $5,000,000 Be Raised for War Work.

Jacob H. Schiff, as General Chairman, has issued a circular from 509 Fifth Avenue calling attention to the joint campaign for the Jewish War Sufferers' Fund and the Jewish Board for Welfare Work in the United States Army and Navy, which will continue from Dec. 3 to Dec. 16. It is proposed to raise $5,000,000.

"It was deemed advisable to join these causes," Mr. Schiff says, "rather than have separate campaigns so that there be no waste of time and energy on the part of our splendid corps of workers.

"It is solely from a feeling of duty that in these serious times I must not avoid responsibilities that I have accepted the Chairmanship of the local campaign to obtain funds for both these worthy causes.

"We shall need the combined goodwill and the generosity of New York Jewry to be able to secure the $5,000,000 which we must raise before the end of the campaign.

"Become a soldier in the cause of humanity and start serving today by talking to your Jewish neighbors, to your fellow-workmen, to your business associates, to men with whom you buy and sell. Arouse them to a sense of their Jewish duty and you will have played no small part in this great work."

The Campaign Committee includes Charles L. Bernheimer, Edward C. Blum, Abram I. Elkus, Lee K. Frankel, Daniel Guggenheim, Justice Iriving Lehman, Louis Marshall, Henry Morgenthau, Mortimer L. Schiff, Nathan Straus, Felix M. Warburg, Dr. Stephen S. Wise, Bernard M. Baruch, George Blumenthal, Joseph B. Greenhut, Adolph Lewisohn, James Speyer, Oscar S. Straus, and William J. Wollman.

BRITISH LOSSES FEWER.

Falling Off Despite Cambrai Fight —Week's Total, 30,314.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—British casualties officially reported for the week ending today aggregated 30,314. They were divided as follows:

Killed or Died of Wounds—Officers, 269; men, 5,947; total, 6,216.

Wounded or Missing—Officers, 896; men, 23,202; total, 24,098.

NEW WAR COUNCIL TO UNIFY OUR WORK

Closer Co-ordination on Food, Fuel, Finance, and Shipping Provided in Washington.

SIX OF CABINET INCLUDED

Hoover Board Creates a Division for Buying for Army, Navy, and Other Nations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—President Wilson's advocacy of an Inter-Allied War Council to develop greater unity of action and co-ordination of the war energies of the United States in association with the Entente Powers has been followed by steps to unify the American end of the war machinery.

The Council of National Defense today announced a new and larger "co-ordinating body," which will include six members of the Cabinet—Messrs. Baker, Daniels, Lane, Houston, Redfield, and W. B. Wilson. Finance, shipping, food, and fuel, which are vital factors in the war proposition, are not fully represented in the Council of National Defense. These four lines of attack upon the war problems have been incorporated into the new body. The Defense Council issued the following explanatory statement:

"At a special meeting of the Council of National Defense this morning, action was taken to bring about a closer coordination of the war-making activities of the Government. It was determined to hold a joint weekly conference of the Council of National Defense, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, Chairman Hurley of the Shipping Board, Food Administrator Hoover, Fuel Administrator Garfield, and Chairman Willard, of the War Industries Board of the council. Director Gifford of the council will be present at these meetings as heretofore.

"Since the Council of National Defense, composed of Secretary of War Baker, Secretary of the Navy Daniels, Secretary of the Interior Lane, Secretary of Agriculture Houston, Secretary of Commerce Redfield, and Secretary of Labor Wilson, represents the military aims of the Government, as well as those Federal executive departments dealing most directly with the vital resources of the nation, this larger coordinating body will work toward unification of the machinery necessary in the prosecution of the war."

A preliminary conference of the new "council" was held today. It is understood that President Wilson will attend some of the sessions. A Cabinet member of the Council of National Defense said tonight that the creation of the new body was considered in Administration circles as a step of the highest importance. It was expected to bring about not only unification and co-ordination, but prevent duplication and produce better team work all along the line. It was pointed out, for example, that as national coal administrator, Dr. Garfield might think that coal should be supplied to certain industries on the theory that they were essential, when members of the War Trade Board might think other industries more essential.

The Food Administration announced tonight that it had completed the coordination of purchases for the army, navy, and allied and neutral countries, in food staples, embracing grains, flour, meat products, and canned goods. The purchases have been put under control of a division of co-ordination of purchases.

"The necessity for such an organiation," says the administration announcement "grows out of the Governmental consolidation all over the world of buying of certain commodities into such large orders as to extend beyond the ability of any one manufacturer to supply, and the failure to co-ordinate which may effect price level and supplies to the civil population.

"The army and navy supplies of such commodities are handled by an Inter-Department Committee representing the army, navy, Food Administration and Federal Trade Commission. The allied supplies are handled by the various allied purchasing agencies co-ordinating through the Food Administration, which in this case acts under a delegation of powers, set up by contracts between the United States Treasury and the various allies. The co-ordination of neutral buying is obtained through the conditions laid down in export licenses by the War Trade Board."

DANCE NOT IN HEART, MRS. DESAULLES SAYS

yawned rather noisily during the cross-examination.

District Attorney Weeks turned about and gazed at the juror angrily for a second, but said nothing. When he turned back to Mrs. De Saulles, she said:

"Any one would be tired."

"You mean that I am tiresome?" asked District Attorney Weeks.

"Yes."

"Do you mean that you did not expect me to question you?"

"No, I knew that you would."

"Did you mean to be disrespectful?"

"No."

District Attorney Weeks, although he did not leave any question unasked, was polite and pleasant to the witness. He never raised his voice. He never spoke sarcastically, though he occasionally let a note of incredulity into his questions, especially when he was interrogating Mrs. De Saulles about the period between the time she shot her husband on the night of Aug. 3 and Aug. 13. Her memory, she insisted, was an absolute blank for that time.

One of the letters which the prosecution made a good deal of was written by her on the steamer Calamares in the Summer of 1915, after she had left this country for Chile, following her break with her husband. In it she said:

> Dear Jack: Just before leaving I want to tell you that I am really sorry for having made you so unhappy, and I want you to please forgive me, and realize that if I hurt you it was always unconsciously. I know, though, that no excuse makes it any better; a hurt is a hurt.
>
> But I want you to know that I have always been fond of you and admired you as a man among men, and nothing will ever change that. That I was not able to make a good wife will ever be a regret to me and a source of reproach. Circumstances and people change so much that who knows that some day, if you wanted still, we might be happy. However, I feel as though you do not like me, and will never want to see me again, and, though I justly deserve it, it does hurt, because, as I say, I am very fond of you and shall always be tremendously interested in all your doings, and hope from the bottom of my heart that you will find the happiness which is your due. As long as I have Toodie I shall make a good mother to him, and make him look forward to the time he will see you again. BLANQUITA.

Always Taking the Blame.

Mrs. De Saulles was asked what she meant by saying that she had not been a good wife. She said:

"I was always taking the blame for everything."

She was asked if she meant that she admired him as a man among men.

"It was flattery," she said.

"Do you mean that it was not sincere?"

"In a way it was."

In another letter, written by her after her arrival in Chile, which was introduced by the prosecution to show that she still thought much of De Saulles, in spite of what she had told of suffering at his hands, the young woman sent snapshot pictures of the child to De Saulles and told how well he was. She suggested in this letter, in the Summer of 1915, that the boy often said he wished he could be with his father at the Yale Club. In this letter she asked that the boy should be "inscribed" for school, and he later was registered as a student at an exclusive boys' school at Groton, Conn.

She was questioned at length regarding one of her earlier letters from London on June 29, 1914, in which she addressed her husband as "Dearest, Darling Dinky," and said:

> You have no idea how I enjoyed your perfectly wonderful letters. One of them specially has made me so glad that I look forward immensely to returning to my home which is you. Dinky, you need not be afraid that I shall regret having married you. On the contrary, the more I go out and the more men I meet, the greater is my thankfulness that I belong to you. Dinky, I know I'm horribly selfish to be off by myself having a good time, and to have taken Toodle away from you, but you will forgive me, won't you, and think that I'm very young, and that all my friends in New York were so old, the youngest being dear old Louise, who was a woman of 30 when your wife was only 19. Here I have been mostly with girls and boys of my own age, people to whom life is still a rosy dream, and not so frightfully real and earnest as it becomes to those who have passed their first youth.

The Joy of Living.

> I am playing in the sunshine, forgetful of everything save the joy of living. I feel so young and cheerful, and I have such a wonderful feeling in my heart, that at the slightest sign of weariness, or should any clouds disturb my sunshine, I have you to go back to and your strong arms to hold me. Oh, Dinky, it will be such a wonderful homecoming for me, and I'm so glad I came away, because I've learned to appreciate you and your goodness. I shall be so glad to settle down in our little home, and won't we be happy in it! Dinky, it will be too wonderful!
>
> You wrote an awfully sweet letter to Auntie, but it has upset me frightfully to think you are worried about me—don't you trust me any more? You seem to be afraid suddenly that some one will run away with me. Jack, if you don't believe me loyal, at least give me the credit of having a very good head on my shoulders, and a good insight into characters. I am exceedingly careful as to whose invitations I accept and whose I refuse, and I always know when I can go out with a man.
>
> By the way, I saw Elsie Janis at the Palace. She is scoring an immense success. You will be glad to hear Ostend appeals to me strongly—the bathing, the Casino, lots of dancing, the races, &c. They still gamble there, but that doesn't make any difference to me. I have vague ambitions to run down to Biarritz for one week. There are crowds of people going that I know, and several people have begged me to go. That would be in August, before going back. I shall try to persuade Billy and Maria to go as chaperons, if I have any money left by that time.
>
> Mooney is over in Ireland for her holiday, which lasts two weeks. She does not come back until the 11th of July. I miss her most frightfully, as she did everything for me. I've got a beastly English trained nurse meantime, which I loathe, she's as fat as that old German thing.

Believed in Flattery.

"Did you think all those things about your husband—that he was manly and so forth, when you wrote that letter?" she was asked.

"I thought the best way to keep a husband was to flatter him to death."

Mr. Weeks asked that the answer be stricken out.

"Yes, strike it out," said Justice Manning. "Your answer is not very responsive. Do you wish the jury to understand that you were not sincere in those statements?"

"I flattered him in order to hold him."

"But were you sincere?"

"I think I was."

"Were you unhappy when you wrote that letter?"

"I was."

"Were you unhappy at Ostend where you said you were having such a good time."

"I was bored to death."

After she had got home from her second visit to England in 1914, during which the hotel clerk had asked her which Mrs. De Saulles she was and her husband, according to her story, had practically deserted her, she wrote a cheerful letter and insisted yesterday that she was undergoing intense mental suffering at the time. In this she wrote:

> New York seemed so bright and cheerful coming up, the streets so lighted, and when I got home to my Toodie boy my heart almost burst with joy. He threw his arms around my neck and hugged me and kissed me till it thrilled me so it almost made me cry. It was the first home-coming I ever really had to my own little home. Dinkie, if you had been there I should have died, my happiness would have been so complete. That God-loved child—he is too wonderful—he called Bombom to go to France to bring daddy home. I said daddy couldn't come back. Then he looked so sad and said: "Poor Toodie." He runs to your door and knocks and says: "Daddy, may I come in?" He talks and talks about everything. He won't leave me for a minute and says: "I love you, my little Bombom," and kisses me and hugs me. He is too sweet. He looks splendidly, and Louise says he has been happy and well all the time. I know you long to see him.

Even when she wrote this letter, she said she was unhappy, and Mr. Weeks asked:

"In view of these letters, whose expressions are invariably affectionate, when would you say that you were unhappy with your husband; what period does your unhappiness cover?"

"I can't say. Those things came gradually."

First Letter of the New Year.

The following letter from her, written on Jan. 3, 1915, was then read:

> My Darling Dink: This is the first letter I write this year, and the first wish is for your welfare and your success. I think of you all the time, and am so anxious to know how you are getting on. You are a lazy Dink—you ought to write to your wife.
>
> New Year's night we went to the first Friday evening dance, and we missed you dreadfully. Maurice was feeling splendidly. He came off the wagon for the occasion. Louise and I had every one at our feet, and we danced till we had none left to stand on. Fowler went with us.
>
> Maurice called for those funny punches that you liked—those Southern things that taste like dirty water and look like diluted milk—and we drank them to your health. I tried to drink mine, but all I could do was to taste it. Charlie came to say goodbye this afternoon; he is going out West again. I am enclosing a letter that I opened thinking it was a bill, the envelope looked so formidable. I am sorry. Jack gets more wonderful every day, but he needs his daddy very badly, so as to keep him from being a mollycoddle. He is a beautiful fat lazy thing, and he likes to have me pet and love him. Who does he take after? Please write, Dinkie, even if it's a card. Send us cards with soldiers.
>
> Lots and lots of love and many wishes for a wonderful year, from your little wife, BLANQUITA.

It was this letter that brought out the remark that she did not dance with her heart.

"Did you think at the time when you went to Chile on board the Calamares that your married life was ended?" asked Mr. Weeks.

"I thought it was morally at an end."

"Do you mean that you intended that you would never live together again as man and wife?"

"I thought that if I was leaving him, I wouldn't."

"My duty demands that I ask this question. Is it not a fact that after the birth of your son you did not live with John De Saulles as man and wife?"

"No."

"Did you make that statement to Mrs. Heckscher?"

"I did."

"And it was untrue?"

"She was always trying to pry into my family affairs."

"Did you not tell a woman that you did not care what women De Saulles went with, so long as he left you alone?"

"That is a lie."

Mr. Weeks showed her a letter written by De Saulles to her, and asked her if she remembered it.

"I remember it well," she said.

Thought Letter Rude.

It was read to the jury. This letter, written in 1916, said that he had taken "The Box" for her because he liked the place. In it he wrote:

> For the last four years you have refused to live with me as my wife. You have shown me no consideration whatever, and have been disrespectful and rude. In no way have you been playing the game for my sake, that's sure. If you won't play it for Jack's, I don't know what will appeal to you. In entering the new house I am getting for you, you must turn over a new leaf.

"You remember that letter?"

"Yes, very well. I thought it was very rude."

"Since the birth of your boy, were you a real wife to De Saulles."

"Yes."

Mr. Weeks questioned the defendant about her expenditures on clothes, after reading the following letter, the date of which was not fixed:

> My Own Dar: It was so nice to hear your voice today. It made me think you were not so far away. Did you have a nice trip? I thought of you all the time and tried to imagine how far you were on your way. You will laugh and think I am telling stories. I am not.
>
> Johnel kept us awake all night. He started in at 1 o'clock. The minute the light was turned on he would stop crying. When turned off he would resume a voice that must have been heard a block away from here. He was purely naughty, and he kept that up until 5 in the morning. Imagine. When the room would be lighted he would start to talk and coo and blow kisses.
>
> I do hope everything will turn out well, my Dadda; you of all people deserve it, you have worked and waited so much. I feel so badly spending so absurdly on clothes when you are denying yourself so many things you like. Never mind, Dadda, I won't do it again, and please forgive me. They were so pretty that I stopped not to think. I feel lost without you. Please come back just as soon as you can. Johnel and I kiss you tenderly. BLANQUITA.

But She Liked the Clothes.

She said that she felt that she should not have paid so much for the clothes, but that she liked them very much and was spending her own money very largely. It had been shown on the previous day that De Saulles had obtained nearly $40,000 from her in checks out of her estate of $100,000.

Mr. Weeks questioned the young woman closely as to the events of the period after the shooting of her husband. He referred to accounts in the newspapers two days after the shooting in which her life with De Saulles was told in detail almost as full as it has been brought out on this trial. He said:

"Do you remember the story of your life printed in newspapers of Aug. 6?"

"I saw it afterward."

"Did you give Mr. Uterhart the information from which these accounts were written?"

"I do not remember. I think he got it from Mrs. Iglehart and Mrs. Flint."

"Did you read how he said, 'If I don't get a jury to acquit this girl on the story she has told me, I'll hand my certificate to practice law to the Judge'?"

"I don't remember reading that."

Mr. Weeks began to go in great detail into the financial affairs of the De Saulles household, showing how many of the bills De Saulles had paid. After a great many transactions had been gone into particularly, Justice Manning said:

"I don't see the reason for this. The husband is obligated to support the wife."

Mr. Weeks said the testimony was intended to contradict the contention of the defense that Mrs. De Saulles had paid all the bills. To shorten the matter, Justice Manning asked Mrs. De Saulles if her husband had paid part of the household expenses. She said:

"Yes, he did."

"Most of them?"

"No, I think I paid most of them."

Further questions brought from Mrs. De Saulles the information that they had lived in style in their home in East Seventy-eighth Street with three servants, and that her share of the expense in the parts of 1915 and 1916, when she lived there, was about $12,000.

Mr. Weeks questioned her about a ring given to her by August Heckscher, who had been greatly pleased by the work of De Saulles in finding a purchaser for the Manhattan Hotel property. Mr. Weeks asked her if she had not later turned in the ring to Charlton's for $8,000 and purchased a still more expensive ring. She said:

"When I got the divorce I offered the ring back to Mr. Heckscher, and he refused to accept it."

"Then you kept it?"

"Yes."

"And you later turned it in to Charlton's for a still more expensive ring?"

"Yes."

"How much did that one cost?"

"Twenty thousand dollars," Mrs. De Saulles answered.

The Ring for Mother.

The courtroom gasped Mr. Uterhart said his client had evidently misunderstood the questions. Justice Manning then questioned her and brought out that the ring she had received from Heckscher was worth between $400 and $500; that she had turned it in with other money and property to make up $10,000; that her brother William had added another $10,000; and that they had bought a $20,000 ring for her mother for a birthday present.

Mr. Weeks pursued financial transactions for a while longer and then suddenly asked in a different tone:

"Mrs. De Saulles, when did you first learn that you had killed your husband?"

"When Dr. Wright told me about it in the Mineola Jail."

"Did he tell you that you had shot your husband in the back?"

"Did I?"

"I am asking you."

Mrs. De Saulles said that she did not know it was the fact. She said the doctor had not told her so.

"What part of your husband's body is the last you remember seeing?"

"His eyes."

"Not his back?"

"No."

Mrs. De Saulles was asked who was the first person she saw when she entered "The Box."

"The baby," she said.

"Did you speak to him?"

"I do not remember."

"Did he speak to you?"

"I do not remember."

"You made no effort to run off with him?"

"I do not remember."

"Did your husband come with outstretched hand?"

"I could not possibly say."

Mrs. De Saulles was asked, incident by incident, of the events following the shooting, but each time she answered that she did not remember. Finally the District Attorney said: "Don't you think it is strange that you cannot remember what occurred during those ten days?"

"I think it very strange," she replied.

Mrs. De Saulles could not remember hiring her lawyer, getting bail for her maid, telling the story of her life, or doing any of the innumerable things that occurred in the busy time following the shooting. To her great relief Mrs. De Saulles was finally allowed to leave the stand. The defense then called her son's nurse, Mrs. Ethel Whitesides O'Neill. She said that she remembered, during the second year of the couple's married life, when De Saulles opened a large envelope with a photograph of an actress in it, autographed to him. He handed it to Mrs. De Saulles, she said, with the words:

"Look, Blanca, at this picture this actress has sent me."

"What right has a woman to send you her picture when she knows you are married?" exclaimed Mrs. De Saulles, according to the nurse. She told how Mrs. De Saulles, when she was in South Bethlehem, Penn., after waiting in vain at the railroad station for her husband, who had promised to come, had been greatly distressed.

"I saw her kneel by the bed where the baby was lying," Mrs. O'Neill said, "place both her hands on its breast, and say: 'Oh, Toodles, father doesn't love us!'"

Mrs. O'Neill said that Mrs. De Saulles was plump and rosy when she first knew her. She was asked if Mrs. De Saulles had changed much when she saw her in the Mineola Jail. She said:

"I did not know her. I walked right past her without recognizing her."

"How had she changed?"

"She was very much paler and thinner."

Miss Isabel Flaherty, a graduate nurse, said she had been with Mrs. De Saulles when the child was born. She was asked as to Mrs. De Saulles's physical condition when she knew her. She said:

"She was in very good physical health."

"How about her coloring?"

"She had color in her cheeks all the time and sometimes her color was high. I considered her extremely pretty."

An affidavit was read from Felipe Cortez telling of the automobile accident in which Mrs. De Saulles had suffered the second fracture of the skull.

Mrs. Maude Cowan, a graduate nurse, who attended the baby at the Hotel Gotham after the couple had been divorced, said that she asked for $28 a week but that Mrs. De Saulles insisted on paying $35 a week, saying that the "position was one of terrible responsibility." Mrs. Cowan said that when the boy returned from the father, who had the privilege of being with him three hours a day in the afternoon, he was disagreeable, dirty, defiant, usually had his pockets full of candy, and was sometimes sick afterwards. Miss Amalia Errazuriz, a sister of the defendant, was called as the next witness, but court was adjourned before she reached the stand. The trial will be resumed at 10 o'clock this morning.

GARY SEES MONROE DOCTRINE IN EAST

Japan's Rights in China, He Says, Like Those of United States in Latin America.

JOINT ACTION IS NEEDED

Commission from Tokio Declares China Must Be Saved for Good of the World.

Japan, speaking through her Special Finance Commission to the United States, at a dinner given to its members at the Hotel Plaza last night by American financiers, urged the participation of America in a joint plan for the development of China, with due respect to the terms of the Lansing-Ishii agreement, "for the good of China, of Japan, of American and of the world." The Lansing-Ishii agreement, against which China has filed protest, was defended by spokesmen of both Japanese and American interests. On behalf of the Japanese Mission, Y. Yamashita, General Manager of the Sumitomo Firm of Osaka, said that Japan did not intend the exploitation of China against her wishes, "any more than you here in the United States intend such a thing," but that all that Japan said to China was that she must become prosperous and self-governing.

E. H. Gary, Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, defended the Lansing-Ishii agreement and declared that, in setting forth that because of the propinquity of position Japan had certain interests in China recognized by the United States, no more was said than was set forth in the Monroe Doctrine as the special interests, because of propinquity, of the United States in the Latin-American countries. Judge Gary said that he considered that China had no just cause for protesting the agreement, and that her action in doing so was based upon a misunderstanding.

"I conceive it to be of the highest importance," said Judge Gary, "that all questions between the United States and China, the United States and Japan, and Japan and China, be settled on a fair and permanent basis. China has filed a note of protest against the Lansing-Ishii agreement; and that has created temporarily a stir in official circles.

"I think the protest was based upon a misunderstanding. Not being a party to it, China was not bound by it, and I believe that her action was not so much a formal protest as a reservation of the right of protest if at any future time she wished to do so. The part of the Lansing-Ishii agreement to which China is said to have taken exception is that part which says that the United States recognizes that, due to propinquity, Japan has certain interests in China. Those terms can be no more objectionable than the terms of the Monroe Doctrine as to our interests, because of propinquity, in the Latin-American countries."

Baron Tanetaro Megata, head of the commission, devoted a large part of his address to a discussion of the Chinese problem. He told the American financiers that New York had become the money market of the world, and said:

"I might suggest the possibilities of profitable investment of American capital in China. China, with her huge latent resources, offers a very inviting field for development. The recent exchange of notes between Secretary Lansing and Viscount Ishii makes clear the position of America and Japan toward China, and should put at rest suspicions regarding Japan's attitude toward that nation. I earnestly hope that, when the time seems ripe, plans may be formulated for joint participation of the financial and industrial interests of the United States and Japan in the development of the resources of China. We would rely on your confidence in our honest intention to make such participation a mutual affair, and would invite your capital and your brains to join with ours on a basis of equality and fairness. I cannot help but feel that such joint endeavors would be not only profitable to our two countries, but of the greatest possible good to China. By dealing with her fairly we could be of the utmost assistance to her material prosperity. If China was prosperous industrially and commercially many of her present troubles would disappear."

In outlining the purposes of the mission Baron Megata emphasized the necessity of the establishment in the Far East of more co-operative business enterprises.

"Touching upon this suggestion," he said, "I may say that there are already in Japan a number of successful combinations of American-Japanese capital, technical skill, management, and marketing, conspicuous examples being the General Electric Company with the Tokyo Electric Company, Western Electric Company with the Nippon Electric Company, and the Brady interests of the People's Power and Light Company with the Osaka Gas Company.

"I wish to call attention to the great recent increase of trade between America and Japan. Before the war, exports to the United States amounted annually to about $92,000,000; imports from the United States to about $61,000,000. 1916 exports had risen to $170,000,000, imports from the United States to $102,000,000.

"New York is now the money market of the world. Nations from every quarter of the globe will look to you for financial aid. It is but natural that we of Japan should come to you on a mission such as our present one; we want to know the actual conditions from personal study, and we want to find the means of making Japan's name a familiar one in your international bookkeeping. America, with the far-reaching preparation it has been making in recent months for its active and vigorous military participation in the present world struggle, with its unlimited energy and firm determination at this momentous time, has given Japan a great stimulus toward increased co-operative action for an early termination of the war.

"I wonder if my American friends realize that, at the beginning of the war in Europe, scarcely two years had elapsed since the Imperial succession in Japan. There was no hesitation, and eight days after Germany had violated Belgium Japan declared war. Since that time she has been carrying on her part; she has, practically alone, cleared enemy naval bases from the Pacific and Indian Oceans, and has kept and is keeping those seas open to the commerce of the Allies; she has convoyed Australian contingents from Sydney and Melbourne to the Suez Canal; her destroyers, along with those of the Allies, are guarding the Mediterranean. As to financial aid, we have already furnished 1,100,000,000 yen, in spite of the fact that this amount considerably exceeds the specie which Japan has obtained since the beginning of the war. Many of our merchant vessels have been sold or chartered to allied countries, others have been and are carrying munitions and other supplies for them."

Mr. Yamashita said that Judge Gary had admirably expressed the situation.

"We do not mean to exploit China against her interests," he added. "We have no more designs against China than you here in the United States have. All that we ask of China is to become prosperous and self-governing. It is with these ideas that we ask your co-operation in the development of China. And not only in China. It is an industrial marriage between the United States and Japan, with nothing but love and good feeling between us, that we suggest."

The menu served was meatless and wheatless. The following members of the Japanese Special Finance Commission were the guests of honor: Baron T. Megata, O. Matsumoto, T. Sakaguchi, Baron B. Ito, Dr. S. Hishida, U. Yoneyama, Y. Yamashita, C. Koike, and K. Matsumoto, representative of Yasukawa Mining Company.

WILL USE LESS WOOL IN WOMEN'S CLOTHING

Makers, Designers, and Dealers Accept Suggestions of Federal Economy Board.

More than 350 manufacturers, style creators, and retailers of women's apparel from many sections of the country met yesterday at the Waldorf and formally approved the plan of the Commercial Economy Board of the Council of National Defense, for the elimination of non-essentials in feminine attire. Yesterday's meeting was part of the nationwide program launched by the Government, looking to the conservation of the country's wool, large quantities of which will be required for the men of the army and navy.

The designers, makers, and sellers of wool clothing gave their approval to the recommendations that they effect a minimum saving of 25 per cent. in materials used in all classes of women's, misses', and children's outer garments. It also was the sentiment of the meeting that garment manufacturers should advocate the freer use of other materials, such as silk and cotton. Advertising and exhibitions to popularize the use of other materials were advocated. The trade interests also made it plain that the reforms asked by the Government's Economy Board would be featured in the Spring and Fall styles of 1918.

On motion of Ancell H. Ball of Best & Co., and seconded by Michael Freidsam of B. Altman & Co., a resolution was adopted unanimously indorsing all the recommendations outlined above. While the meeting was called primarily to deal with the future course of the women's garment industry, there were strong intimations that masculine attire would shortly feel the pinch of the wool shortage.

Franklin Simon acted as Chairman, and the principal speaker was Henry S. Dennison of the Commercial Economy Board.

"Our main purpose," Mr. Dennison said, "is to cut out non-essentials. We have no legal authority. It is only through co-operation that we can work, and if we are successful, as we have been so far, we shall want no authority. The United States is in competition with an autocratic Government that makes efficiency its creed, and it is incumbent upon us to meet that efficiency.

"Our question has to do with the Spring and Fall of 1918, and the goods now being made must be used. The reduction of yardage is a vital necessity. The stock of wool on hand today is our starting point. If we have just enough to last us to 1918 that does not interest us in the least; we must figure on the supply for the duration of the war. If there is wool in Australia or elsewhere, it makes no difference to us.

"With the constant stream of troops going abroad we will have to have cargo space to supply those boys, and it is cargo space that means wool to you, and because of necessity you cannot get the Australian or other foreign wool."

MURPHY PAYS CALL ON JUDGE HYLAN

sweep of his hand. "All I want just now is fresh air."

Despite the declaration of Mr. Murphy that none of his visitors was interested in patronage, there was a buzz of excitement as a proposal pending before the State Civil Service Commission, to be considered at a meeting in Albany today, was being discussed. This proposal, if agreed to, would place three Tenement House Superintendents, now on the exempt list and removable by the incoming administration, in the competitive class.

Hylan Protests to Whitman.

This excitement somehow had communicated itself to the Hylan headquarters, where copies of urgent messages from Judge Hylan to Governor Whitman and the three members of the State Civil Service Commission, protesting against the plan, were made public. Judge Hylan said that the messages had not been sent at the instance of Mr. Murphy, but had been dispatched by the Mayor-elect from Brooklyn before he reached his headquarters or saw the Tammany chieftain at all. Here is the message to Governor Whitman:

> Hon. Charles S. Whitman, Albany N. Y.:
>
> There has been an application made to the State Civil Service Commission, which comes up on Nov. 28, placing the Superintendents of the Tenement House Department of New York City in the competitive class by the Municipal Civil Service Commission, and which permits present incumbents to continue without qualifying examination, which is grossly unjust and unfair. I wish you would use your good offices in the matter to the end that the new administration may have an opportunity to officially investigate.

> JOHN F. HYLAN.

This message was sent by the Mayor-elect to the members of the State Civil Service Commission:

> Concerning application coming before your commission placing the Superintendents of the Tenement House Department of New York City in the competitive class, and permitting present incumbents to continue without qualifying examination, is grossly unjust and unfair. I vehemently protest against its adoption, and request an adjournment until the new administration has an opportunity to officially investigate.

Wagner Discusses Municipal Ownership.

Senator Robert F. Wagner, leader of the Democratic minority in the upper house, who has been intrusted with the task of framing the legislation necessary to carry out the municipal ownership program of the incoming administration and to abolish the Water Supply, Court House Site and Parole Boards, had a conference yesterday with Judge Hylan after the latter's talk with the Tammany Chief. Senator Wagner intimated that the municipal ownership legislation to be sought would be merely permissive. When he was asked whether the financial condition of the city would not prevent the new administration from entering upon any public ownership venture, Senator Wagner said:

"No, in my opinion the beginning can be made in a small way. I am not prepared to state just how. If certain funds appropriated for purposes which cannot now be carried out are made available by act of the Board of Estimate for other purposes, it has been calculated that there would be a margin of approximately $30,000,000 before the debt limit is reached. And, of course, any municipal ownership undertaking would yield an income almost at once, so that it could be taken out of the debt limit, thus creating a new margin for future needs."

Senator Wagner intimated that legislation to abolish the pay-as-you-go policy, at least as far as the public schools are concerned, in order to enable the Hylan administration to issue bonds for the construction of new public school buildings, would be submitted to the Legislature.

Thomas W. Churchill, former President of the Board of Education, had a conference with Judge Hylan yesterday regarding a proposal to amend the statute creating a new Board of Education composed of seven non-salaried members, so as to increase the membership either to fourteen or twenty-one, or to provide for a salaried board of seven. It is the opinion of Mr. Churchill that the work of the Board of Education cannot be performed by seven members unless they are paid to devote all their time to its affairs.

Judge Hylan said later that he had reached no conclusion on the subject, but would discuss the matter with members of the Board of District Superintendents when that board has its conference with the new Board of Estimate on Saturday.

KAROLYI SEEKS PARLEYS.

Says He Intends to Get in Touch with British and French.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 27.—Count Michael Karolyi, the Hungarian Opposition leader, has informed the Berne correspondent of Budapest Az Est that the main object of his visit to Berne was to get information regarding the feeling among the enemies of the Central Powers.

"I openly declare," he said, "that I intend to get in touch with the British and French, in order to explain to them that we are neither conquerors nor oppressors."

SAP GERMAN FORCES BY THRUSTS IN WEST

Secretary Baker Sees Effective Method in Relentless Attacks Which Wear Down the Foe.

EXPLAINS DRIVE IN ITALY

Declares Germans Thought to Divert Enough British and French Forces to Extricate Themselves.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—"The week just closed has been one very favorable to the allied arms," says the War Department's official communiqué issued today, reviewing military operations for the week ended Saturday.

"The success of the British offensive in the region of Cambrai and the steady resistance of the Italians in the face of the repeated attacks of the Austro-German forces are two factors which may be considered as correlative elements of one and the same movement.

"It is evident that the enemy took the offensive in Italy hoping thereby to extricate himself from the increasingly difficult position in which his forces find themselves in the west. The German higher command were apparently confident that, in order to save Italy from invasion, such important contingents of French and British troops would be detached from the western front as to render any further allied offensives in this theatre impossible. Though the French and British have both dispatched large contingents to Italy, this has in no way hampered the continuance of their offensive operations.

"It is the wastage of the enemy forces, the slow, yet relentless sapping of his man power by continued and sudden offensive thrusts, which must eventually result in the softening of his line in the west. This is the ultimate objective of the series of intensive offensives so successfully pursued by the Allies during the last six months, and is even more important than the gain of terrain.

"The military situation is dominated by the spectacular success gained by the British forces in their thrust toward Cambrai. By adopting new tactical methods, by evolving a strategy daringly conceived and brilliantly executed, the British forces have been able to record a greater success, when measured by captured terrain, than any hitherto achieved by either belligerent in the same space of time along the western front. While seemingly continuing his offensive engagements in Flanders by an intense artillery bombardment in the sector stretching from Ypres to the North Sea, Field Marshal Haig was able to mask successfully his plans for an offensive thrust between the Scarpe River and St. Quentin.

British Casualties Light.

"The usual preliminary artillery preparation was dispensed with. The elements of surprise so essential to victory played a large part in the successes gained. The British, by a preponderant numerical superiority in men and mobile material, by improvising the skillful tactical manoeuvring of an unusual number of tanks, and by co-ordinating with precision the deployment of cavalry, made use of these two arms to bear the brunt of the encounter. Infantry then was called upon to hold and consolidate the terrain gained. Thus the British were able to record a decided success with very great economy of munitions and slight casualties. Three successive German lines of defense on a frontage of six miles astride the Cambrai-Bapaume road were captured, and the Scheldt Canal in front of Cambrai was crossed.

"During the first day of the battle dull, dry weather greatly facilitated operations, which began at dawn on Nov. 20. Later bad weather set in, and torrential rains, accompanied by flurries of snow, held up the attack. The capture of the village of Fontaine Notre Dame, two and three-quarters miles west of Cambrai, marks the present limit of the advance. The British forces, while still pressing forward, are meeting with increased resistance. Severe fighting continues, and we may expect desperate attempts on the part of the enemy not merely to prevent any further British advance, but to regain, if possible, some of the lost ground.

"Cambrai, the centre of very important rail, road, and canal lines of communication, now comes under the immediate fire of British field guns, while the large calibre high velocity and naval guns can readily search out the country side for miles in the rear, harassing hostile territory and rendering the continued tenure of the city by the enemy difficult. To the right and left of the scene of the major operations on a front extending approximately to thirty-two miles the attacking forces have penetrated various strong points.

"The number of prisoners enumerated hitherto is over ten thousand, which exceeds the total British casualties.

"While the battle of Cambrai has resulted in so rapid and sweeping an advantage for the British forces, apparently without extensive preliminary preparation, it must not be forgotten that it was only made possible by the continued pounding of the German lines in Flanders. In the meantime the British have not ceased to keep the enemy busy in the Ypres salient, and gains of terrain are noted to the southeast.

Successful Coup by French.

"Along the front held by the French forces the latter have achieved a successful coup de main south of Juvrincourt, in Champagne, resulting in the capture of some elements of enemy trenches and the taking of numerous prisoners. Lively artillery duels took place north of the Chemin des Dames and in the Verdun sector, where, as for several weeks past, the enemy continued to bombard the French positions in Chaume Wood.

"In the sector where our troops are training increased artillery activity is noted. Small detachments, while on patrol duty, have gained some useful experience.

"The Italian armies, now completing their reorganization, have been able to withstand the assaults of the numerically superior forces of the Austro-German divisions engaged against them. They have hitherto prevented any further invasion of the Italian plain. The enemy is continuing his efforts to break through. The line of the Piave has held firm. Along the lower Piave, where hostile forces gained a temporary foothold on the right bank of the river, they were driven off with great loss, thus rendering the Italian positions more secure.

"Along the plateau of the Sette Communi heavy fighting is going on. In the mountain regions, between the headwaters of the Brenta and the Piave, defensive operations have been well conducted, and the enemy has been unable to make any further progress. Strategic reserves, strengthened by allied contingents, have been constituted. The morale of the Italian forces is improving daily, and, while the situation is not wholly free from critical aspects, the defensive measures appear adequate to meet the situation.

"In Palestine the British forces under General Allenby are advancing rapidly on Jerusalem. They have now reached a point on the Ramaleh road approximately seven miles west of the city, while another force is bearing down from the north."

MANY LARGE GIFTS TO FUSION FUND

ALBANY, Nov. 27.—The election expense statement of the New York Publicity Committee, which advocated the election of the Fusion ticket in the New York Mayoralty campaign, filed today with the Secretary of State, showed receipts of $422,795 and disbursements of $415,165. According to the statement, however, loans from William Hamlin Childs, credited as receipts, left a deficit of $46,870.

Among the larger contributors were George F. Baker, $30,000; A. C. James, F. C. Converse, Henry C. Frick, W. R. Thompson, $25,000; T. C. du Pont, $22,500; Ogden Mills, Robert W. Goelet, George W. Perkins, $20,000; J. D. Rockefeller, $15,000; Charles H. Sabin, $12,500; William C. Morse, J. P. Morgan, William P. Hamilton, $10,000; J. D. Rockefeller, Jr., C. H. Mackay, $5,000.

The New York City and County Public Welfare Committee, which advocated the election of the Fusion ticket, reported receipts of $57,664 and expenditures of $57,590. The contributors included Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, $10,000; E. M. Anderson, $5,000; Helen Hartley Jenkins, $4,000; J. P. Morgan, F. W. Lamont, D. W. Morrow, Thomas Cochran, $2,500; Jacob H. Schiff, George F. Baker, Adolph Lewisohn, Mrs. E. M. Anderson, $1,000.

Election expense statements of the State Women Suffrage Party, showing expenditures of $279,174, and of the State party opposed to woman suffrage, showing receipts and disbursements of $25,931, were filed with the Secretary of State today. The suffrage party statement recorded receipts of $304,439. Consequently, there was an apparent balance of more than $25,000. This was offset, however, by the statement that outstanding bills totaling $90,000 for billboard and other advertising purposes, remained unpaid. The largest contributor was Mrs. Imogene Thomas, $5,500. Other contributions included: Mrs. Thomas W. Lamont, $2,500; John J. Lapham, $2,000; Herbert Parsons and Conservation Commissioner George D. Pratt, $1,000.

ATTACK DISLOYALTY AT TEACHERS' RALLY

CHEER ROOSEVELT LETTER

Colonel Approves Efforts to Dismiss All from Schools Who Refuse to Sign Loyalty Pledge.

The beginning of an active campaign to eradicate disloyalty from the schools of New York drew 2,000 teachers last night to the De Witt Clinton High School, where they heard patriotic addresses by William G. Willcox, President of the Board of Education; Dr. William T. Hornaday, Dr. C. Ward Crampton, Thomas W. Churchill and Cleveland Moffett, who denounced disloyal teachers in unmeasured terms. Attacks on disloyalists, pacifists and alien Socialists were greeted with applause. When Dr. Hornaday read a letter from Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, approving the effort to obtain the dismissal of all teachers who refuse to sign the loyalty pledge, the audience cheered loudly.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the American Defense Society and brought together teachers from all parts of the city who desired to express their patriotism.

Cleveland Moffett declared that he had been informed that of the 18,000 teachers in the school system there are about 1,000 whose loyalty is not 100 per cent pure. He told of a teacher who, he said he had been informed, had made numerous disloyal statements both before and after this country entered the war.

"This teacher boasted to a man I can name that when he heard the Lusitania had been sunk he went out and got drunk to celebrate the German victory," said Mr. Moffett. The speaker also said he received a letter from a school teacher saying that twenty-seven teachers in a certain unnamed school heard the Principal of the school make disloyal statements in a conference.

"I tell you that before we get through with these disloyal teachers there is going to be use for a special, well lighted and well ventilated concentration camp," asserted Mr. Moffett.

Dr. Hornaday said that to his mind the 750,000 school children are in great danger.

"I feel as if they were threatened by a den of rattlesnakes," he said. "And I want to tell you why I feel that way. I feel that the ideas of alien Socialism instilled into the mind of an impressionable boy or girl at the wrong time for it to find permanent lodgment there is worse for the child than being bitten by a rattlesnake. A child bitten by a poisonous snake can be cured, but you put into the mind of a boy a set of totally wrong and pernicious ideas and keep them there until he grows up to manhood, and the chances are ten to one they will stay with him.

"The real dyed-in-the-wool Socialist is never happy. He is always knocking on something. Wherever he is, he is an iconoclast, a smasher of idols. Just now it happens to be the pet idea to curse the rich, as they are called, and the capitalists, and to say that this is a capitalists' war, which is an absolute falsehood. It is a war of the poor man much more than it is the war of the rich man."

Dr. Hornaday declared that the people of America have been far too lenient with the alien Socialist, and predicted that four years from now, "the Republicans and the Democrats of New York will have to bury all their hatchets and unite to beat the Socialists."

Mr. Hornaday attacked Henry R. Linville, President of the Teachers' Union, who, he said, sent to the Board of Education a document signed by eighty-six teachers, declining to sign a loyalty pledge.

The following letter from Colonel Roosevelt was then read by the speaker:

Sagamore Hill, Nov. 25, 1917.

Dear Mr. Hornady: I heartily approve the effort to secure the dismissal of all teachers who refuse to sign the loyalty pledge, or who in any way have shown the slightest symptoms of disloyalty to this nation, or of sympathy with Germany and the other foes of this nation at this time. A public school teacher should stand in loyalty and Americanism precisely where we expect an officer of the army or navy to stand, and should be held to an equally rigid accountability for the slightest symptom of disloyalty, or of failure in thoroughgoing Americanism. Sincerely yours,

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Mr. Willcox's arraignment of disloyalists was received with applause. "There is no room for disloyalty here," he declared. "There is no room for jealous regard of individual rights and individual opinions. The great cause of human liberty and justice must sweep all before it and unite all our efforts, all our sacrifice and devotion in loyalty to humanity, loyalty and justice, loyalty to the fight, and loyalty to God. There can be no room for neutrality today."

Mr. Churchill said he took serious exception to those who talked of a large number of disloyal teachers in the school system unless those who uttered the charges could prove them.

CONFESSION MAY CLEAR 23 FEUD MURDERS

Gangster Admits Part in Killings and Implicates Groups in Manhattan and Brooklyn.

As a result of an Italian gangster's desire for revenge against members of his old group, who refused to befriend him in his hour of need, the District Attorneys' offices here and in Brooklyn have come into possession of information which, it is said, will lead to clearing up twenty-three murder mysteries and a number of other crimes which have been committed in New York, Brooklyn, Yonkers, and Philadelphia. The information was divulged in a confession made yesterday by Ralph Daniello, known as Ralph the Barber.

Daniello, who is under indictment by a Kings County Grand Jury for a murder a year ago last May, was brought here from Reno, Nev., several weeks ago by Brooklyn detectives. He came back with one thought in his mind—to get revenge on his old comrades.

According to the story Daniello told in the presence of Assistant District Attorney Ranaud, representing Mr. Swann, and Assistant District Attorney Warbasse, representing the Kings County office, he was a member of a gang which established a reign of terror in Brooklyn, and which through affiliations with gangs in New York and Philadelphia was even able to reach out and strike its enemies far off.

District Attorney Lewis, in commenting on the confession, characterized it as one of the most remarkable in the history of the police here. It is a revelation unequaled, he declared, in conditions in the underworld. In May, 1917, Daniello disappeared, shortly after a trial which found him innocent of the charge of robbery and abduction. About two months later, the police obtained evidence connecting Daniello with the murder of Louis Demaro, shot and killed May 7, in front of 123 Navy Street, Brooklyn. Then began a country-wide search for Daniello.

In the meanwhile the hunted man was in Reno. He was without funds, so he wrote to his comrades in Brooklyn, the members of the gang known as the Neopolitans. There was no response. Again he wrote and again there was no response. Then Daniello, not yet ready to believe his friends had forgotten him, wrote once more, this time begging help for his wife and his four children in Italy. When a commmunication from his wife made known to him the fact that the gang was deaf to appeals, he grew angry. In an incautious letter which was obtained by the police he made threats. Through it two Brooklyn officers who knew Daniello went to Reno and found Daniello. Once in the Raymond Street Jail in Brooklyn, it was not a hard matter to persuade him to talk. He made such startling disclosures that the Manhattan District Attorney was notified and Daniello was brought across the bridge. There he made a full confession.

According to Daniello, the "Neapolitans," together with a gang in Manhattan known on the lower east side as the "Sicilians," had combined for the purpose of controlling certain forms of gambling in the two boroughs. The men who were murdered by the gangs, he declared, were those who had incurred the wrath of proprietors of the gambling houses.

London Tailored Overcoats

At Saks

ACCORDING to the English a real Londoner is he who happens to be born within hearing of the chimes of Bow Bells. If this be so, these London-made overcoats are English to the very core, for they were all tailored within "earshot" of Bow Bells by London's best known tailors.

¶ Large, roomy, typically English models, reflecting the earmarks of Piccadilly and Regent Street, and exhibiting a wealth of novel treatment in pockets, belts and cuffs.

¶ The woolens are of that soft, warmth-without-weight variety which come only from the best of British mills, in Heathers, Tans, Greens, Browns and novelty effects that are a treat in perfect color harmony.

ARMY ORDERED TO AID MRS. HUMISTON

Officer Is Detailed to Co-operate in Her Investigations of Camp Surroundings.

DENIES DETECTIVES 'SPIED'

Woman Lawyer Says She Sent Couple to Learn Truth of Reports Concerning the Hotel at Upton.

Mrs. Grace Humiston, whose agents, James C. Atkins and the so-called Adeline Francis, were examined at Camp Upton last Sunday night after they had been found in a hotel where, they said, they were investigating allegations of the conditions at the camp, declared yesterday that in bringing out the facts regarding conditions around the camps, she was acting in co-operation with the commanding officer of the Department of the East on Governors Island. She said that the War Department, shortly after her public statements against the morals of some of the men in the military camps, had ordered Governors Island to co-operate with her in an effort to learn the truth.

"I sent Mr. Atkins and Miss Francis to Camp Upton to learn certain things I had been told concerning conditions at the hotel inside the camp lines not far from the division headquarters," Mrs. Humiston declared. "The testimoney of my agents has been given in full to officers representing the commanding officer of the Department of the East."

Mrs. Humiston declared she had not wished to give out a word regarding her investigations to the newspapers at present, but in view of statements made concerning the arrest of Atkins and his companion at Camp Upton she thought that in fairness to all concerned she felt a clear exposition of the facts in the case should be made at once.

Some of the facts which the affidavits of both Atkins, who was formerly a soldier under Major Gen. Bell in the Philippines, and Miss Francis, whose real name Mrs. Humiston has asked to be withheld, show that the couple went to the hotel inside the camp lines. They had no baggage. Miss Francis, who says she is 16 years old, was passed readily as the wife of the middle-aged Atkins. Atkins, in his affidavit, declares that the clerk asked him when he entered the hotel if the woman accompanying him was his wife. They went to a room, and were arrested later on the report which Sergeant Klein had made regarding their true identity.

In answering the questions of army officers from Governors Island, it is said the couple were positive that when arrested they were told they were being taken because they "were agents of Mrs. Humiston sent to spy on the camp." They were released after being questioned at headquarters, and came to New York the following morning.

"This is the fifth investigation where I have co-operated with officers from Governors Island," said Mrs. Humiston yesterday. "Governors Island was instructed by the War Department to help me investigate conditions around military camps, especially Camp Upton, as a direct result of charges which Mr. Fosdick, Chairman of the Committee on Morals for Military Camps, made against me, and after Secretary of War Baker had stated he did not regard my statements as charges against the army. I have co-operated in investigations with three different army officers from Governors Island already.

"The facts concerning the visit of Atkins and Miss Francis to the hotel would not have been given out by me to the press until the close of the investigation begun yesterday by army officers, except for the report of the affair which came from the camp. The report alleged that detectives from my office had attempted to spy on the camp, and had been arrested.

Investigation of Report.

"That is not true. No detective from my office went to the camp last Sunday night. But persons who had volunteered to get the truth as to certain alleged conditions at Camp Upton did go. They went to investigate the report that it was possible for men to take young girls to the hotel within the camp lines. The report I had was that if the girl looked 18 the man registered her as his wife; if she looked under that age they registered as brother and sister. The investigation succeeded in establishing the proof of the report.

"This man Atkins and the girl represented themselves as man and wife. They had no baggage, and were assigned to a room and no questions asked. Had it not been for the fact that they were recognized by a soldier who met Miss Francis while at a dance I gave a week ago, they would have been permitted to remain over night.

"Atkins went there solely because he considered it a duty and without compensation. He formerly was a soldier in the army. Some time ago he told me that he had a young daughter, and was interested in my work of saving young women. He told me conditions he knew of in Camp Upton which he said he had seen when he worked there as a carpenter. He was not the one who told me of the death of the two young girls at Upton. I had already gathered certain information which Mr. Atkins verified, and then he offered to prove that immoral conditions existed in the hotel at Camp Upton.

"'If you will select a girl you can trust and whom you will trust to me to take down to Camp Upton,' he said, 'I will go to the hotel, register as man and wife, and show you that it can be done.'

"I did not decide on a girl until half an hour before train time, then I called Miss Francis. Mr. Atkins had only seen Miss Francis once, and then had not talked to her. I told Miss Francis to go to Camp Upton with him, to allow him to register her as his wife, to take note of the room they were assigned to, and then to return at once to New York, where I would meet her. I told her not to say that she came from me, and that is why she evaded the questions asked.

"Atkins and Miss Francis went to the hotel. There, Mr. Atkins, as he says in his affidavit, was hesitating whether he should register her as his sister or his wife, when the clerk said, 'You want a room for yourself and your wife.'

Inquired for Taxicab.

"They went upstairs after conversing, in the course of which the clerk made the statement that 'this is a camp, not a hotel.' Afterward they came down again and inquired for a taxicab to take them back to New York. They had been recognized in the meantime by Sergeant Klein of the Cooks' and Bakers' Division, who reported them. When they were told that there was no other train, that they would have to hire a machine to go to another station where they could catch a late train, they went up to the room to discuss matters, and it was then they were arrested.

"When the military police came in Atkins asked the reasons for the arrest. He was told that 'You are spies for Mrs. Humiston sent to spy on the camp.' Then they were taken separately to headquarters, where a Lieutenant Brown and a Major questioned them. At no time did they see or talk to General Bell.

"They were released after being questioned. Miss Francis was taken back to the hotel where she was allowed to register under her own name and was given a room next to the one she and Mr. Atkins had taken. The next morning both of them returned to New York where they have told their story to me and to officers from Governors Island."

Mrs. Humiston said she had known the Francis girl for about two weeks and she was taking care of her.

At Camp Upton last night Mrs. Humiston's charges were characterized as but a part of the allegations she has been making against the soldiers for several weeks. It was pointed out that at the hotel it was a simple matter for persons without baggage to be given a room without being questioned. It was pointed out that frequently many visitors to the camp had missed their trains and it was necessary to seek accommodations for the night at the hotel.

SIX NEW SHIPS TURNED OUT.

Vessels Were Seized in Course of Construction and Are Now Complete

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Completion of six commandeered merchant ships during the week ended Nov. 24 was announced today by the Shipping Board. These vessels were seized by the Government on the ways on Sept. 4, when it took over all merchant ships then building. The place of building and the tonnages are given as follows:

At Chicago, one ship of 3,100 tons; at Duluth, one of 3,000 tons; at Ecorse, Mich., one of 4,000; at Detroit, one of 3,100; at Cleveland, one of 3,100, and at Manitowoc, Wis., one of 3,500 tons.

This brings the total of commandeered ships completed to date to 34, of an aggregate of 179,399 tons.

KING JURY SELECTED, JUDGE RUSHES TRIAL

Testimony in North Carolina Case to Begin Today—Victim's Mother to be Witness.

Special to The New York Times.

CONCORD, N. C., Nov. 27.—The first surprise in the progress of the trial of Gaston B. Means, under indictment charged with the murder of Mrs. Maude A. King in Cabarrus County last August, came with the unexpected completion of the jury a little before 7 o'clock tonight, after a court session of eight hours, and just as the list of names in the jury box was about to be exhausted.

Further indication that the trial is to be rushed as rapidly as Judge E. B. Cline of the Superior Court feels is consistent with justice was shown this afternoon when he informed E. C. Cansler, leading counsel for the defense, that there would be no Thanksgiving recess and that night sessions might be held; that he was due to convene a term of his court at Asheboro next Monday and would, if possible, complete the Means trial this week. This, however, is regarded as extremely doubtful if all the alienists and expert witnesses now present are placed on the stand.

The jury was selected from 144 names drawn from a hat, and but one remained when the last talesman, J. H. Reader, was passed. Most of the jurors are young men, but all are married except one. Eight are farmers, three are cotton-mill men, and one, J. Frank Goodman, is a member of the Board of County Commissioners.

In the process of selecting the jury, it developed that sixty-one of the men examined were prepared to say under oath that they had formed and expressed an opinion in the case; forty-eight of them were of the opinion, and had so stated, that Means was not guilty of the crime charged, and the remaining thirteen held the opposite view. This ratio of approximately four to one is said to represent the public opinion of the entire county.

Among the witnesses who have already arrived or are expected in the morning are the following: William C. Miller of the Northern Trust Company, William B. Gubbins, former private secretary to James C. King; Dr. William H. Burmeister, Coroner's physician of Chicago; A. L. Johnson, Secretary of the Merchants' Loan and Trust Company; William Rockefeller, manager of the Chicago Beach Hotel; Hugh M. Garretson, assistant cashier of the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank; James I. Ewing, handwriting expert, and A. B. Melville, an attorney. All those named are from Chicago.

Mrs. Anna Robinson, the aged mother of Mrs. King, did not appear today, but her attorney, P. C. McDuffy, who has represented her in civil actions and is now appearing with counsel for the prosecution, said that she would testify. Mrs. Mary C. Melvin, sister of Mrs. King, may testify in Means's behalf. In one of the civil actions brought against Means by Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Melvin appeared with Means and asked the court to make her a party to the suit. Again, she asked to have the court dissolve one of the civil actions her mother brought against Means.

The testimony of C. B. Ambrose of the Bureau of Investigation of the Federal Department of Justice may furnish a surprise at the trial. The nature of his testimony has not been disclosed.

The taking of testimony will begin at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Men, Snuggle Up to This Bang-Up Underwear—It's a Downright Bargain

YOU can bet your last cent that Hanes Winter Weight Underwear will give you extra value for your money. No frills, no fol-de-rols—just downright value and a heaping lot of it, too.

Hanes is form-fitting, elastic and comfortable. The fleecy-warm cotton is mighty fine protection from the cold—and it feels mighty good, too. Pre-shrinking keeps it true to size and shape.

And just read about those special features over there in the illustration. No more high-priced underwear for the man who sees Hanes. It's just the right price for everybody and the underwear everyone should wear.

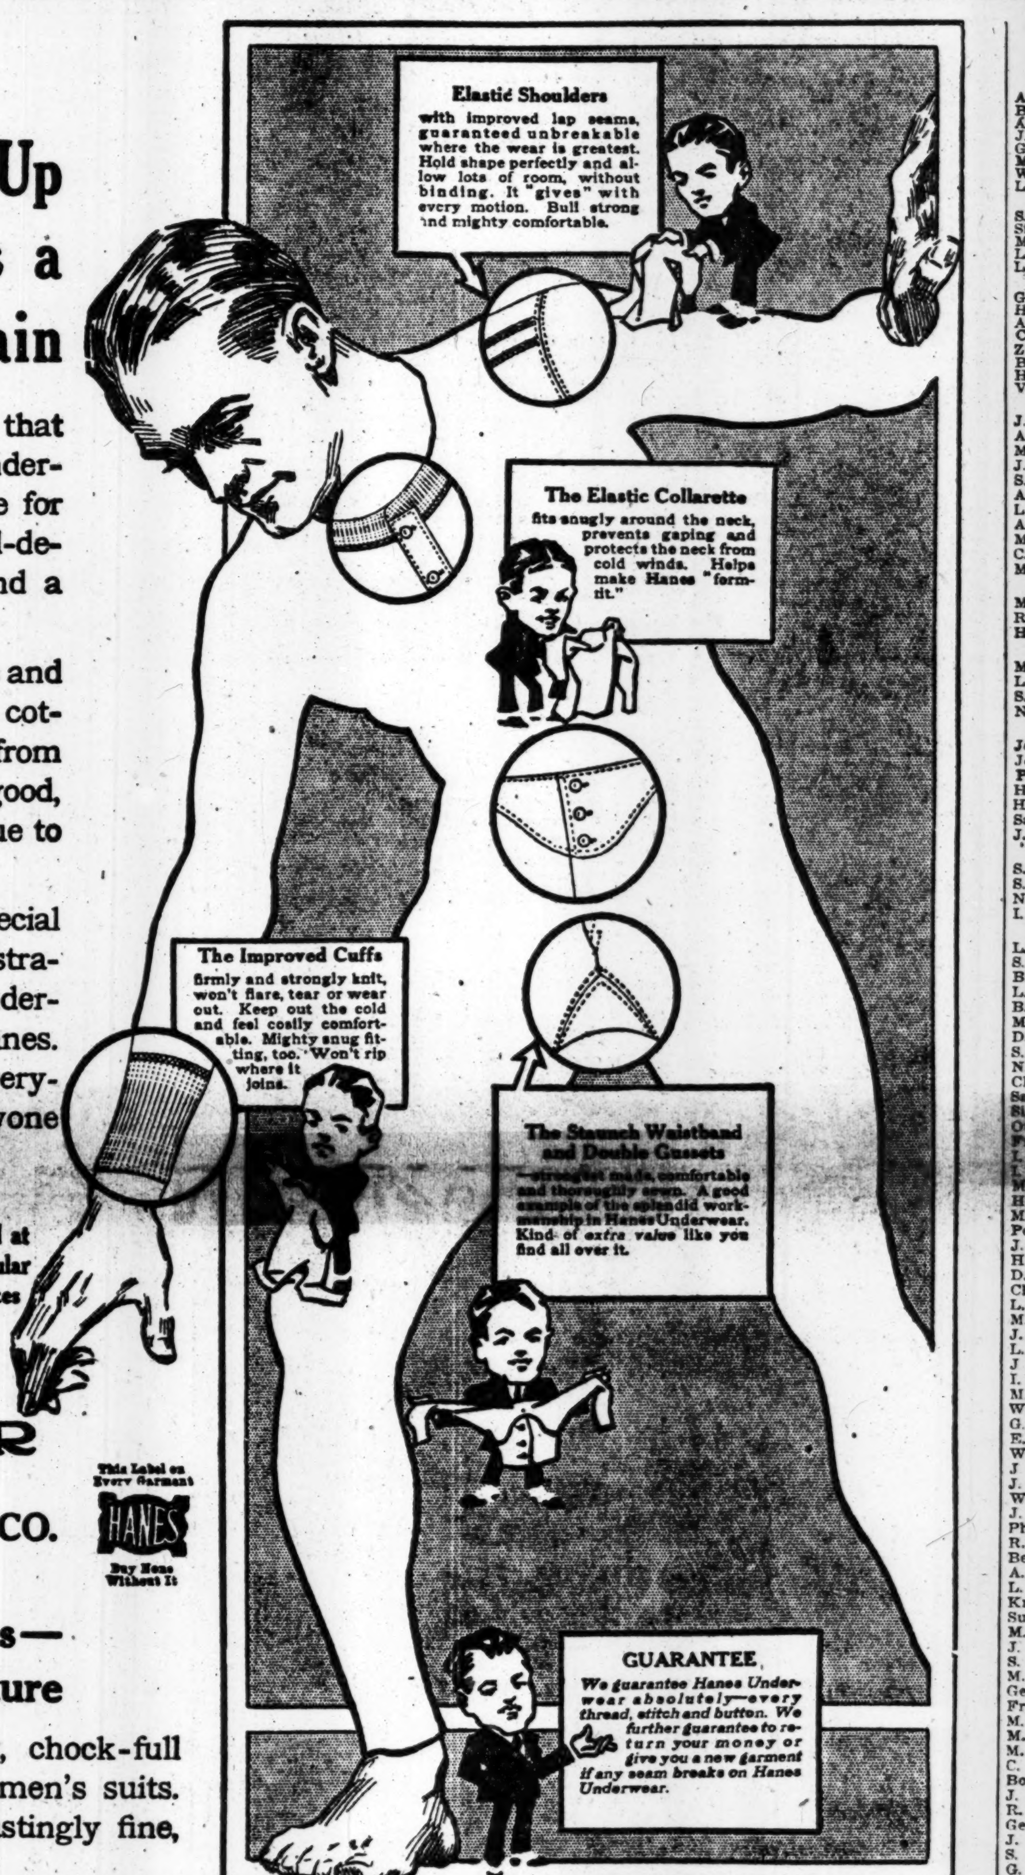
Mothers, Fathers—Get This Big Feature

A jam-up boy's union suit, chock-full of all the big features on the men's suits. Downy-soft, warm and everlastingly fine, its value can't be duplicated.



Elastic Shoulders with improved lap seams, guaranteed unbreakable where the wear is greatest. Hold shape perfectly and allow lots of room, without binding. It "gives" with every motion. Built strong and mighty comfortable.

The Elastic Collarette fits snugly around the neck, prevents gaping and protects the neck from cold winds. Helps make Hanes "form-fit."

The Improved Cuffs firmly and strongly knit, won't flare, tear or wear out. Keep out the cold and feel costly comfortable. Mighty snug fitting, too. Won't rip where it joins.

The Staunch Waistband and Double Gussets —strongest made, comfortable and thoroughly sewn. A good example of the splendid workmanship in Hanes Underwear. Kind of extra value like you find all over it.

GUARANTEE
We guarantee Hanes Underwear absolutely—every thread, stitch and button. We further guarantee to return your money or give you a new garment if any seam breaks on Hanes Underwear.

OVER $600,000,000 IN ALIEN PROPERTY

Estimates Received Indicate the Total to be Taken May Reach a Billion.

MORITZ ROSENTHAL NAMED

Appointed General Counsel to Custodian—F. P. Garvan Is Among Others Appointed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Estimates, based on scattering returns received from corporations, banks, and warehouses, indicate that the money and property in this country belonging to Germans and subject to sequestration by A. Mitchell Palmer, as Alien Property Custodian, will exceed $600,000,000, and may approach a billion. Under the terms of the law reports of property and money held by German citizens living abroad must be reported to the Alien Property Custodian by Dec. 5, after which time the property and money will be taken over by the Government.

Mr. Palmer has completely organized his office to take charge of the enormous business which will flow through it in the next year. At present there are 250 persons employed, and the number will be increased to 400 by the middle of December.

Some of the important appointments were announced today. Many of the men holding responsible places, especially in the legal departments, are serving without pay.

Moritz Rosenthal of New York was appointed general counsel today. Mr. Rosenthal was for many years a member of the Chicago bar. He was counsel for the packers in the immunity case, and also counsel for the Standard Oil Company in the $29,000,000 fine case, and in the equity suit brought by the Government to dissolve that company. He moved to New York several years ago to become a partner of the banking firm of Ladenburg, Thalman & Co. He will be in charge of the legal department of the Alien Property Custodian, and will have associated with him a number of lawyers from various parts of the country who have volunteered their services.

Among the lawyers already working with Mr. Rosenthal are James E. MacCloskey, Jr., of Pittsburgh, Penn., general counsel for the Harbison-Walker Refractories Company and other Pittsburgh corporations, and W. C. Coleman of Baltimore, Md.

Francis P. Garvan of New York is named Director of the Bureau of Investigation. Mr. Garvan was Assistant District Attorney of New York under District Attorney Philbin, and for eight years was chief of the Homicide, Insurance, and Business Division under District Attorney Jerome. He tried the Patrick and Molineaux cases. He will supervise the investigation leading to the discovery of al lenemy property in this country, and in conjunction with the Department of Justice will have charge of the prosecution of offenders under the Trading with the Enemy act.

Other appointments are:

Scott, Robert T., attorney, formerly with Senator Underwood, secretary to the Alien Property Custodian.
Peter, Julius C., of Detroit, assistant to President of Detroit Trust Company, secretary to Director, Bureau of Trusts.
Stearns, Robert B., with J. J. Danzig & Co., New York, bankers and brokers, acting chief, Division of Pledged Property.
Krauthoff, Edwin A., attorney, of Kansas City, Mo., acting chief, Division of Court and Private Trusts.
Wiener, Edward, attorney, of Philadelphia, assisting in Division of Court and Private Trusts.
Smith, Howard W., attorney, of Alexandria, Va., assisting in Division of Court and Private Trusts.
King, J. Berry, attorney, of Muskogee, Ala., assisting, Division of Corporations.
Bower, Joseph A., Vice President Liberty National Bank, New York, President, manager of General Business Department.
Fitzpatrick, W. G., attorney, of Detroit, assisting in Bureau of Investigation.
Morgan, H. M., of St. Louis, Mo., Secretary of American Trust Company, manager of Mortgage Department.
Shrigler, L. H., with Stintson & Co., Philadelphia, bankers and brokers, assisting in Division of Individual Property.
McClintock, C. S., attorney, of Wilkes-Barre, Penn., asisting in Division of Corporations.
Green, H. D., who is working on an organization of foreign and insular affairs, having L. M. Snowden as his assistant.
Cooper, Leon F., assisting Judge Brodhead, is an attorney in Washington.
Bensinger, Allan R.; R. M. Small, and R. O. Rodos, assisting the chief, Division of Insurance.

NEW MAIL REGULATIONS.

Government Soon to Issue Rules Governing Foreign Communications.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Regulations to govern the transmission to or from the United States of communications not in the regular course of the mails will be issued within a few days under the Trading with the Enemy act.

Ship and consignees' mail consisting of bills of lading and similar business documents probably will not be forbidden when destined to neutral countries, and considerable latitude will be allowed commercial travelers and other representatives of business concerns to carry in luggage letters relating strictly to their business. Most other communications will be forced into mail channels to be subjected to censorship. Communications to enemy or ally of enemy countries are prohibited except by license of the War Trade Board.

The customs division of the Treasury will have charge of the administration of the regulations.

BIG ARMY HOSPITAL FOR STATEN ISLAND

Fox Hills to be the Site of Receiving Station for Men Wounded in France.

CAPACITY 1,500 TO 2,500

Convalescents to be Distributed Thence to Rehabilitation Depots, General Gorgas Explains.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Surgeon Gen. Gorgas announced tonight the selection of Fox Hills, Staten Island, N. Y., as the site of a military receiving hospital from which wounded American soldiers will be distributed to the reconstruction and rehabilitation hospitals which are soon to be established.

The Staten Island institution, which will have a capacity of from 1,500 to 2,500 beds, will be situated on an elevation overlooking the entrance to New York Harbor, near enough to the Quarantine Station to make possible the transfer of the wounded with a minimum of delay.

"The establishment of the receiving hospital," said the Surgeon General's statement, "marks the beginning of a comprehensive plan that is being worked out for the reconstruction and rehabilitation of our soldiers who are disabled in the line of duty. The Staten Island hospital will be used only for purposes of distribution. As the men are received there, they will undergo thorough physical and mental examinations by medical officers, a complete history will be made of each case, and requirements of the individual cases studied. Then, as soon as this is completed, the man will be transferred to a general or special treatment hospital.

"During his stay in the hospital the soldier will be given light work, which will aid in his convalescence, and, where necessary because of his disability, he will be given special training for new occupations, under the direction of vocational experts. He will be fitted for a trade for which he is peculiarly adapted, and at the time of his discharge it will be the duty of the Government to assist him in returning to his proper place in industry, and of various civil organizations further to supervise him until he has been completely rehabilitated—that is, placed once more on a firm economic foundation in society.

"The general and special hospitals are now being selected in various parts of the United States. So far as possible, the soldiers will be sent to places near their own homes. As the additional sites are decided upon they will be announced by the Surgeon General."

DON'T SAY UNDERWEAR SAY MUNSINGWEAR

PERFECT FITTING MUNSING WEAR UNION SUITS

LET MUNSINGWEAR COVER YOU WITH SATISFACTION

Your surprise at the moderate price of Munsingwear increases as time proves its splendid wearing qualities.

The Satisfaction Lasts

You need a strong, quiet friend, if you ever feel like shouting this:—

"Great Scott, how can a man do any thinking with such infernal noise all 'round him!" Your nerves snap—that's all. The everlasting, piercing click, click, click of typewriters makes your nerves snap quicker than a Black Tom explosion; the explosion gives you a minute's shock—but the vicious click of typewriters goes ever on and on and on.

You need the "Noiseless"—whether for your secretary's desk or for a staff of stenographers in the open office. The "Noiseless" doesn't simply lessen noise—it kills noise. It actually writes in a whisper.

You'll appreciate it at once: the "Noiseless" in full, swift action—and not a click to be heard. Right at your elbow it's going top-speed ahead—and you can confer in subdued tones, you can hear and speak over the 'phone—you can think.

Get a demonstration in your own office today. Or let us send you our illustrated catalog and a really impressive list of users.

Stenographers: Let us send you "First-hand Experiences" and other literature which has been prepared specially for you.

Put Your Motoring on a War Basis With the Franklin Car

SOME people think they can solve the thrift question by talking about it. The War situation is actual and real. Every man feels it is his duty to help the country, but he tells you what the Government ought to do instead of taking the first practical step—meeting the plain facts in the things close at hand; things he buys and uses and pays to maintain.

Gasoline and rubber are prime necessities of War. Yet many a car owner who talks thrift is actually destroying fifty percent more of these commodities than his motoring should require.

War Time Activity Demands Economy in Motor Car Operation

Ask the man who gets eight, ten or twelve miles to the gallon of gasoline and five or six thousand miles to the set of tires. He probably has the feeling—almost the conviction—that he can do better with the Franklin, but it is easier to close his eyes to the facts and wonder whether the Franklin's record for gasoline and tire saving is really and actually true.

He does not investigate—he takes refuge in a general doubt.

Another way he has of side stepping the issue is to argue that in these days it is better economy to hang on to his old car. He knows how wasteful it is to run, yet he overlooks the fact that the Franklin saving in gasoline, tires and oil would more than carry his investment in a Franklin Car. Perhaps he says he will meet conditions by using his car less. He forgets that while the average car is standing idle its depreciation offsets any reduction in running expense he could make.

He ought to see that it is true conservation for him to put his motoring on a War basis now; clean up his old car proposition; take a fresh start and get an automobile that actually fits conditions as they are today.

War time thrift and economy are possible to every motorist without reducing his mileage or curtailing the use of his car.

War time activity makes this fact of vital interest. Thousands of men are finding increased demands upon their time and more work for their automobile.

Franklin Holds World's Records for Thrift and Efficiency

The Thrift and Efficiency Standards of the Franklin Car are matters of public record.

On May 1st, 1914, 94 Franklin Cars in all parts of the country averaged 32.8 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

On May 1st, 1915, 137 Franklin Cars averaged 32.1 miles to the gallon.

On July 13th, 1917, 179 Franklin Cars established the remarkable average of 40.3 miles to the single gallon of gasoline.

All records under Standard Efficiency Test Rules.

In the Yale University Fuel Economy Test, Professor Lockwood and Arthur B. Browne, M. E., established the fact that the Franklin Car uses less gasoline per mile than any other car with six or more cylinders.

On November 17th, 1915, a Franklin Car covered 1046 miles on a single gallon of oil—a run from New York to Chicago.

Right Now Is the Time for All Motorists to Investigate the Franklin

Franklin Economy and Efficiency, as demonstrated by these records of low gasoline consumption, continue throughout the car. Franklin owners' individual tire mileage reports, for instance, over a period of five years, give a national average of 10,203 miles to the set.

The value of the Franklin Car as an investment is clearly shown every time you find a used Franklin for sale. It brings a 20% higher price than any other fine car in proportion to its first cost and the use it had.

The time is close at hand when the motorist must choose between a restricted use of his car or meeting conditions in a constructive way with the economical Franklin.

REX BEACH SAYS:—

"'The Winds of Chance' is an Alaskan story written by request. It is easy enough to write about the North Country, for I know it pretty well. A romantic glamour attaches to it, and it has a lure peculiar to itself. When I first took up writing I was a young man just back from the North, and naturally I wrote about the life that most vividly impressed me. But all the time I was thinking about a moving drama that was enacted during the early days of the Klondike—one upon which I never touched—and finally I saw a story in it—'The Winds of Chance'. I saw that it offered something more than a tale of adventure and that the background was a cross-section of real Alaskan life. Then I recognized the figure of 'Poleon Doret' in the cast. He wouldn't stay put in 'The Barrier'. You see now why I say the story was written by request."

Rex Beach

"The Winds of Chance," by Rex Beach, appears in Hearst's Magazine for December—Out today. It is another great story of Alaska, vibrant with adventure, intrigue and love. Be sure to read this thrilling tale.

SEES HUGE PROFITS IN SUBWAY DELAY

Service Board Counsel Says Interborough Halts New Lines for Dividends.

THREATENS DRASTIC ACTION

Commission Will Inquire Into Setbacks of Lexington Avenue and Seventh Avenue Branches.

A statement made public yesterday by William L. Ransom, counsel for the Public Service Commission, practically accused the Interborough Rapid Transit Company of deliberately delaying the completion of the Lexington Avenue and Seventh Avenue subways, so that the company may continue to reap enormous profits. The statement says in effect that the Interborough Company, regardless of the discomforts of the public because of the increasing congestion on the rapid transit lines, has made no proper effort to place the new lines in operation, and that the delay would probably continue unless drastic action was taken by the commission.

That such action is to be taken was made a part of the statement. At 2:30 o'clock today the commission will proceed to examine officials of the company, and will try to wring from them the true reasons why the two lines, that ought to have been in operation before Christmas, have been delayed to Jan. 15 at the earliest. "The inquiry," says the commission, "is expected to develop the extent, if any, to which the company is responsible for the delay."

Judge Ransom's statement reads:

"The commission has directed these hearings to ascertain whether the Interborough Rapid Transit Company is using all practicable diligence in completing the new lines and placing them in operation. The beginning of operation will put into effect the financial terms of the dual contracts, and tomorrow the investigation will seek the facts as to any disposition to delay that time.

"Last year the Interborough Rapid Transit Company earned $9,100,000 profits on $35,000,000 of outstanding capital stock—a profit of 25 per cent. Another Winter of congestion means another year of big profits for the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, and all of it will go to the company, as the financial terms of the dual contracts do not go into effect until the operation of new lines is under way. Then the Interborough Rapid Transit Company's profits will drop back to the $6,335,000 preferential, a marked decrease from last year's profits. The commission desires to ascertain whether the company is diligent in bringing about the commencement of the pool.

"Inquiries will be made as to the dates of orders, purchases, delivery, &c.; the efforts, if any, to obtain priorities on manufacture and shipment; and the prospective dates of operation for portions of the new lines."

The order calling for the inquiry does not limit the extent of it. Under its terms the commission may wander as it pleases into any by-road of the transit question, and it is expected that everything relating to the frequent delays in work on all of the uncompleted lines will be minutely inquired into.

It is certain that one part of the inquiry will be devoted to asking the Interborough officials about the number of passengers on the company's lines who have not been accommodated with seats during the non-rush hours, and whether this number has not been increasing steadily. It was said at the office of the commission yesterday that the hearing was regarded as of the utmost importance. It may lead to a quickening of the work on all of the lines now in course of building.

Frank Hedley, Vice President and General Manager of the Interborough, said last night that while he was unable to reply to "what Judge Ransom may try to bring out" at the hearing, he knew certainly that it could not be shown that the Interborough purposely had delayed completing new subway lines in order that the city might not share in transit profits through the dual contracts.

"The fact that the city has been able to complete its rough construction work before we have been able to finish our highly technical end, requiring the services of many skilled engineers and expert mechanics," Mr. Hedley said, "is no reflection upon us. We are just as anxious as anyone to put these huge new properties into operation, but the extent to which manufacturers of cables, interlocking signal devices and other technical equipment have side-tracked our work—very properly—to give Government needs the right of way has entailed delay for which we are not responsible. In addition, there have entered directly into the nation's service not only thousands of skilled mechanics, but a very large proportion of the expert engineers necessary to the completion of our part of the work."

Macy Employes Give Ambulance.

Employes of R. H. Macy & Co. paraded with martial music and flying banners from Fifty-first Street and Broadway yesterday morning to Madison Avenue, thence to Thirty-fourth Street, and across town to the store, at Thirty-fourth Street and Broadway, escorting a splendidly equipped ambulance, which the employes purchased by subscription among themselves and have presented to the Government for the use of the Red Cross on the battle fronts of Europe.

FRENCH COMPANY IN MOLIERE FARCE

"Theatre du Vieux Colombier" Successfully Installed in Remodeled Garrick.

JACQUES COPEAU AS SCAPIN

Highly Intelligent and Successful Innovations That Will Be Much Discussed.

LES FOURBERIES DE SCAPIN, Molière's comedy, in French. At the Theatre du Vieux Colombier.

The "Impromptu du Vieux Colombier," with which M. Jacques Copeau opens his first bill at the remodeled and renamed Garrick Theatre, is inspired by Molière's famous "Impromptu de Versailles," and contains not a few passages relative to theatric art which are taken verbatim from its original. But the ideas which this little skit promulgates are mainly those of M. Copeau. The duty of the actor is to realize his part, heedless of his personal success. That of the producer is to develop the inward beauty and force of the masterpiece in hand, ignoring public clamor for superficial or irrelevant entertainment. And when the play is thus worthily interpreted scenery is generally superfluous.

These ideas are all in the current of our general progress in theatric art; but the manner in which M. Copeau presents them is thoroughly original and stimulating to discussion. Before many weeks have passed the tenets of this "Impromptu" will be familiar topics in the fashionable and artistic life of the city. For the present the best point of approach to them is in what M. Copeau has actually accomplished in the Molière farce, which is the main portion of his first bill.

"Les Fourberies de Scapin" is a product of Molière's artistic maturity, having been written while his mind was more seriously occupied with one of his chief masterpieces, "Les Femmes Savantes"; but in its substance and treatment it harks back to the farces of his youth. These were modeled on the Italian comedy of masques with its conventional characters of Harlequin, Columbine, and the rest, and their plots were largely derived from the ancient Latin comedy. This arch rogue Scapin is in reality our old friend Harlequin, and the love affairs of his young masters read like scenes from Terence. In a word, we have here the farce of situation as opposed to the farce of character. Of dramatic development there is none, but there is plenty of theatric movement, which leaps with lightning rapidity from one ridiculous encounter to another, from surprise to surprise. The people of the play are incessantly off again, on again, and the climax is a hailstorm of blows from a cudgel.

In one sense Scapin has character. He loves mischief for its own sake, and deception for the sheer joy of inventing and practicing it. Evil inventions swarm in his brain like maggots in cheese. He is a veritable Iago of farce. But like the "taste" of a young friend of Henry James, his character is all bad. He lacks the light and shade of human nature, the interplay of reasoned motive, and genuine impulse. Active and richly fertile as are his inventions, they are wholly of the theatre. He has nothing whatever in common with comedy character as Molière elsewhere invented it.

M. Copeau deals honestly with his materials. Being a Frenchman nourished on the Comédie Française, (though sometimes poisoned by it,) he could not do otherwise than take this piece in the tempo of extreme farce. But on two points he betters his instruction.

In recent years, which the outer world is tending to simplify and to conventionalize mise en scene, the Théatre Français has finally capitulated to scenic realism. Molière, whose stage was in many ways more bare of scenic appurtenances than Shakespeare's, is now enveloped in highly detailed sets. For the play in hand, the original scene was probably a simple stock piece—a public square. To reproduce it today would be to strike a note of crudity, needlessly disillusioning. M. Copeau has draped his stage with curtains in the manner long familiar on the Continent, and not unknown here. He thus achieves the essential simplicity and freedom of the master's stage with no jarring note.

Again, the actors of the Italian comedy of masques were also jugglers and acrobats, which is to say that they were lithe and graceful. M. Copeau, as he told us last year in his lectures, has made physical training basic in the development of his company. The contrast here with the ordinary actors of France (and of America) is extreme. In "Les Fourberies de Scapin" dexterity and lithe vigor are of the utmost importance, contributing largely to the smoothness, as to the swiftness, of the performance. It was by such innovations as these that the Théatre du Vieux Colombier in Paris became recognized as a pioneer in classic and imaginative drama, much as the Théatre Antoine was in modern and realistic drama.

M. Copeau, who plays Scapin, is really a marvel of agility and grace. There were times indeed when it seemed that his performance was all too rapid and rhythmical—too even and unbroken in tempo. The essence of the character, such as it is, is mentality. The thought ever precedes the act, and there are crises in which the best laid plans gang aft a-gley and have to be reconstructed on the spot. To sustain the physical rhythms is to belie the dominant mentality of this rascal, and so rob the situations of their best element of humor. Yet, on the whole, the performance is vigorously humorous, and everywhere it reveals a virtuosity in broad farce which, in a man of such high intelligence and delicate sensibility, is astonishing.

The performance of M. Louis Jouvet as one of the old men was in striking contrast. Physically decrepit as he was, and frequent victim to contending emotions of avarice, terror, rage, and humiliation, the psychology of the part had full scope and was admirably rendered. The recurrent cry, "Que diable allait-il faire dans cette galère!"—a phrase as common in French as "To be or not to be" in English—was delivered with remarkable repression, yet with an infinite variety of comic effect.

The remainder of the company had less scope, but acquitted themselves with credit. As in the case of our Washington Square Players, the dominant note was of intelligent amateur feeling—a very rare and valuable quality in such an endeavor—which was limited at times, perhaps by deficiencies of authority and practical skill. The two ventures have, indeed very much in common, and the development of this company of the Vieux Colombier will be watched with profound interest and respect.

The performance was concluded by a pretty pageant of dancers who crowned a bust of Molière.

FRENCH AMBASSADOR ATTENDS

Women's Council of Theatre Also in Society Throng at Opening.

The social assembly at the opening was an interesting one.

The French Ambassador, Jean J. Jusserand and Mme. Jusserand, were in a box with Mr. and Mrs. James Stillman.

The Consul General of France, Gaston Liebert, Mrs. Philip M. Lydig, who is Chairman of the Women's Council of the Theatre; Mrs. J. West Roosevelt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Mrs. Gertrude Atherton, Mrs. Otto H. Kahn, Marquise de Polignac, Mrs. Egerton L. Winthrop, Miss Ida Tarbell, and Mrs. Cadwalader Jones, the other members of the council, were present. Also Mrs. Edmund Baylies, Miss Luisita Leland, Mrs. Percy Turnure, Mrs. Henry R. Winthrop, Mrs. William Crocker, and Miss Mary P. Eno.

The Board of Directors is made of Otto H. Kahn, Chairman; Robert Bacon, James W. Barney, Nicholas Murray Butler, Frederic Coudert, Paul D. Cravath, Andre de Coppet, William A. Delano, Robert Goelet, Arthur Iselin, Thomas Lamont, Clarence H. Mackay, Theodore Roosevelt, Jr.; Augustus Thomas, Colonel Cornelius Vanderbilt, and H. R. Winthrop.

THE FLONZALEY QUARTET.

Opens Season with a New Viola Player—Dohnanyi's Quartet Played.

The Flonzaley Quartet began its series of subscription concerts last evening in Aeolian Hall before a large audience that signified by its numbers how firmly this organization has established itself in the admiration of lovers of chamber music. It may be, also, that it has come into an inheritance from the Kneisel Quartet, now retired. At all events, the fineness of its performance has won and has deserved a constantly widening recognition.

The quartet has suffered the loss of its original viola player, Mr. Ugo Ara, now serving in the military forces of Italy. His place has been taken by Louis Bailly, from France, who adds a fourth nationality to those represented by the players. He showed himself last evening to be a chamber music player of high attainments, evidently skilled in all the routine and detail of ensemble playing, and possessed of all the fine ideals of the Flonzaley Quartet in regard to finish, precision, and tonal balance, and producing an admirable viola tone.

The program comprised Mozart's quartet in A, a quartet by Ernst Dohnanyi in D flat, Opus 15, and Haydn's in D, Opus 20, No. 4. Dohnanyi's work has qualities that interest and please; qualities that commend it on a single hearing—not usually the ones that make for long survival. But the material is more substantial, of more definite musical value than that of some of this Hungarian composer's music heard here; and there is great skill in developing and molding it, as well as in setting it for the instruments. The instrumentation is beautifully made and uncommonly effective in sound. No one who knows Dohnanyi's work will have expected any excursions into the adventurous regions of modern harmonies, nor yet any deliberate reflection of the composer's nationality in any folksong elements. If any expected suggestions of Brahms in idea and treatment, such as appear in other of Dohnanyi's music, they found them only rarely.

The Flonzaley Quartet played this, as well as the works by Haydn and Mozart, with the finest finish and tonal fullness and beauty; and with great spirit. There was much well deserved applause.

OPERA REVIVALS NEXT WEEK

"Manon Lescaut" and "Daughter of the Regiment" Among Others.

Mme. Louise Homer is to return to the Metropolitan stage next Monday, when the famous American contralto will sing her rôle of Marina in "Boris Godunoff," with Didur and others, starting the opera season's fourth week. Familiar revivals are "Manon Lescaut" next Wednesday, with Caruso and Alda, who appeared in that opera last night at Philadelphia, and for Thursday of next week, "Le Nozze di Figaro," which was given recently in Brooklyn, with Hempel, Matzenauer, De Luca and others, the rôle of Cherubino, however, being here resumed by Mme. Farrar.

Florence Easton, in private life Mrs. Frances Maclennan, who once sang the first "Madame Butterfly" in New York, will make her first appearance as Santuzza in "Cavalleria Rusticana" next week Friday, with Perini and Martin, followed by Caruso in "Pagliacci," with Muzio, Amato, Chalmers, and Bada. The first month of opera will be completed Saturday, Dec. 8, in a matinee revival of Donizetti's "Daughter of the Regiment," an elaborate production, with Hempel, Carpi, Scotti, and several more, in famous rôles last sung by Sembrich, Gilibert, and others fifteen years ago.

KITTY CHEATHAM APPEARS.

Wins Applause and Hearty Laughter in a Program Partly New.

Kitty Cheatham, who has made an art of gay little songs for children, especially at Christmas time, appeared at Carnegie Hall last night in a program composite of many familiar parts still new to a grown-up assembly, and other parts new to her own repertory, notably a series of classical arrangements with full orchestra, led by Edla Soeller, a Scandinavian woman conductor, who appeared last Summer in Central Park.

Miss Cheatham opened with "The Star-Spangled Banner," her audience joining in, as it did later in the "New Russian Hymn," and other national airs printed in a program folder. Miss Cheatham, in these "community songs," and in her incidental remarks, as when she quoted Stevenson's nursery rhymes as a prophecy of suffrage now fulfilled, held the attention of a great house and won from it frequent applause and hearty laughter. She gave also, without accompaniment, some American negro "spirituals" from her native Tennessee, with an intuitive touch of communicative sympathy rare in performances of this kind.

Among more elaborate numbers were Haydn's "A New Created World," Tschaikowsky's "Nutcracker Suite," and "The Little Shepherd" of Debussy.

J. R. MANN IN HOSPITAL.

Overwork Said to be Cause of His Illness.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 27.—James R. Mann of Illinois, Republican floor leader of the House of Representatives, is at Johns Hopkins Hospital undergoing medical observation.

It was stated at the hospital that Mr. Mann was in no serious danger and that overwork was the cause of his visit. He is reported to be "resting comfortably."

Tina Lerner's Recital.

Miss Tina Lerner, who for a number of years has been contributing to the sum of pianoforte playing heard in New York, gave a recital yesterday in Aeolian Hall. Her playing disclosed the pleasing musical qualities that have heretofore won her admirers. Her fleet and brilliant technique and nice feeling for tone makes her playing of such pieces as the "Pastorale Variée," attributed to Mozart; Sgambati's gavotte, and Tausig's brilliant arrangement of Schumann's "Contrabandiste" very attractive; and Miss Lerner was wise to include also in her program a group of short pieces by modern Russians and another of brilliant concert études. The greater emotional exactions of Chopin's B minor sonata she did not wholly meet.

Minstrels on Blackwell's Island.

The annual Thanksgiving Day entertainment given at Blackwell's Island under the auspices of A. Paul Keith and E. F. Albee of the Keith circuit, will take the form of a minstrel show this year. The performance will start at 10 o'clock in the morning, and the entertainers will include Sam Bernard, Blossom Seeley, Savoy and Brennan, Felix Adler, Dorothy Jardon, Conroy and Lemaire, and Adele Rowland.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

In conformity with their announced plan of adding new performers from time to time, the management of the Century Theatre announces that Elsie Janis will join "Miss 1917" next Monday night. She will remain at the Century until it comes time for her to depart for London.

Gene Buck is the author of the sixth edition of the Ziegfeld "Midnight Frolic," which will be seen on the New Amsterdam roof some time next month.

"What's Your Husband Doing?" now at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre, will be produced in London at the end of the New York run.

Two hundred soldiers and sailors will be the guests of the City Club at tonight's performance at the Hippodrome.

BRITISH PAPER URGES THE NEED OF SHIPPING

Wants France to Curtail Private Trades and Italy to Use Ships Now Tied Up.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The Daily Chronicle in an editorial on the shipping tonnage problem says that the Germans are right in supposing that their least hopeless prospect of victory is that offered by submarine warfare. Pointing out that for the Allies the only one way of safety is to get more ships added than the submarines subtract, the paper says two things are needed—further success in anti-submarine warfare and a much larger supply of mercantile tonnage for essential needs.

To the latter end The Chronicle urges more controlled and serviceable use of all tonnage which the Allies already possess. Declaring that Great Britain so far is alone in having requisitioned the great bulk of her shipping for war purposes, the paper outlines the sacrifices she made in this way, and proceeds:

"We do not mention these facts for recrimination, but solely for the sake of reform Great Britain is as anxious as ever to do her best for her allies, carying wheat and coal for France and Italy and falling in with whatever is found necessary to facilitate transport of the coming American army, but when things have come to such a pass it is surely time that Italian ships lying up in dock at Genoa or elsewhere should take their part in the hazard of the seas, that the French Admiralty should requisition merchantmen and curtail their private trading in the same proportion as the British Admiralty has done, and that the United States, which during the war has developed a most extensive carrying trade in new waters, should recognize the absolute need of concentrating the whole of its resources on the problem of the 'Atlantic ferry.'

"Such changes would involve sacrifices for each of the allies concerned, but what all have to ask themselves is whether the winning or retaining of certain commercial advantages can justify the losing of the war, and the war may be lost unless in this sphere we all use our full resources without reserve."

GERMAN YARNS ABOUT US.

Anti-American Propaganda Started in Sweden and Switzerland.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Information revealing the extent of misrepresentation employed by Germany in an effort to inflame public opinion against the United States in neutral as well as hostile countries is reaching Washington. The propagandists have been especially active in Switzerland and Sweden, and important newspapers in each country have been used for the spread of anti-American doctrine.

One of the principal reports relied upon to stir up feeling in Switzerland is that an American army will pass through that country in the Spring of 1918. This report has appeared in at least one reputable newspaper, and has been circulated generally through the country. Other misrepresentation includes reports of mistreatment of Swiss subjects in the United States, and antagonism in this country against the Swiss.

An entirely different plan, apparently, is used in Sweden. There German agents give the widest possible publicity to letters purporting to have been written by persons in the United States. These represent the American people as indifferent to the war, with the Government sternly suppressing "uncomplimentary newspapers and peace orators."

Vienna apparently has become a fertile field for the propagandists. There the newspapers are open to them without question, and published reports tell of the "artificial cultivation" of war enthusiasm in the United States, of mistreatment of German subjects, of a panic seizing American Government officials when the results of Germany's submarine campaign became known, and other such statements.

OUST DISLOYAL PROFESSOR.

Leonidas R. Whipple Dropped by Board of University of Virginia.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Nov. 27.—The appointment of Leonidas R. Whipple as Professor of Journalism at the University of Virginia was rescinded today by the Board of Visitors after an investigation of alleged disloyal sentiments expressed by Whipple in an address last week at Sweet Briar College, Va. No action was taken on the appointment of a successor.

AUSTRIA AND THE UNITED STATES.

If it were a matter of the first order of importance that we should declare the existence of a state of war between Austria and the United States, there would be no hesitation about it and little discussion. We have been nearly eight months at war with Germany, Austria's ally, yet in the legal sense we are at peace with Austria. It is an anomalous condition, in many ways it is absurd. The existence of that condition and the fact that it is under discussion show that it cannot be vitally important either to Austria or to the United States that war should be declared.

There has been provocation, justification might easily be found. Austria is actually at war with Italy, and the Government of the United States has advanced money to Italy to carry on the war. That is one of the anomalies, for it is a flagrant breach of neutrality. The bankers of the United States might advance money to Italy and the Government remain neutral; when the Government advances money it is the same as if it should send guns, munitions, or even soldiers. Italy is our ally and we aid her precisely as if we as well as she, were at war with Austria. Austria might with entire propriety make our advances to Italy the occasion for declaring war on us.

On the other hand, we have good reason to believe that some of our ships have been destroyed by Austrian submarines contrary to the laws of maritime warfare. We have exchanged notes with Austria about it with no very satisfactory result. Austria, in fact, gives her approval and support to the lawless submarine policy of Germany. If we thought that a declaration of war against Austria was essential to the objects we seek to attain by the war, we might readily find justification.

So long as there is only a remote probability that our troops will actually confront Austrian troops in the field, it would appear that neither Government sees any compelling reason for declaring war. There are reasons against it. For us a declaration would add to the already sufficient number of alien enemies in this country the entire Austrian, Hungarian, and Czech unnaturalized population of the United States. This great increment in the number of those we must watch and segregate would augment the cost and labor of enforcing the law relating to enemy aliens and their activities. There is some risk involved, for Austro-Hungarians here are under temptation to join the German allies of their country in plots and conspiracies. Of that risk account has been taken and vigilance to guard against it is exercised. Besides, it is probable that, as the war proceeds, plotters against our Government will before very long be warned by exemplary and deterrent punishments which they will be likely to heed.

Austria will not declare war upon the United States save under German compulsion. She will, to the last extremity, avoid making actual and formal enemies of the Americans. The Austro-Hungarian Empire will be in a bad situation at the Peace Conference and will need friends, at least it will not need more enemies. The danger that the empire will be actually dismembered and broken up has been much diminished by the ravages of German socialism in Russia, which have not merely reduced that country to a state of helpless anarchy, but have brought into play separatist forces that may cause the disappearance of Russia as a great power. But when the Peace Conference assembles after the inevitable defeat of the Teutonic Powers, Serbia will certainly get territorial compensations for what she has suffered, and Austria will be confronted by demands for further sacrifices as a safeguard of European freedom and civilization against Germany's ambitious plans of domination in the southeast. These are questions in which the United States is not directly interested; if interested at all, only as a champion of freedom. We should be very little likely to accept a brief from Austria in these matters, but she knows very well that a declaration of war against us would extinguish whatever feeling of consideration for her future we might entertain.

ITALY'S RESISTANCE.

The Italian resistance which centres around the Piave was apparently doomed to defeat. It was quite impossible for a greatly outnumbered army to defend that position permanently. Therefore the early reports of the fighting were received merely as showing a splendid delaying action, fought with the design of postponing as long as possible the retreat to the next position. But as day has followed day, and each morning we have read nothing of the expected retreat, but only of a furious and sustained resistance, it has begun to seem possible that the Piave is as far as the Germans will get.

The Italians are said to be outnumbered four or five to one. Even if that is an exaggeration, they are outnumbered, and being outnumbered they could not hope to keep up this kind of fighting indefinitely. What they have been fighting for is to hold that line until reinforcements can get there that will change their numerical proportion to the enemy. The reinforcements are getting there. If now they can hold out until they are even with the Germans, the boot will soon be on the other leg, for they can then be reinforced continuously and without limit. When that time comes, the Germans will have to dig in or retreat, and they may not be able to dig in. They will be in a disadvantageous position, because most of their supplies will have to come to them over the mountain passes, and they are a long way from their base.

The Germans, of course, understand this situation, and it explains the unremitting fury of their attacks. They must force a decision before the Italians are sufficiently reinforced to establish an equality of strength, because equality will be followed by superiority. Allied superiority will mean German defeat. German defeat in Italy could not be stayed, once it had begun, and retreating over the Alps would mean disaster, the consequences of which cannot be measured. Everything depends, then, on beating the Italians before the reinforcements arrive. The Germans seem to have made preparations only for victory, and not to have counted on that sudden extension of the western front from Belgium to the Adriatic which has changed the situation; still less on that stubborn resistance which the Italians have shown. It has been German experience that when they begin to roll up an army belonging to one of the weaker Allies it goes on rolling up, and they have counted Italy as one of the weaker Allies in the matter of fighting, in which calculation they seem to have made a mistake. They counted, evidently, on a repetition of the Rumanian and Serbian campaigns, and believed that an enemy once weakened would grow weaker. Instead, Italy, weakened until disaster fell upon her, has been strengthened by disaster; a thing not within the German auspices.

RULE OF REASON FOR RAILWAYS.

The troubles of the railways have been progressive ever since the Supreme Court in the '90s overruled the lower court's decision that railways were not subject to the Sherman law, and that, if they were, the Trans-Missouri Freight Association agreement was a reasonable regulation of trade. Presumably the Supreme Court would now agree that the rule of reason, which the court discovered later, allows much that is nominally forbidden, and forbids much that is as well worthy of reconsideration as the decision which forbade pooling by railways. Certain it is that the Supreme Court would now be sustained by public opinion in allowing not railways alone, but business in general, to do what sound men of business have always approved. Instead of taking that reasonable course, it is suggested, on the one hand, that the Government should operate the railways, and, on the other hand, that there should be a wholesale repeal of the laws which cripple their operation.

There is here a double absurdity. The Government ought to be fitter to legislate than to operate railways. But the proved badness of Government operation of the lawmaking machinery is the basis of the notion that the Government should assume activities for which it is not fit, and in which it is not demonstrating that efficiency which no one can deny that the railways are showing conspicuously. The safe and sane middle course is neither to repeal the law to punish unreasonable restraints of trade, nor to "connive," in Colonel Roosevelt's phrase, at the breaking of the law. It is only necessary to administer the law according to the rule of reason to confer great benefits upon trade which is broader than even the great work of the railways.

Regarding the railways, a beginning might be made by the Federal Government enforcing the use of the rule of reason against the States in meddling with what does not concern them in interstate commerce. There is danger of losing the way on an untrodden path, and there is no sense in abandoning an old path to the same destination. Besides, it is strictly a Federal function to oversee the States in their activities in this regard, while it is straying from Federal functions to operate railways. What would become of intrastate traffic if the National Government operated interstate traffic? Would the Government merely neglect State traffic in its care of interstate commerce, or would it obstruct it as ruthlessly as the States meddle with interstate commerce? How could the Government help the railways more than by letting the States know, for instance, that they could impose full train crews upon State commerce, but they could not do so to the detriment of national trade? That is a small but heinous and recent example, which shows the obduracy of the States regarding national welfare of the railways.

Greater financial importance attaches to the manner in which the States, through a term of years, have deliberately maintained rates inconsistent with rates found reasonable by the Interstate Commission. Many times States have discriminated against one another by deliberately making rates that foster State business at the expense of the railways, as well as of the neighbor State. Here is the "connivance" which is contrary to public interest. How idle it would be to authorize the Federal incorporation of railways so long as the Federal Government connives at depriving the railways of their bread and butter. In Central Freight Association territory there are many intrastate rates which have not yet conformed to the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission in 1914. Why expect "the Government" to do any better than the Commission, which is constantly seeking fresh tasks, and which "connives" at the breach of its orders? The temporizing with the principle of the Shreveport case is a threat to the structure of our Government, as well as to the rate structure and the solvency of the railways. Here is the thing to be done and not a seeking out of things which ought to be left undone.

There are signs that this is appreciated, and that saying such things is not a mere crying aloud in the wilderness. The Missouri Commission has granted an increase of fares. That signifies a recovery from the two-cent mania of 1907. In the words of Commissioner Blair:

> It is short-sighted policy, indeed, that denies adequate compensation for the services rendered. Unless such earnings are secured as will make railroad stocks and securities attractive investments for capital, the traveling public will suffer from curtailed and inadequate service, the railroad properties will depreciate and the general public will be the ultimate loser thereby.

"That is as clear as sunshine," says The Globe-Democrat. But why was it not clear years ago? Why is it not universally clear now? Why meddle with novelties when it takes years to find out that it is necessary to pay the railways for what they do?

MR. TOWNLEY IN THE EAST.

Do the farmers of this State, do those in particular who have just formed the Farmers' Non-Partisan League of the State of New York, under the patriotic auspices of Mr. A. C. Townley, the head and front of the North Dakota Non-Partisan League, understand what Mr. Townley is driving at? Do the representatives of some trades unions, who confabulated with the farmers at the request of the Labor Food Council, whose Chairman is Mr. John C. Hilsdorf, and whose Secretary is Mr. Carl Beck, know the past history of the North Dakota mother society?

Ostensibly the New York League is a union of farmers and workmen for the co-operation and good of producer and consumer. Is that what the Non-Partisan League has sought or is seeking to do? It began with a little county society organized to elect to the Legislature men pledged to vote for an appropriation to establish a State grain elevator. Of the "big five," who bossed the concern as it spread and widened, one is an English agitator who had been conspicuous as an I. W. W. One is a Socialist lawyer. Mr. Townley is himself a Socialist. How it grew and prospered as a political party; in 1916 elected the Governor and other State officers, 81 of 113 members of the State House of Representatives, 18 of 25 State Senators, three members of the State Supreme Court; its program of State-owned terminal elevators, packing and cold storage warehouses, flour mills, of exemption of farm improvements from taxation; its attempt to raise the State debt limit and revise the Constitution by legislative bill—these things are parts of its local life. What is vital to remember is that the Non-Partisan League of North Dakota is a secret society, open only to farmers.

It is a class party. It is pledged to the abolition of political parties. That is, it intends and hopes to carry the Northwest, the country, as the main political party. It took vigorous, early growth in South Dakota, Iowa, Minnesota, Montana. It has now taken root in New York. In the Western States it followed originally the North Dakota program, but a class party of farmers would not be strong enough. So the ingenious Mr. Townley, the apparent chief, with we know not what veiled figure or figures, contemplating the Presidency, behind him, reaches out for the workmen, an effort begun at St. Paul. The Non-Partisan League is a two-class party of farmers and workmen, shall we say a party of well-to-do farmers and laborers, bourgeois Bolsheviki?

In its national aspects and ambitions the Non-Partisan League deserves a scrutiny more severe than we were at first inclined to give to an attempt "to bring New Zealand to North Dakota." Mr. Townley is not fond of the press, "men who engineer "the kept press and lie-like-hell men, "who lie by wholesale." He is a patriot, in these latitudes. Last Summer we heard of his saying that "our "young men were going to France to "bleed for the profits of the damned "pirates," and that "the cry for the war came from the trusts." Is it the iniquitous newspapers of his own State that belie him? Did they belie him when they said that he opposed the Liberty Loan and the Red Cross? Well, in September Mr. Townley's Non-Partisan League got up the St. Paul convention, which was to be a Conference on the High Cost of Living, and was a Convention of Producers and Consumers or what not. There was much patriotic reality or camouflage of patriotism in its resolutions, and there was anti-war economic stuff about paying for the war as it is fought, a sure means of stopping it; but what shall we think of a convention that heard Senator Gronna cry that "they have conscripted our boys, "the flower of the race, and sent "them to the trenches, from which "you know well ninety-nine in a hun"dred of them will never return"? And it was to this convention that Senator La Follette made that Lusitania speech, which patriots all over the country cried out against. Curious loyalists, some of Mr. Townley's friends, curious admirations his Non-Partisan League has. Mr. La Follette has an attentive eye on it.

Pacifism, socialism, confiscatory legislation, a doubtful loyalty may be suspected in this secret order which Mr. Townley has kindly brought eastward. The President of the Federation of Labor is not the man to be tender to any collaterals of the People's Council. The innocence of some of the New York farmers and trades unions is abused.

THE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY.

Our old friend, the children's old friend, the Children's Aid Society, made its sixty-fifth report yesterday. What new praise is there for a work of ever-widening good? An excursion among these kind figures shows us nearly 10,000 pupils in the industrial schools, more than 300 friendless orphan and deserted children for whom family homes have been found, 2,300 children in families under the society's supervision, 520 children helped to go west with their parents, nearly 5,000 boys and girls sheltered in its lodging houses, nearly 3,000 pairs of shoes given away, 877 runaways sent home, and so on, all varieties of the familiar labor.

More immediate to the heart in this time is the picture of fourteen young men in uniform, "as likely lads as e'er were seen," about a third of the society's graduates in the Delaware National Guard alone. "During the past two years," writes Superintendent Brace, "I have received many "letters from our boys who went over "with the Canadian troops or who "enlisted in England, and one of our "boys was killed in action as long "ago as November, 1916." Our boys have enlisted "in the National Guard "of almost every State, and by hun"dreds in the regular army and "navy." Two letters from our boys now in France with the American Expeditionary Force are printed in the report. "I am here to do my duty, even though it cost me my life," writes one. High officials, many prosperous and distinguished men of many occupations, have come from the ranks of the society's boys. Four army officers, 7,000 soldiers and sailors, are among the noblest harvests of this great humanity. It is a friend that enriches the national life with brave, honest men and good women.

THE SALUTE.

Saluting an officer is a ceremony that palls on many a soldier of our national army, if he must go through it frequently in the course of a day. In the reservation or cantonment he is seldom allowed to avoid it, never by an officer who understands the significance of the salute as a part of discipline. On leave, the soldier of the national army, whose head may be filled with false notions of the relation of democracy to military usage, sometimes fails to see the officer to whom a salute is due. Particularly is this the case when the soldier, who knew the officer in civil life as an equal, or perhaps as a less important citizen, disapproves of his success in obtaining a commission. It must be admitted, too, that officers do not always return a salute promptly and in the right spirit. They misapprehend the meaning and value of it as much as the ill-disciplined private does. On this subject Lieut. Col. Andrew J. Dougherty, late of the 30th Infantry, U. S. A., and now of the 357th Infantry, N. A., speaks words of wisdom, which the national army would do well to assimilate:

> When an enlisted man, a Lieutenant, a Captain, a General salutes his superior, he says by that act: "I will obey you." And the smartness with which the salute is made is an exact measure of the way he will obey. When he returns the salute of an inferior in rank, he says: "I will strive "to the limit to prepare myself to lead "you to victory." He will fight as he salutes. This act, repeated scores of times daily, forms a habit which neither fear, nor sickness, nor physical weakness can break.

Colonel Dougherty was once an enlisted man himself. At San Juan he fought as a Corporal of the 3d Cavalry. Ten years later he was Governor of the Province of Santiago by appointment of Major Gen. Thomas H. Barry, at the time commanding the American Army of the second occupation in Cuba. The civil Governor had been delinquent, and was ordered to turn his office over to Captain Dougherty, the Corporal of San Juan, who had qualified for the new trust by his success in making Regulars of the Rural Guard of Camaguey and Oriente. The point is that Colonel Dougherty rose in the service because he submitted to discipline when he was in the ranks and taught it to the men he commanded as an officer, in other words, because he was always actuated by the spirit of the soldier. He is, therefore, an excellent authority on the salute.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

American Advice to Officers. Colonel Wolf's farewell address to the Plattsburg graduates must be painful reading to all pacifists, including those who are consciously pro-German as well as the others who lend aid to the national enemy in whatever of innocence is conferred by ignorance and unintention. For the Colonel did not talk to the young men before him as he should have done to corroborate the pacifist assumptions as to the ideas common to the military caste.

He did not tell these officers of the gulf supposed to yawn between themselves and the private soldier. He did not warn them that discipline and military efficiency depended on treating the men under them as beings of a different and lower order. In fact, he said none of the things that every pacifist knows as forming the basis of the army officer's code and of his practice. Instead, Colonel Wolf, apparently fearing that some such notions might have crept into the minds of his hearers, earnestly warned them that they should carry into active service the same courtesy and kindliness that had been exhibited in their associations with each other through the months of training.

He asked them to remember that an American army is made up of men differing from themselves only in the possession of less knowledge about military affairs, and that any display of harshness or brutality on their part would result, not in the establishment and maintenance of the will to obey, but in demoralization, disintegration, insubordination, and all the evils that can exist in an army of intelligent, self-respecting, and well-disposed citizens.

Into all this there might be read criticism of German military methods, which are in every way different from those inculcated by Colonel Wolf, but that will have to be endured with such composure as can be attained. The difficulty in doing it will be in direct proportion to the amount of belief entertained by each of us in the possibility of achieving military efficiency otherwise than as the Germans undoubtedly have achieved it. There will be no difficulty at all for those who have not acquired the delusion that a soldier is necessarily a tyrant who delights in torturing and humiliating all who are inferior to him in rank.

Giving New Heart to Knitters. After a delay far too long and more than mysterious, Secretaries Daniels and Baker have issued a statement to the effect that, far from wanting to discourage the knitting of woolen garments for the army and navy by "our good women," they highly appreciate what has already been done in this direction and hope that the good work of "providing through the Red Cross comforts for our soldiers and sailors" will earn their further thanks.

There is in this statement no repetition of previous assertions from the same source that the Government had adequately equipped all the men in its service, and that additions by civilian hands to their stock of clothing were to be counted merely as superfluous luxuries. Presumably the Secretaries have been getting, since they made, or allowed to be made in their names, the announcement that so astonished and grieved the women knitters, some of the information as to camp conditions that has constantly been coming to everybody who had a friend or acquaintance either in training or in service. Why they did not have that information before is incomprehensible, but the question is now unimportant.

Nobody imagines for a moment that either Mr. Daniels or Mr. Baker would have said what they were quoted as saying if they had known conditions as they were, and nobody suspects in the slightest degree that they begrudge the country's defenders what they need in the way of protection from the Winter weather. Probably it was just that they fell into the error, so common to the occupants of high office, of assuming that an order given is an order obeyed.

It is a pity that the mistake was made in this case, for a brief explanation of the facts—the confession that though the Government was doing its very best to clothe the men properly, the task had proved too great for immediate performance—would have contented everybody, and the men themselves would have been the last to complain of hardships which, while real, are trivial indeed in comparison with others that war inflicts—with others which they, as patriotic Americans, are willing and even glad to endure in their country's behalf.

It was the denial of the existence of hardships known to thousands and thousands of us that caused impatience, and it was the rejection of needed help in a rather disdainful tone that caused deep humiliation and not a little of justified indignation.

This Effect of War Commendable. Thanksgiving Day is to be marked in Rochester, this State, by the holding of a "union service" that will be really remarkable for its inclusiveness. It is to be held, not in a church, for none would be large enough for the congregation that is expected to join in the manifestation of gratitude, but in the Convention Hall of the city, and though the proceedings are to be distinctly religious, many of the most firmly drawn of sectarian lines will be for the time obliterated and forgotten in a display of American solidarity.

The denominations to participate in this first of Rochester's "community Thanksgivings" are these: Advent Christian, Baptist, Christian Science, Congregational, Disciples, Episcopal, Evangelical, Jewish, Methodist, Presbyterian, Salvation Army, Spiritualist, Unitarian, Universalist, and Volunteers of America. About sixty churches will be represented.

A Unitarian clergyman will deliver the invocation, a Jewish rabbi will explain the meaning of the service, a Baptist will read from the Old Testament and a Universalist from the New, and the President of the Chamber of Commerce will speak on the President's Thanksgiving Proclamation. That will be only the beginning of the "exercises," for the program is a long one—long enough to cause some anxiety, perhaps, to the housewife who thinks of her dinner as she reads it.

Dinner, however, will be a less important feature of Thanksgiving Day than usual this year, if the new spirit of the time is in full play, and the indications are that it will be in Rochester.

WAR SAVING CERTIFICATES.

A Christmas Suggestion by George Foster Peabody.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I suggest that it would doubtless be helpful to a great number of your readers and inform their patriotic impulses to real advantage if civilian readers of The Times should have it exceptionally impressed upon their minds that for the coming Christmas season they should include among their presents, certainly to all the members of the family, and so far as possible to those within range who would not otherwise have such a Christmas gift, a war saving certificate; or in the case of the families who are so unfortunate as not to be able to give as much as $4.12 to each of the individuals, a thrift stamp, which can be obtained early in December from any post office and from a vast number of other places throughout the country. No one gift to an individual can accomplish at the same time so many unquestionably good results as such a Christmas gift would do. It would relate itself for a considerable period of time to the giver, of course, and it would relate itself also to the relation of the recipient to the country of which he is a present or coming citizen.

It is, of course, most desirable that at as early a date as possible every man, woman, and child in the United States without exception should become the holder of a war saving certificate; certainly to the extent of one stamp which, during the month of December, will cost $4.12, and which stamp may be redeemed at any time on presentation at any post office of the United States Government and will receive interest at the rate of 4 per cent., compounded quarterly. In this time of continuous employment and higher wages in dollars and cents—although unfortunately in too many cases not in actual values of consumption necessary to the family—it ought to be made possible that these stamps should be widely purchased by the individuals themselves. It would therefore be advantageous in very many cases that the Christmas gift be not made a full paid war saving certificate, or possibly that it be not even a certificate, but one of the thrift stamps, so that the habit of saving and making one's own the thrift idea should be inculcated and strongly encouraged.

If every man, woman, and child in the United States should own one of the certificates to the extent of one stamp, $4.12, it would in itself make over $400,000,000. It is an easy calculation for any school child of 10 years of age to see that a proper presentation of the facts respecting these should result in the sale of the entire $2,000,000,000 authorized by the Congress by the first of January; because they are so desirable for Christmas presents as well as so important in their educational features, to which I have made reference.

Barnard's Lincoln a Substitute.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In regard to Barnard's Lincoln: The reply, on Oct. 23, 1917, in the House of Commons by Sir Alfred Mond, First Commissioner of Works, states that Lord Beauchamp, the former Commissioner, "offered a site in the Canning inclosure for a replica of the St. Gaudens statue on a request from the Honorable Member from Plymouth in this House on March 9, 1914." After commenting on the "high artistic merit" of the St. Gaudens statue, he proceeds as follows:

"I now understand that the American Committee for the celebration of 100 years of peace are anxious to send a replica of the statue of President Lincoln recently erected at Cincinnati and executed by Mr. George Grey Barnard, a sculptor of the highest standing, which they consider to be a superior monument, and I do not consider that I should interfere with the selection made by the donors, who, I understand, comprise men of well-known artistic standing."

What legal or moral right had this committee to substitute Barnard's Lincoln for St. Gaudens's, after the site had been granted expressly for the St. Gaudens? Has a fraud been worked on the Honorable Member from Plymouth, and on the House of Commons itself?

This is not a small question. It is a large one, and an international one. Is not our great President being slandered, our people betrayed, our art disgraced and England insulted?

The committee, however great the reputations of its members for artistic standing, should be called to account. What have they got to say for themselves?

HOWARD RUSSELL BUTLER.
Princeton, N. J., Nov. 24, 1917.

REASONS FOR THANKSGIVING—1917.

Not for ripe grain we'll thank Thee,
Lord, in the harvest fields;
Not for the golden and purple
That generous Autumn yields;
Oft in the Past we've praised Thee
For food enough and to spare—
Smiled at our bounteous table,
Nor knew that our brother's was bare.
Safe and aloof from Sorrow,
Careless of any foe,
We gathered our own about us,
And shut out the great world's woe.

But now—it has crept upon us
As soft as a thief in the night;
Distance no more is distance,
Hiding the Truth from our sight;
Winds from the East have brought us
A desperate, heroic cry;
We are made one with the nations
That famish, and struggle, and die.
And the voice of our soul grows stronger,
As sympathy makes us wise—
"This is your Sister who suffers!
This is your Brother who dies!"

Not for a bountiful table,
Will we observe the day;
Shame would crimson our foreheads—
Feasting while others slay;
Not for luxurious trappings—
Not for our hoarded pelf—
Not for the narrow Vision
That saw but the good of Self;
But that, aroused from torpor,
Facing the cannon and sword,
Americans fight for Thy Justice and Right—
For this we'll thank Thee, Lord!

FLORENCE VAN CLEVE.

FIRST TO FIGHT IN FRANCE.

Distinction Claimed by Capt. Basil D. Spalding of Maryland.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The distinction of having led the company of American infantry that struck the first blow in the name of the United States against German autocracy last month in France is claimed by Captain Basil D Spalding, a Marylander, who was formerly a teacher in the Maryland State College.

Miss Alice Erma Cain of this city, a cousin of Captain Spalding, has received word of his having been selected to command the first United States troops on active duty. Word has since been received that he returned safely to the base from the front line trenches.

Captain Spalding is a son of Hargraves Spalding and Mrs. Martha Bissell Spalding, formerly of Churchville, Md., now of Macon, Ga. He is a great-grandson of Captain John Adams Webster, a defender of Baltimore at the battle of North Point, in the War of 1812. His mother's father, Captain William Bissell, died on the Confederate side in the battle of Gettysburg.

Only twenty-seven years old, the captain enlisted five years ago in the 16th Infantry in Ohio, where he went after teaching for two years at Maryland State College, from which he graduated in 1909, when it was Maryland Agricultural College. He was promoted to a Second Lieutenancy and went to Europe as an acting Adjutant on General Pershing's staff.

NAVAL MILITIAMEN ACTIVE.

95% of National Guard Volunteers on Actual Sea Duty.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Approximately 95 per cent. of the 852 officers and 17,000 enlisted men of the National Guard Volunteers, composed of the Naval Militia of several States, are on active sea duty.

When war was declared, the Navy Department announced tonight, the Naval Militia was fully equipped and prepared for service, its training at home stations having been supplemented last year by cruises on warships. When called into active service the volunteers had a strength of 666 officers and 9,500 men, but this force has since been almost doubled through recruiting in the Naval Militia.

The Marine Corps branch of the volunteers has a strength of 32 officers and 700 men, taken from the ranks of the Naval Militia when the branch was established at the beginning of hostilities.

CONGRESSMEN RETURNING.

Last Leave England After a Speaking Tour in Scotland.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The last of the American Congressional Delegation—Representatives Frederick C. Hicks of New York, Richard W. Parker of New Jersey, and John J. Rogers of Massachusetts—have left for home.

The final stage of their visit was a trip to Scotland, where they made a series of speeches on what the United States is doing and planning. The speeches got great prominence by the press throughout Scotland, and the papers referred editorially to the excellent effect produced by the visit.

On a trip to the naval base the Congressmen inspected the cruiser squadron which participated in the Heligoland fight.

MEXICO OUSTS CLERGYMEN.

Expels Aliens for Alleged Violation of the Constitution.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 27.—The arrest and expulsion of a number of foreign clergymen was announced in a statement issued today by the Governor of the Federal district. The statement says the clergymen already have been sent on their way out of the country, together with other persons classed as undesirable.

The expulsion of the clergymen is said to have resulted from their failure to comply with the provision of the new Constitution, which permits only Mexican-born priests to exercise religious functions. According to the statement, the clergymen who are being deported were warned to cease violation of this article of the Constitution.

The clergymen probably will be taken out of the country by way of Vera Cruz, although no official information has been given out on this point.

There were fourteen of them in the party, of Italian, French, and Spanish nationality. The time limit set by the Governor after which foreign clergymen were notified to cease exercising their functions had expired.

MEXICAN DUTIES INCREASED.

Heavier Impost on Alcoholic Drinks After Jan. 1 Decreed.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 27.—President Carranza has issued a decree increasing the taxes and import duties on all wines and alcoholic liquors, to take effect Jan. 1. All alcoholic liquors produced in Mexico will be subject to a tax of 50 per cent., and wines will be taxed 25 per cent.

Wines and alcoholic beverages of foreign make will have to pay a stamp tax of 70 per cent. above the import duties. Foreign made beer will be taxed 80 per cent. above the import duty.

The decree provides also for a stamp tax of from 5 to 20 centavos on corked bottles sold over counters.

A CALL FOR AMBULANCES.

Poets' Committee Urges Generous Gifts to Help the Italians.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Can any one read tonight's account by The Associated Press correspondent of the conditions of the Italian soldiers on the battle line without wishing to do something for these brave men at once?

Exhausted by ceaseless fighting on barren ground in a temperature of 10 degrees above zero, without shelter of trenches or dugouts, and with an insufficient supply of water, they are still stubbornly holding their lines against the picked men of the relentless enemy. They are fighting our fight as really as though the line ran along the Adirondacks instead of the Carnic Alps. Who is not eager to help the common cause by helping Italy?

I will tell your readers how to help. For weeks the American Poets' Committee has offered the public the most prompt and practical means of helping Italy. For weeks it has been raising money to buy by cable Ford chassis in Milan and top and equip them and rush them to the front. Individuals cannot send guns, munitions, or food; others will do that. But through us one can provide ambulances, for they are there in northern Italy, 100 miles from the firing line, and every day men—yes, heroes—are dying for lack of them.

The Poets' Committee stands on its record. We already have placed fifty of these "Chariots of Mercy" on the front; twenty-six more will be there this week. Others are being bought as fast as funds admit. We have cabled $135,700. When all our assurances are realized we shall have $160,000. Our average is about $10,000 a week. This is not enough; we ought to have $100,000 more this week in large subscriptions. For a fortnight we have been trying to awaken the sleepwalkers of Wall Street to help us immediately. I have vainly asked a dozen captains of industries to take hold and complete the work. I have not found one man with imagination enough to see, or enterprise enough to aid. They will give generously to anything else but the most pressing need.

In this emergency we appeal to women, and especially women who love Italy, to aid us at once. We have received nearly sixty checks of $2,000 each—the cost of an ambulance—and these and smaller contributions are welcome, but why should we wait ten weeks to get $100,000 more? Who will be the first to respond, sending to me at 70 Fifth Avenue a check drawn to the order of George A. Plimpton, treasurer, for $10,000 or $20,000?

ROBERT UNDERWOOD JOHNSON,
Chairman.
New York, Nov. 27, 1917.

KHAKI THE DRESS FOR THANKSGIVING

Officers and Men Will Be Dinner Guests of Many Organizations.

TURKEY AT ALL THE CAMPS

New York's Largest Spread Will Be at 12th Regiment Armory for Soldiers from Western States.

In armories, hotels, restaurants, clubs, and private homes thousands of soldiers and sailors will be Thanksgiving dinner guests tomorrow. In addition, the Government will provide an old-time Thanksgiving meal at all camps and cantonments for the soldiers, while on every ship, in port or at sea, the stewards will see that the officers and all on board have no reason to complain.

The largest dinner to be served in New York will probably be that which the National Service Commission will serve to enlisted men from the division at Camp Mills. This dinner will be served in the Twelfth Regiment Armory, and will be for soldiers from Western and Pacific States. Those in charge of the dinner have asked former Westerners now living in New York to come to the dinner and join in the welcome extended to the men from the States from which the division now at Mineola has drawn its men.

The Union League Club announced yesterday that it will have 200 soldiers from Camp Upton as its guests at the clubhouse, Thirty-ninth Street and Fifth Avenue. The men have been selected by Brig. Gen. Wittemeyer, and will arrive in New York tomorrow afternoon. The club will also entertain 200 negro soldiers from the 367th Infantry, at Camp Upton, at a dinner to be served in Liberty Hall, Seventh Avenue and 139th Street.

Adolph Lorber of Lorber's Restaurant, at Broadway and Fortieth Street, will have as his guests 1,000 Western soldiers from Mineola. Mr. Lorber will bring the men to New York on special trains, and will provide a sightseeing tour on Fifth Avenue buses for them before the dinner. The dinner will be served from 11 A. M. to 1 P. M., and during these hours the restaurant will be closed to the general public.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association, 610 Lexington Avenue, will entertain 102 soldiers at its rooms, the men being, for the most part, from Camp Upton. The Young Women's Christian Association will have 500 soldiers at its clubhouse, 31 West 110th Street, while the Catholic War Work Council will provide a dinner for 1,000 soldiers, entertaining the men at hotels and in private homes. Two hotels will each care for 400 men for the council, while members of the council will entertain the remaining 200 in their homes.

The Broadway Tabernacle will provide a dinner for 300 men; the National Arts Club, Gramercy Park, will give a dinner in honor of forty officers, while St. George's Club, in Stuyvesant Square, will have 120 soldiers and sailors as guests.

THANKSGIVING IN SCHOOLS.

President Willcox Issues Proclamation to be Read to Pupils.

President Willcox of the Board of Education has sent the following appeal to public school children, which will be read by the Principals in all the schools today:

"For nearly three hundred years the American people, in gratitude for their blessings, have celebrated Thanksgiving Day. This year, on the Thanksgiving Day, which our great President has proclaimed for next Thursday, even in the midst of a terrible war we have many things to be thankful for.

"Let us be thankful that we have a country worth fighting for. Let us be thankful that the great soul of America is rising not only to protect the rights of her own people, but also to join in the defense of liberty, justice, and humanity throughout the world. Let us be thankful that all classes of our people, high and low, rich and poor, American born and foreign born, are forgetting selfish interests and joining together in patriotic service and sacrifice for this great cause. Let us be thankful that a new national spirit and common purpose is uniting the American people with mutual appreciation and confidence. Let us be thankful for the hope and promise of a better world to come after the war.

"America is fighting for you. The men and women of America stand ready to sacrifice everything, even life itself, in order that you, as you grow to manhood and womanhood, may enjoy the blessings of liberty and peace. And with America all of the other democracies of the earth are fighting for their children, fighting to overthrow the tyranny of might and bring in its place the rule of justice and right among all nations.

"Let us honor our brave men who are answering their country's call. Let us be proud to do anything we can to help them to win the war. Let us be thankful that we live in America, with the great American nation to protect us, and let us stand first, last, and all the time for the American Government and the American flag.

"I am proud of our pupils and proud of our teachers for their patriotic spirit and service during the last year, and I confidently call upon them all on this Thanksgiving Day to pledge a new devotion to our beloved country for the year which is to come."

SPARTANBURG FEAST PLAN.

Turkey and Entertainment Aplenty to be Provided Tomorrow.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP WADSWORTH, SPARTANBURG, S. C., Nov. 27.—Uncle Sam is going to furnish the mainstay of the Tranksgiving spread of the Twenty-seventh Division, it was learned today, when orders were placed for thousands of turkeys. Authorization has been received for the camp Quartermaster to purchase sufficient to give each of the more than 32,000 men a pound of turkey, which will be the ration served in all camps. Few of the time honored fixings of the Thanksgiving spread will be missing.

The Y. M. C. A. will put a special program of entertainments in all its huts, bringing quartets and big time vaudeville stars all the way from New York, Philadelphia, and Cincinnati. The Fosdick people will run a big bill in their tent theatre.

Besides the good times at the camp, it is said that there will be scarcely a single home in Spartanburg that will not have one or more soldiers as its guests on the holiday.

The week's training includes drilling in methods of concealment formerly employed by the North American Indians. Special squads were out in the woods this afternoon; one detachment, the Reds, being those elected to hide; the other, known as the Blues, being those nominated to find the concealed Reds. The latter covered themselves with fallen leaves, and practically the only time the "camouflage" didn't work was when some heavy Blue foot trod on some recumbent Red.

Privates Harold C. Houghtaling, 107th Infantry, and James V. Blythe, First Company, 102d Supply Train, have been ordered transferred to the Aviation Service. Houghtaling was sent to the Princeton school, while Blythe was ordered to report at Kelly Field, South San Antonio.

General Barry Leaves Camp Grant.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Nov. 27.—Brig. Gen. L. W. L. Kennon took command of the Eighty-sixth Division of the national army at Camp Grant, succeeding Major Gen. Thomas H. Barry, who departed on detached service. General Kennon, an Indian fighter, has seen service in Cuba and the Philippines. He entered West Point in 1876 and was made a Captain in 1897.

BRITISH DAY DRAWS MANY TO HERO LAND

English Embassy Counsel Lauds Efforts to Aid Victims of the Hun.

GARBLE DIPLOMATS' TALKS

Wild Tales of Submarine Sinkings Spread After Speeches by Jusserand and British Official.

Much interest was aroused last night by a statement issued by the press department of Hero Land, the bazaar at the Grand Central Palace, that T. B. Hohler, counsellor to the British Embassy in Washington, who spoke as the representative of the Ambassador, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, had closed his address with this remark: "It may interest you to learn that I have been informed that between Nov. 1 and Nov. 15 thirty-nine submarines had been sunk."

Later, however, Clive Bayley, the British Consul General, who had sat next to Mr. Hohler on the platform, explained that the Couscelor had really said that he had heard rumors in Washington of these sinkings. Secretary Daniels declared when told of the report that he had not heard of any such report.

This is not the only case of misunderstood statements regarding the destruction of submarines. On the previous day J. J. Jusserand, the French Ambassador, visited Hero Land, and it was announced that he had declared that six submarines had been sunk in the last four days.

This, it is now learned, was not the exact statement made by the Ambassador. When referring to the sinking of six submarines within four days he did not mean sinkings previously unannounced, but was coupling together the destruction of five U-boats by the British Navy on Saturday, Nov. 17, which was announced by Premier Lloyd George in his speech of the following Monday, with the announcement made on Sunday last of the sinking of another by two American destroyers.

Statements have recently been made on high authority that more submarines have been sunk in the past four months than in the year before the beginning of that period, but with the exception of Mr. Lloyd George's statement at the conclusion of his speech, which reassured his control of the House of Commons regarding the destruction of five U-boats in a single day, no exact figures as to the work done in particular periods have ever been officially given out.

"British Day" at Hero Land drew large crowds to the big war bazaar yesterday and last night. The attendance in the evening eclipsed that at the opening Saturday night.

Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British Ambassador, who was to have made an address, was prevented by illness from being present, and in his place, T. B. Hohler, Counsellor to the British Embassy, made an address in the afternoon.

"I am glad to see," he said, "that so many loyal Americans have come forward to help aid the victims of the Hun. I rejoice to learn that Americans are beginning to appreciate that the United States is in the war to win. You Americans should do everything possible to help repair the damage done by the Hun. As we visit these exhibits, I can imagine our men inspired by the news that Hero Land is a great success.

"There has been some criticism of the amount of money that has been spent on Hero Land. That criticism is wrong. Every dollar that has been spent has been spent for a good purpose."

Among the other speakers were C. Clive Bailey, British Consul General at New York; Brigadier General W. A. White, head of the British Recruiting Mission, and Brigadier General James D. McLachlan of the British Army.

The following cablegram from Arthur James Balfour was read:

"Am glad to offer my warm congratulations on the scheme of the bazaar of the allied nations. Those who visit it will see on all sides evidences of great achievements. They will have an opportunity of helping the victims of German barbarism in Europe and in Asia, and they will bear away with them memories of the great war due to the ingenuity and industry of soldier prisoners. I heartily wish it every success."

The British party from Washington watched the British tank in action and inspected the "Hindenburg" trench. The Daughters of the British Empire presented a program on the Novelty Theatre, in which Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Sothern, Eugene Cowles, Norman Trevor, and others appeared. In the motion-picture theatre, on the fourth floor, official British war pictures were shown.

Yesterday there was placed on exhibit a German flag captured by the Imperial Light Horse Infantry in German West Africa. Every man's name who took part in the attack in which the flag was captured is written on it.

Last night was given over to a program of sports in the Great Hall, arranged by Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson. There was a feature of a bayonet drill of men from Camp Upton under the direction of British officers.

The Russian Street, which contains at one end a booth bearing the sign "Pour les Gens de Lettres Francais," and of which Mrs. Newbold LeRoy Edgar is the President, is one of the most interesting features of Hero Land. Eugene Brieaux of Paris is Honorary President of the booth, the object of which is to aid the dependents of literary men of France.

Associated with Mrs. Newbold LeRoy Edgar are Mrs. James W. Gerard, Mrs. Arthur Scott Burden, Mrs. Charles Clive Bayley, wife of the British Consul General; Miss Janet Scudder, the sculptress; Mrs. William Kinnicutt Draper, Mrs. Francis Burrall Hoffman and Mme. Seygard-Lane, who recently returned from Paris and who at 10 o'clock sang the "Marseillaise."

A new film, entitled "France in Arms," was shown yesterday under the direction of the section presided over by Mrs. Newbold LeRoy Edgar.

This will be Jewish War Relief Day at the bazaar, the program for which has been arranged by Mrs. Jacob H. Schiff. A pageant, "On the Road to Victory," in which 300 persons will take part, and arranged by Margaret S. Crawford, will be the spectacular feature of the day. In the afternoon the 306th Regiment Band, from Camp Upton, will play in the Great Ballroom. Mme. Bertha Kalich, Houdini, Mme. Shomer-Rothenberg, Mme. Clerget, Irving Berlin, Harry Fox, Dan Casey, Harry Tierney, Mary Jordan, Blanche Duffield, and Lydia Locke, are among the theatrical folk who will aid Jewish War Relief Day.

Elsie Janis, Hilda Spong, Olive Wyndam, Mrs. Thomas Wisem, Laura Hope Crews, Charles Cherry, Holbrook Blinn, Eva La Gallienne, Augusta Close, and Helen Grey will take part in a program under the direction of State Women's War Relief Fund Committee. Cosmo Hamilton's play "Soldiers' Daughters" will be presented, as will two acts from "Miss 1917" from the Century Theatre. The members of the committee in charge, headed by Mrs. Schiff, are Mrs. I. N. Spiegelberg, Mrs. Gibson, Mrs. Sidney C. Borg, Daniel Frohman, M. H. Hanson, Mrs. Eugene Lewis, Miss Harriet B. Lowenstein, Miss Irene Lewisohn, Mrs. Otto Lowengard, Mrs. Thomas Seltzer, and Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim.

SWEENEY IS INDICTED.

"Advertising Director" for Army Bazaar Charged with Forgery.

George F. Sweeney, who was "advertising, publicity, and campaign manager" for the Army and Navy Bazaar, was indicted yesterday by the New York County Grand Jury on a charge of forgery. The indictment charges that Sweeney forged the name of Edward S. Moore, Treasurer of the bazaar, without the latter's permission to letters sent out soliciting contributions and advertising for the bazaar.

District Attorney Swann yesterday said he had received information that some solicitors for the bazaar threatened German and German-American residents of New York with internment if they did not contribute to the bazaar. Assistant District Attorney Kilroe is investigating these complaints.

District Attorney Swann in a statement issued last night declared he had investigated the recent collection of money for the "War Babies Cradle" and said that forty-five checks of $10 each had been colllected for which he said there had been no accounting. The District Attorney said that he had obtained the money from the solicitors and would forward it at once to the "cradle" fund.

LICENSE FOR ALL BAZAARS.

Aldermen Make Charity Promoters Answerable for Receipts.

The Aldermen yesterday upon recommendation of its Committee on General Welfare unanimously adopted the amendment to the city ordinances, introduced by President Frank L. Dowling, providing that the holders of all fairs, bazaars, or entertainments given in the name of charity hereafter must obtain a license from the Department of Licenses for which they must pay a nominal sum and be under the control of and make a report to the department.

Not only must a license be obtained but financial statements and other safeguards are required. The amount paid to managers or solicitors in salaries or commissions must be made public, so that contributors will be under no misapprehensions as to where the money is going. The ordinance carries a penalty for its violation of six months' imprisonment or a fine of $250 or both.

THANKSGIVING WEDDINGS.

Misses Marion Cleveland and Gertrude F. Dowling to be Brides.

Several weddings are to take place on Thanksgiving Day.

Miss Marion Cleveland, daughter of the late President Grover Cleveland, and William Stanley Dell of this city are to be married tomorrow at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Thomas Jex Preston, at Princeton, N. J. Mr. Dell is a newspaper man, and last Spring returned from France, where he served for a time with the American Ambulance Corps. His father is William Amos Dell, now residing in Switzerland.

The marriage of Miss Gertrude F. Dowling, daughter of Frank L. Dowling, President of the Board of Aldermen, and Mrs. Dowling, and Harold P. Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Hall of the Bronx, will be celebrated tomorrow at 12:30 o'clock in the Roman Catholic Church of St. Columba, in West Twenty-fifth Street.

WED TO BRITISH CAPTAIN.

Miss Gladys Conquest Married Longford L. Welman in Paris.

Word has just been received here of the marriage on Nov. 7 at the American Church in Paris, France, of Miss Gladys Conquest, a daughter of Mrs. C. E. W. Conquest of Philadelphia, to Captain Longford L. Welman of the Middlesex Regiment, British Army, the Rev. Dr. Goodrich performing the ceremony.

Miss Conquest, with her mother and her brother, Robert F. W. Conquest, were abroad when the war began and remained there. Miss Conquest has been doing work in a convalescent hospital for the last six months, and her brother served for a year in the American Ambulance Field Service.

MISS HELEN BURROWS WEDS.

The Bride of Alver H. Ives in St. Agnes's Chapel—The Attendants.

The marriage of Miss Helen Hampton Burrows, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Webster Burrows of 360 Riverside Drive, and Alver Homer Ives, took place at 8 o'clock last evening in St. Agnes's Chapel, the Rev. William W. Bellinger officiating.

The bride wore a gown of white satin and net embroidered with pearls, and a court train of satin and silver cloth. She carried a shower bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Robert Schur was the matron of honor, and the Misses Amelia Lunstedt and Elsie Peckham were the bridesmaids.

Dr. Henry T. Chickering of the Rockefeller Institute Hospital was best man, and William F. Lowe, Edward Crowe, Robert P. Schur, and Caspar F. Black were the ushers.

A large reception followed in the ballroom of the Hotel Gotham.

Wed to the Rev. Henry Macbeth.

The marriage of Miss Adelaide M. Mansfield of Bethel, Conn., to the Rev. Henry Macbeth, rector of St. Paul's Church, Tivoli, N. Y., was celebrated at 1:30 o'clock yesterday in Grace Church. The Right Rev. E. C. Acheson, D. D., Suffragan Bishop of Connecticut, and a friend of the bridegroom, officiated. There were no bridal attendants, and only the nearest relatives and friends attended the wedding. The couple will reside in Tivoli.

Porter-Knox.

E. Erskine Porter of Brooklyn, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Porter, was married yesterday at noon to Miss Eloise Bennett Knox of Savannah, Ga., at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hilton Knox in Savannah. The Rev. W. T. Dakin officiated. Miss Valencia Knox was her sister's maid of honor, and Ira M. Dempsey of Johnstown, Penn., acted as best man.

Today's Weddings.

The marriage of Miss Angeline J. Krech, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin W. Krech, and Oliver Burr James, son of Dr. Walter B. James and Mrs. James, will take place at 4 o'clock in St. Bartholomew's Church.

Miss Julia Swift Gilbert, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cass Gilbert, and Charles Morgan Post, a son of Mrs. Stephen R. Post, are to be married in the Church of the Incarnation, Madison Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street, at 4 o'clock.

Miss Gertrude Channing Livingston, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Duane Livingston, and Henry Crocker Kittredge, son of Professor George L. Kittredge and Mrs. Kittredge of Cambridge, Mass., will be married at 3 o'clock in the Chantry of Grace Church.

Miss Helen L. Steele, daughter of Captain Theophilus Steele, U. S. A., and Ben Johnson Breckinridge, a Second Lieutenant in the United States Army, and a grandson of John C. Breckinridge, Vice President under James Buchanan, will celebrate their wedding in the Fourth Presbyterian Church.

ANTIS NOW TO FIGHT NATIONAL SUFFRAGE

State Organization Temporarily Drops Its Plan for a Loyalty League.

MAY SELECT A NEW LEADER

Determines on a More Vigorous Campaign Than Was Made on the State Issue.

Instead of converting themselves into a loyalty league to fight pro-Germanism, the State anti-suffragists yesterday turned their organization into a body to war on the Federal suffrage amendment. The refusal of the suffragists to abandon the whole question and "fight the war," it was explained, had led their opponents to change their plans.

To reinforce the women's organization, which will be known as the "State Committee of the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage," there also is to be an organization of men. The Man-Suffrage Association Opposed to Political Suffrage for Women, under the leadership of Everett P. Wheeler, has resolved to convert itself into a body to battle against the national amendment.

In altering their plans for the immediate future, the anti-suffragists, it was said yesterday, had not abandoned their prospective loyalty league, but simply would hold the project in abeyance for the time being. At yesterday's meeting, at 280 Madison Avenue, at which the decision to alter the plans of the organization was reached, a committee of three was appointed to represent the new body at the national convention to be held in Washington on the same days in December as the national gathering of the suffragists. Miss Mary G. Kilbreth, Mrs. John F. Maynard, and Mrs. A. M. Banca were selected as the members of the committee.

The change in the antis' plans probably is to involve a change in leadership. Miss Alice Hill Chittenden, long the head of the State body, it was announced had determined to retire from active participation in the new campaign. Miss Kilbreth was appointed head of the committee to arrange the details of the change, while Miss Chittenden will look after the legal steps incident to changing the corporate name. Miss Chittenden and others prominent in the movement yesterday urged Miss Kilbreth as the logical new leader. Miss Kilbreth, however, said yesterday that she would not head the organization.

In discussing yesterday the lines on which the new body would wage its fight, Miss Kilbreth said she believed the most important task was the education of "the man in the street" to a full understanding of exactly what abandonment of states' right suffrage meant. She felt certain if voters once grasped the full significance of such a surrender of what she called fundamental American government principles, they would reject the suffragists' propaganda for radical constitutional revision. A minor, but none the less a strongly emphasized note in the campaign, she said, would be the inappropriateness of interjecting the suffrage issue into the forthcoming war session of a Congress beset with Government business of unprecedented importance to the nation and to the world.

In addressing the meeting of the Anti Suffragists yesterday Miss Chittenden, in urging the course which subsequently was followed, said:

"In this last appeal which I shall probably ever make to you as a body of women, I beg you not to be slackers, especially in this hour of our country's greatest need, but to live up to the full measure of your responsibility as voting citizens. The Socialist women will vote in large numbers, and the pacifist woman, who did not raise her boy to be a soldier, will vote, and their votes must be offset by the votes of the women who put loyalty to their Government in the prosecution of this war above everything else at the present moment, because they realize that this war is being fought to uphold the same principles of free government for which the 'embattled farmers fired the shot heard around the world!'"

SUFFRAGE PICKETS FREED FROM PRISON

Twenty-two Hunger Strikers Get Out, but Nine Others Stay in Washington Jail.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Twenty-two militant suffrage pickets, most of them hunger-strikers, serving terms varying from fifteen days to seven months, were released from the District Jail late this afternoon. No reason for their release was given by the jail authorities other than that it was by the order of Alexander R. Mullowney, the Police Court Judge who sentenced them.

Miss Alice Paul, leader of the pickets, who was serving seven months, was the first to be released. Mrs. Lawrence Lewis of Philadelphia, Miss Lucy Burns of Washington, Miss Kate Heffelfinger of Shamokin, Penn., and Miss Rose Winslow of New York, all of whom had seven-month sentences, were among those released. Miss Paul, who had been on a hunger strike for twenty-two days, was very pale and thin. When she reached suffrage headquarters at Cameron House she said:

"We are put out of jail as we were put into jail, at the whim of the Government. They tried to terrorize and suppress us. They could not, and so freed us. The Administration has found that it dare not imprison American women for asking a share in the democracy for which we are fighting abroad. Our prisoners in Occoquan were released from that institution last Saturday on the court ruling that they were illegally and lawlessly confined. The action of the Judge in commuting our sentence today acknowledges it was unjust, arbitrary, and a gross discrimination made in an attempt to suppress legitimate propaganda, an attempt which failed.

"Twenty-two of us are out, but nine are unjustly imprisoned. Those of us who hunger-struck were freed. The others were not. These, too, must be released before the Government's conscience is clear."

Asked when they would picket again, Miss Paul said:

"We hope that no more demonstrations will be necessary, that the amendment will run steadily on to passage and ratification, without further suffering. But what we do depends on what the Administration does. We have one aim: The immediate passage of the Federal amendment. As for picketing, we are well pleased at what it has accomplished."

Among the pickets released were:

Miss Agnes Morey, thirty days, Boston.
Miss Cornelia Whitcomb, thirty days, Worcester, Mass.
Miss Julia Emory, Baltimore.
Miss Paula Jacobi, thirty days, New York.
Miss Lou Daniels, fifteen days, Boston.
Mrs. L. H. Hornsby, thirty days, New York.
Miss Catherine Lincoln, thirty days, Philadelphia.
Miss Elizabeth McShane, thirty days, Philadelphia.
Mrs. P. B. Johns, thirty days, New York.
Miss Alice Gram, thirty days, Portland, Ore.
Miss Betty Gram, thirty days, Portland, Ore.
Miss Matilda Young, fifteen days, District of Columbia.
Mrs. Alice Cosu, thirty days, New Orleans.
Miss Hattie Kruger, thirty days, Buffalo.
Mrs. Kate Stafford, thirty days, Oklahoma City.
Miss Belle Sheinberg, thirty days, New York.
Miss Minnie Hennessy, seven months, Hartford, Conn.

The suffrage pickets still in jail include Miss Maude Jamison, seven months, Norfolk, Va.; Mrs. C. T. Robertson, thirty days, Salt Lake City; Mrs. R. B. Quay, thirty days, Salt Lake City; Miss Amy Jungling, thirty days, Buffalo; Mrs. George Scott, thirty days, Montclair, N. J.; Miss Dorothy Day, thirty days, New York; Miss Ella Findeisen, thirty days, Lawrence, Mass., and Miss Hilda Blumborg, fifteen days, New York.

AMERICANS LIONIZE WAR CROSS WINNERS

Ceremony of Presentation Followed by Rush to Congratulate the 15 Men Honored.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Monday, Nov. 26.—(Associated Press.)—An impressive ceremony marked the presentation today of the French War Cross to the fifteen American soldiers who withstood the first German raid on the Americans early this month.

It was late in the afternoon when the regiment, to which the company that suffered the casualties is attached, marched to the top of a big grassy hill. There, under skies threatening rain and with the cold, wintry wind blowing, the men formed three sides of a hollow square. At the base of the square the regimental colors and the Stars and Stripes cracked in the wind.

The regiment was called to attention as the General commanding came up and took his position in the open side of the square. The General first read the citation for the whole company, which was standing near the colors, breaches in the ranks showing where the men now in hospitals or prisoners in Germany had formerly stood. He congratulated the company, saying:

"Occasions arise frequently in war, and will arise frequently again, where clear-headed coolness and courage are necessary. This company behaved on one occasion as it was expected to do and as every other company of American soldiers is expected to do under similar circumstances. The French General commanding the sector considers these men have earned War Crosses and I here deliver them and the citations.

"You must understand that you must not wear them, but must keep them in your possession until Congress authorizes the wearing of them."

The General then presented the company's citation and Cross to the Lieutenant commanding. Next the three lieutenants stepped from their positions, saluted and received their individual crosses. The General congratulated each. Next the non-commissioned officers and men marched up, were congratulated on receiving the honor and then returned to their places in the ranks.

The company Lieutenant received the Cross and citation for a corporal who was unable to leave the hospital because of a severe wound. To the regimental Colonel the General entrusted the decorations awarded to the three men killed in the raid, asking him to see that they were sent to the next-of-kin in the United States.

As the regimental band played "The Star-Spangled Banner," the regiment came briskly to the salute, remaining in that position until the last notes had been borne away across the valley by the wind. The regiment then marched back to the nearby town where it is billeted, seemingly with just a little more snap in every step. The men who had in their pockets the coveted French decoration, which is awarded only for heroic deeds in the face of the enemy, wore broad smiles of satisfaction.

If there was any man in the regiment who did not go to the tents of the honored company to shake the hands of the decorated comrades, it was because he had urgent duties elsewhere requiring immediate attention. The soldiers several times tried to evade the congratulations of their comrades and two of the younger ones who got the War Cross actually blushed when the press of admiring friends became too great around them.

Red Cross Supplies Reach Rumania.

PETROGRAD, Sunday, Nov. 25.—The American Red Cross relief train arrived at Jassy, Rumania, on Nov. 18. It consisted of fifty-five cars of hospital supplies and foodstuffs from America.

HOWLAND TRUST ALLOTTED.

Estate of Hetty Green's Aunt to be Divided Among 45 Heirs.

BOSTON, Nov. 27.—The full bench of the Supreme Court ruled that the Silvia Ann Howland trust fund, amounting to $1,000,000, in which Mrs. Hetty Green had a life interest, should be divided into forty-five parts for distribution among the heirs. By his order three grandchildren of Gideon Howland will each receive one part, and the remainder will be divided among the more remote of the 437 claimants.

Arguments in the case were heard recently at Taunton, certain of the heirs contending for a division of the estate into eleven parts, to correspond with the number of Gideon Howland's children. Under the plan as ordered by the court today, it is to be divided on the basis of the number of grandchildren, living and dead. The heirs concerned reside in thirty-three States, Hawaii, Canada, England, and France.

The property constituted the residuary estate of Sylvia Ann Howland of New Bedford, who died in 1865. Mrs. Green was a niece. Mrs. Howland's will provided that after the expiration of Mrs. Green's interest, the estate should pass to the lineal descendants of her grandfather, Gideon Howland of Dartmouth.

GAVIT LEAVES THE POST.

Resigns as Managing Editor to Join Harper & Brothers.

John Palmer Gavit, for four years managing editor of The Evening Post, announced yesterday that on Jan. 1 he would become associated with Harper & Brothers. Mr. Gavit will be a Director of the Harper organization, and will devote his attention both to the magazine and to books.

"I leave the active service of The Evening Post with a reluctance and a regret that it would be impossible to exaggerate," said Mr. Gavit yesterday. "Reasons of a strictly personal character, of interest only to myself and my family, make it imperative for me to retire from the daily newspaper business; otherwise, nothing that I can imagine would have induced me to leave The Evening Post."

Mr. Gavit will continue as a member of the Board of Trustees of The Evening Post.

Dance for Soldiers' Club Canteen.

A dance for the benefit of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Home Club Canteen, given under the auspices of the National Special Aid Society, was held last night at Dodworth's, 12 East Forty-ninth Street. There were about 200 present. The patronesses included Mrs. John Purroy Mitchel, Mrs. Junius Morgan, Mrs. Oliver Harriman, Mrs. J. Stewart Barney, Mrs. Edward R. Stettinius, Mrs. Harold Pratt, Mrs. Henry Sanford, Mrs. J. Nelson Shreve, and Mrs. Devereux Milburn.

"Big Six" Gives a Ball Tonight.

The sixty-eighth annual ball of Typographical Union No. 6, which is known in the printing trade all over the United States as "Big Six," will be held tonight at Sulzer's Harlem Casino. The proceeds, as usual, will be devoted to the hospital fund of the union.

1,000 GREET BARUCHS AT GOLDEN WEDDING

President Wilson Sends Basket of Chrysanthemums to Dr. and Mrs. Simon Baruch.

GIFTS REFLECT THEIR WORK

Four Sons, with Wives and Children, in Family Group at Sherry's—National Anthem Played.

Dr. and Mrs. Simon Baruch of 51 West Seventieth Street celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding last night with a large reception at Sherry's, more than a thousand guests attending. They stood on a dais on the south side of the large ballroom, in front of a basket of immense golden wedding chrysanthemums, sent by President Wilson, and received their relatives and friends, who began to arrive at 9 o'clock. Mrs. Baruch wore a trailing gown of white and gold brocaded satin and chiffon, with diamond ornaments.

The entire ballroom suite was used, and the ballroom was massed with thousands of yellow chrysanthemums, some of them in huge baskets sent by various organizations, for Mrs. Baruch is prominent in women's clubs.

Receiving with Dr. and Mrs. Baruch were their four sons, with their wives, including Bernard M. Baruch, appointed by the President as a member of the Advisory Committee of the Council of National Defense, and Mrs. Baruch; Dr. and Mrs. Herman B. Baruch, Mr. and Mrs. Hartwig N. Baruch, and Mr. and Mrs. Sailing W. Baruch. Eight of their nine grandchildren were also in the family group.

When the guests had all assembled the orchestra played "The Star-Spangled Banner," after which selections of patriotic and old-time songs were sung by a trio. Later, a buffet collation was served in the rooms adjoining at small tables. On the buffet table a small fountain sparkled in a golden light.

Many gifts were received by Dr. and Mrs. Baruch, which were displayed at their home in West Seventieth Street. Among them was a gold replica of the tablet placed by the municipal authorities a few weeks ago at the Rivington Street bath, commemorating his work in obtaining the bath, which bears his name, he being the first man in the United States to introduce municipal baths. Also a gold loving cup from the Charity Hospital which Bernard M. Baruch presented several years ago to the City of Camden, S. C., in honor of his father, who lived there before the civil war, and an illuminated address from the Directors of the Montefiore Home and Hospital, of which Dr. Baruch was one of the founders.

Mrs. Baruch, as Regent of the Knickerbocker Chapter of the D. A. R. and President of the Southland Club, received many floral offerings. She is also Vice President of the Minerva Club and former Vice President of the Eclectic Club.

Dr. and Mrs. Baruch were married in 1867. Mrs. Baruch was formerly Miss Isabel Wolfe of Winnsboro, S. C. The South has always claimed Dr. Baruch, although he has lived here since 1881, because of his long residence there, and the fact that he served as a surgeon in the field with General Robert E. Lee's army. He was born in Schwersenz, Germany, on July 20, 1840.

He is known widely through his writings and lectures and as a consulting specialist in chronic diseases. In 1889 he diagnosed the first recorded case of perforating appendicitis successfully operated on, and was formerly Professor of Hydrotherapy at the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Among the guests were Emile de Cartier de Marchienne, the Belgian Minister; Borough President of Manhattan and Mrs. Marcus M. Marks, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Vogel, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Straus, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Schwab, Mr. and Mrs. Felix M. Warburg, Adolph Lewisohn, the Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise, and Mr. and Mrs. Jacob H. Schiff.

The Rev. Dr. John D. Whitney.

BOSTON, Nov. 27.—The Rev. John D. Whitney, former President of Georgetown University at Washington and prominent in the Jesuit Order, died today at the Faculty House of Boston College. He was on leave of absence from Loyola College, Baltimore, having been in failing health for more than a year. For several years prior to his service at Baltimore, he was Treasurer of Boston College. He was a native of Nantucket.

Herman Vogel.

Herman Vogel of the banking firm of Schefer, Schramm and Vogel died yesterday at his residence, Tuxedo Park. Mr. Vogel was born in Switzerland in 1854 and came to this country as the agent of Swiss silk manufacturers in 1876. In 1888 he became a member of the firm of Schefer, Schramm and Vogel.

Professor Edward Hull, Geologist.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Professor Edward Hull, well-known English geologist, died here, according to an announcement made today. He was born in Ireland in 1829. In 1883 he was the leader of a scientific expedition to Arabia and Palestine.

Jameson to be Buried Beside Rhodes

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The body of Sir Leander Starr Jameson, associate of Cecil Rhodes and leader of the Jameson raid, who died yesterday in London, will be sent to Buluwayo, British South Africa, for interment. It will be buried beside the body of Mr. Rhodes.

The Rev. James Avery Skinner.

The Rev. James Avery Skinner, who had devoted sixty-five years in the ministry, died in St. Luke's Hospital on Sunday from pneumonia. He was 82 years old and lived at 796 East 166th Street, the Bronx. Mr. Skinner was born in Oswego County, N. Y., and was graduated from Hamilton College and the Union Theological Seminary. After his ordination in the Presbytery of New York, in 1862, he went to Santa Clara, Cal., where he organized the Westminster Presbyterian Church. In 1888, Mr. Skinner was ordained to the priesthood of the Protestant Episcopal Church and then for several years served as missionary and assistant rector of churches in Long Island and Brooklyn. For the last several years, Mr. Skinner had been missionary in charge of the chapels of the Atonement, the Good Shepherd, and Emmanuel, in the Bronx. Mr. Skinner was a member of Montauk Lodge, No. 286, F. and A. M., of Brooklyn of which he was for several years chaplain.

REACH FINAL ROUND OF SQUASH TOURNEY

A. W. Riley Will Meet F. Van S. Hyde Today—Exhibition Between Kinsella and Feron.

A. W. Riley, former Princeton Club squash tennis champion, but now playing from the Squash Club, and Fillmore Van S. Hyde, second in rank among the Harvard Club players, advanced to the final round of the annual Fall tournament at the Squash Club yesterday, the victories of each being registered in straight games. Riley, who was expected to have rather a hard time of it in advancing past the Harvard Club expert, J. W. Appel, succeeded in vanquishing his rival by rather a one-sided score of 15-5, 15-9. Hyde put a fellow Harvard Club player, J. Onatavia, out of the race with the score 15-5, 15-10.

The match between Riley and Appel was the centre of interest, for it was generally conceded that Hyde would have little difficulty in forcing the abdication from the tournament of Onatavia. Riley has for some time been a proficient wielder of the racquet, but he transcended his former skill in yesterday's contest. In his work there was a reflection of the style of play which has made Walter A. Kinsella the world's professional champion. Kinsella has been coaching Riley for some two months and Appel doubtless found his opponent a decidedly stronger rival than he had anticipated.

Appel's game is based largely on speed. He hits with great power at all times, but Riley met this attack without a tremor and made remarkable gets in the early stages of the conflict that presaged what was to be the eventual outcome of the match. Riley could not begin to match pace with his antagonist and fell back on a type of strategy which was finely developed to bring confusion to Appel's game. He changed pace in baffling manner and used the Kinsella passing shot to its full advantage. Then too he was more accurate in his stroking of the ball. He hit low, but seldom into the telltale and his corner shots were elusive.

The Harvard Club player, however, was far from being an easy victim. He fought determinedly for every point and the rallies were often long sustained until Riley's greater steadiness frequently decided the issue.

In the first game Appel was evidently taken by surprise by the swift rush of points that fell to Riley's play. In the second, however, he came more nearly to solving the game of his rival and the closeness of the contest is reflected in the score of 15-9.

Hyde was never pressed to display the full power of his game against Onatavia. Next to Winston, Hyde is probably the most adept and graceful squash tennis player hereabouts and it was evident from the start yesterday that the measure of his superiority over Onatavia was large.

The final round of the tournament will be played this afternoon. Following the match between Hyde and Riley, Walter A. Kinsella, the world's professional squash tennis champion, will play an exhibition match for the Red Cross against his old rival Stephen J. Feron, professional at Harvard, himself a former holder of the professional championships. Kinsella will allow Feron five aces in each game this afternoon.

YALE TRACK MEN REPORT.

Coach Mack Has Squad Preparing for Indoor Meets.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 27.—Yale athletes who are expected to try for places on the track and field team reported for the initial practice of the season yesterday. Coach Mack ordered all interested into the baseball cage and announced to the assembled candidates that there would be training every day excepting Sunday from now on until the mid-Winter holidays.

It is expected that those men who round to condition early will be entered in some of the Amateur Athletic Union indoor meets held in New York and Boston this Winter. It is almost certain that Yale will be represented in the annual meets of the Boston Athletic Association, the Meadowbrook A. C. of Philadelphia, and the New York A. C. games, provided the N. Y. A. C. holds a meet this season.

Coach Mack will give most of his attention to the development of hurdle and sprint men. Few veterans of any ability in these events have returned to the university this year. The coach made it known that the Winter work is important for track men, especially as it fits them for the outdoor season in the Spring and brings them to high efficiency more quickly.

Distance men will report, for the time being, to Coach Queal at the track house on Yale Field. Numerous races for these men will be held every few days.

TRACK MEET FOR SOLDIERS.

Camp Upton Athletes to Compete in N. Y. A. C. Games.

Officials of the New York Athletic Club announced last night that 5,000 soldiers from Camp Upton, Yaphank, L. I., will compete in the club's set of track games to be held at the camp next Saturday. In preparation for this large turnout Paul Pilgrim of the Winged Foot organization is now at Yaphank attending to final arrangements for the meet. The day will be officially known as "New York Athletic Club Day," and promises to make one of the greatest days in the history of the camp. Assisting Pilgrim in the preparations for the meet are Frank Glick, the former Princeton athlete, who is civilian aid at the camp; Matthew P. Halpin, Chairman of the New York A. C. Athletic Committee, and Captain Arthur McAleenan of the New York A. C.

Eight events have been arranged, and in addition there will be a series of athletic exhibitions by prominent competitors of the New York A. C. The large number of entries will be decreased by the elimination process through a number of trials to be held before the day of the meet. The events are 100-yard dash, 75-yard equipment race, 60-yard rescue race, 220-yard hurdles and obstacle race, hand-grenade throwing contest, medicine ball race, flag relay race, and a four-mile cross-country run.

SIX-DAY CYCLISTS TRAIN.

Thirty Riders Get Into Condition for Race at Newark Velodrome.

Almost every one of the riders entered in the annual six-day bicycling race to be held in Madison Square Garden, beginning Sunday night at midnight, were training for the long grind over the Newark Velodrome track yesterday. Led by Frank Kramer, former sprint champion, and Oscar Egg, who are paired for the long grind, there were thirty riders busy at the same time. Kramer and Egg are expected to make a formidable team along with such contenders as Alfred Goullet and Jack Magin, Eddie Root and Peter Drobach, and Eddie Madden and Frank Corry.

It was Egg's first workout since his arrival from France Monday. The Swiss champion insists that he is in good condition and well able to stand the long grind. He has ridden in many long races in Europe during the last year. Bobby Walthour and Paul Suter, another foreigner who arrived with Egg, practiced together. They are to team in the race. Walthour rode with Suter over European tracks last Summer, and is well acquainted with his partner.

TENNIS LEAGUE ADVOCATED.

Kings County Members Advance Scheme to Keep Sport Alive.

With the idea of not only keeping alive but of stimulating interest in tennis even during the war period, it was proposed at the annual meeting of the Kings County Tennis Club, held last night at the home of Frank B. Ogilvie, President of the club, that a league of clubs be formed next season for the holding of week-end tournaments. The plan was first suggested by Charles Chambers, H. L. Westfall and Henry Mollenhauer, and was received enthusiastically at last night's meeting.

It was suggested that the following clubs, in addition to Kings County, would enter such a league as that proposed: The West Side Tennis Club, New York Athletic Club, Crescent Athletic Club, Montclair Athletic Club, University Heights Lawn Tennis Club, Terrace Club of Flatbush and Englewood Field Club.

The retiring members of the Board of Directors, Charles Chambers, A. A. Leverich and Jesse Fuller, advocated that the club cultivate the game of tennis among junior members, and that many special tournaments for them be held during the year.

There was no change in the officers of the club, all of the present incumbents being re-elected. The officers are: President, Frank B. Ogilvie; Vice President, Arthur J. Murphy; Secretary, J. W. Anderson, and Treasurer, Augustus R. Platt. Three changes will be made in the Board of Governors. H. L. Westfall, recent winner of the club championship; H. J. Morganthaler and Harry Lewis were elected to fill the places now occupied by A. A. Leverich, Jesse Fuller and Charles Chambers.

SUMMON BOXING OFFICIALS.

Fighters Also Called to Answer for Bouts at New Polo A. A.

Magistrate Ten Eyck, in the Harlem Police Court yesterday, issued seven summonses for the officials of the New Polo A. A. of Harlem and the boxers who took part in bouts at the club last Friday night. It is alleged in the complaint that those for whom summonses were issued promoted and engaged in boxing exhibitions in defiance of the law prohibiting such exhibitions. The summonses were made returnable on Friday. The affidavits on which they were issued were sworn to by Police Lieutenant Butler and four detectives from the Fourth Inspection District, acting under instructions from Inspector Morris.

The bouts last Friday night were the first that the officials of the New Polo A. A. have held since the Frawley law was annulled. They were carried on under the membership plan. The police officers in their complaint say that they were permitted to enter the club and witness the exhibitions after signing application blanks for membership in the organization and paying a nominal initiation fee.

On Friday also the case of the officials of the Broadway Sporting Club of Brooklyn will be called in the Gates Avenue Court before Magistrate Howard Nash. Both cases are similar and upon the decisions in each will depend the future of boxing in this city.

RICH PRIZES FOR BOXERS.

City A. C. to Give Diamond Rings to Amateur Winners.

Some of the best pries ever offered in a local amateur boxing tournament are to be distributed by the officials of the City Athletic Club of West Fifty-fourth Street in the club's nex amateur tournament to be held on Dec. 11 and 13. To the successful boxers and those beaten in the final bouts in each class will go diamond rings, while safety razors will be distributed among the losing contestants in the semi-final bouts. A scarf pin will also go to every non-prize winner who weighs in and competes, and a point trophy has been donated to be presented to the club having the largest number of entries. Competition will be held in five classes.

NEWS OF ATHLETICS.

Hannes Kolehmainen, the veteran Finnish distance runner, is expected to start in the tenth annual Berwick modified marathon race which will be held tomorrow at Berwick, Penn. Kolehmainen has won the event two years in succession, but is promised stiffer opposition this year with Jimmy Henigan, the Boston runner, who recently won the senior national A. A. U. title; Clifton Horne, another Hub athlete; Juan Routzo, the Indian runner of Carlisle; Terry Halping, the local distance runner, and several other stars.

A field of about thirty harriers is expected to start in the tenth annual Yonkers marathon, through streets and roads of Yonkers, tomorrow. Officials of the race are hopeful that Villar Kyronen, the Finnish runner of the Millrose A. A., who won the event last year, will be among the starters. Already twenty-eight names have been received. The race will be twenty-five miles.

The Meadowbrook Club of Philadelphia will conduct its annual five-mile race tomorrow, and indications point to a large number of athletes competing in the run, with a representation of harriers from the metropolitan district. Another event tomorrow which is expected to attract its quota of entries among the local athletes is the Orange County championship. This race will be conducted over a course from Goshen to Middletown.

Officials of the Morningside A. C. are enthusiastic over the prospects of success attending their army and navy road run which will be held Sunday. Already fifteen entries have been received from the soldier athletes of Camp Dix, at Wrightstown, N. J., and there is every indication that the race will attract entries from Camp Upton, Yaphank, L. I.; Forts Wadsworth and Hamilton, and the United States Army Ambulance Corps at Allentown, Penn.

Dates have been announced for four sets of indoor games. The Millrose A. A. will hold its annual indoor carnival on Jan. 23, and then will come the John Wanamaker Commercial Institute games, Meadowbrook Club games, and the senior national A. A. U. indoor championships. The latter competitions are usually held on the third Saturday in March, while the Meadowbrook Club holds its carnival on the second Saturday.

The next weekly handicap road run of the Yorkville Athletic League will be held from the Ninety-second Street Y. M. H. A. Sunday, and will have representatives of St. John's Club, Ninety-second Street Y. M. H. A., Union Settlement A. C., Hungarian-American A. C., St. Thomas's Club, and East Side House among the starters. Al Feher, the Hungarian-American Club's harrier, will start from scratch.

Entry blanks have been issued by the officials of the Morningside Athletic Club for the club's army and navy road race, which will be held over a course in Harlem, Sunday, starting and finishing at Central Club Casino, 154th Street, east of Eighth Avenue. The run will be for athletes in the service only and no entrance fee will be charged. The distance of the course mapped out is about five miles. The proceeds from the run will be used in purchasing athletic paraphernalia for the various local army camps.

Officials of the Long Island Athletic League at their first monthly meeting at the Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A. elected Frank J. Ruddy, Brooklyn A. A., President to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of James Clark, who is now an athletic director at Camp Upton, Yaphank, L. I. Charles Hicks, Kings County A. A., was elected handicapper for the coming season. Plans for the 1917-18 road-running season were discussed and a decision was reached to inaugurate the season next Sunday with a run from the Swedish-American A. C.'s quarters in Brooklyn.

Bothner to Referee Wrestling.

George Bothner, former wrestling champion, is to referee the series of matches to be held in the catch-as-catch-can tournament which is to start at the Lexington Theatre Dec. 3. Bothner has officiated at most of the wrestling matches held in New York in the last few years.

JULIALEON BEATEN IN RACE AT BOWIE

Promising Filly Fails to Reveal Previous Form and Loses in Slow Race.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 27.—Horses that had not won previously at the meeting came together this afternoon in the Autumn Consolation Handicap at a mile, and although some good performers were among the starters, the cold wind seemed to affect their speed, and the race was won by A. Lezama's Shooting Star in the slow time of 1:42 1-5. Three two-year-olds essayed the competition with older horses, but not one of them finished in the money. Perhaps the greatest disappointment was the comparatively poor showing made by G. W. Loft's Julialeon, a three-year-old filly that established track records at Saratoga. Julialeon appears to have lost the early foot that made her so formidable at the outset of the season, and the best she could do was to finish third, behind Shooting Star and M. Shea's Woodstone.

The best performance of the day was placed to the credit of Paul Powers's Bringhurst in the second race, at six and a half furlongs. This son of Plaudit exhibited the sprinting pace that gained him several victories early in the Maryland season, and at all times had the foot of his field. Buxton hustled him along at such a good pace that he completed the distance in 1:20 1-5, not far behind the track record. Bringhurst was opposed by a fair lot of sprinters, but although he was conceding weight to all the other starters, he was at odds on at the close of the mutuel speculation. The Thorncliffe Stable's Incog ran second and Grant Hugh Browne's Josefina Zarate third.

There were several surprises, the greatest coming when G. L. Goodacre's Golden Bantam won the fifth race, at a mile and a sixteenth. Very few considered the daughter of Star Shoot-Autumn Leaves as a contender, but J. Mooney, who rode her for the first time, appeared to get more out of the filly than had the other boys, and landed her in front of Handfull, another outsider. Golden Bantam paid better than 30 to 1. Billy Oliver scored a popular victory in the last race, when G. Walls managed to get Judge Wingfield home in front of E. K. Bryson's Vermont.

The summaries:

COCHRAN DISPLAYS TOP BILLIARD FORM

Young Player Has Average of 50 in Match at 18.2 Against Mayer.

Welker Cochran showed the true merit of his billiard game yesterday in the second and third blocks of his 2,500-point 18.2 match with Joseph Mayer of Philadelphia at Maurice Daly's Academy. By the excellence of his work he drew rapidly away from his rival, and is now leading by a score of 850 to 413. In the afternoon game Cochran defeated Mayer, 250 to 130, and made a high run of 158 and an average of 35 5-7.

In the evening his superiority was even more pronounced, Mayer being hopelessly outclassed by the brilliancy with which Cochran nursed the ivories. In this block Mayer was defeated by 300 to 64. Cochran averaged an even 50, and again passed beyond the 100 mark with his high run, which was 119. Mayer made his best run in the afternoon, when he clustered a count of 54, and his average was 21 4-6. In the evening his play was only about half as effective as regards high runs and average.

In recent matches in this city Cochran has shown a disposition to play the ivories wide open, but yesterday he demonstrated beyond question that he is still a master of the close-nurse game. His work was a revelation in artistic billiards. He was always master of the ivories, and made them do his bidding with almost mechanical precision. His high run of the day, 158, was a product of the closest kind of play, with a delicate weaving of the spheres across the short table and an occasional use of the line nurse for sizable clusters.

In the afternoon the Chicago expert only failed to count in double figures on two occasions, and in the evening he missed double counts only once. After a run of 4 at the outset of the evening game he gathered in a culster of 119, and followed this with runs of 72, 30, and 42 to run out his 300 points.

Mayer could never get started against such a formidable bit of play as that set forth by Cochran. An average of 35 is far beyond Mayer's ability under any but extraordinary circumstances, and when Cochran cut out an average of 50 in the evening Mayer was forced to sit idly by and witness disaster engulf him. He could not even summon the better quality of his game in an effort to hold down the margin of success for his opponent. There was little opportunity for him to get the ivories under control, and even when he did succeed he could not hold them for a continued run.

The scores:

AFTERNOON GAME.

Cochran—35 14 20 0 20 3 158. Total—250. Average—35 5-7. High runs—158 and 35.

Mayer—22 54 39 1 12 2. Total—130. Average—21 4-6. High runs—54 and 39.

EVENING GAME.

FORDHAM TO PLAY SOLDIERS

Gridiron Contest with Camp Upton Arranged for Tomorrow.

It was announced last night at Fordham University that arrangements had been completed whereby the Fordham eleven would play the Camp Upton team, headed by Franak Glick, tomorrow afternoon at Fordham Field. It was originally intended that Fordham play Fort Slocum, but somehow a conflict arose, and as Camp Upton wanted a game, Fordham agreed to the contest between the elevens.

FULTON KNOCKS OUT SMITH.

Minnesota Heavyweight Disposes of Opponent in Seventh Round.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 27.—Fred Fulton, Minnesota heavyweight, knocked out Gunboat Smith in the seventh round of their scheduled ten-round fight here tonight. Smith's seconds tossed in a sponge to save him from further punishment.

Gillo Is Colgate Captain.

Special to The New York Times.

UTICA, N. Y., Nov. 27.—Henry C. Gillo of Milwaukee today was elected Captain of the Colgate football team for 1918. Gillo is regarded locally as one of the best line plungers in the East. He has played three years as full back on the Colgate 'Varsity.

PENN ERASES ROUGH EDGES.

Quakers Put Finishing Touches on Eleven for Cornell Game.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 27.—Coach Bob Folwell put the finishing touches on his Penn football aggregation today for the all-important Thanksgiving Day game with Cornell. The team dispensed with scrimmage drill, but the coach sent it through a hard workout so as to run no chances of his athletes being out of form for the Red and White squad. The entire eleven was on Franklin Field for practice with the exception of Captain Heine Miller.

Buck Wharton and Roy Mercer were on the field aiding Folwell in grooming the men. Mercer devoted his time to the Quaker backfield, and showed Berry and his comrades several finer points of football.

Folwell lined up the scrubs to oppose the 'Varsity. The second string players used the Cornell formations. Only a shadow scrimmage took place, the Penn coaches wishing to play safe and run no risks of injuries before the biggest game of the year. The regulars had no trouble breaking up the attacks launched by the scrub combination.

Captain Miller's damaged hand has shown improvement and Miller stated today he would be in the game.

FINAL GAMES FOR W. AND J.

Will Play W. and L. Tomorrow and Soldier Eleven Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Penn., Nov. 27.—Nineteen Washington and Jefferson football players left here tonight for the final games of the season, one at Richmond, on Thanksgiving Day, with Washington and Lee, and the other on Saturday at Toledo, Ohio, with the Camp Sherman soldiers, the latter a post-season army benefit event. The men making the trip are Captain McCreight, Carroll, Henry, Wilberly, Guy, Straw, Stein, Tressel, Stobbs, Smith, Ruble, Rese, Garbisch, Neal, Bixler, Young, Fiter, Creel, and Lally.

There was no practice today, but Coach Metzger hopes to hold a signal drill at Richmond tomorrow afternoon. Henry and Wilberly, two of the best line men, are suffering from injuries sustained in the Notre Dame game, but it is thought they will be able to play on Thursday. Smith, who has been out of two games, has recovered from his injuries, and will be in the backfield. Washington and Jefferson expects to win from Washington and Lee, but is dubious about the Camp Sherman clash, as it knows nothing of this team except that it is composed of former college stars.

EGAN WILL LEAD N. Y. U.

Quarter Back of Football Team Elected Captain for Next Year.

At a meeting of the Executive Council of the New York University Athletic Association yesterday, the members of this year's football team elected Quarter Back Floyd Egan Captain for next year. Egan, who was the mainstay of the Violet this year, and whose drop kick defeated Columbia last week, is a member of the Class of 1919. He comes from Brooklyn, where he attended Manual Training High School. Besides being a gridiron star Egan has won his letters in basket ball, track, and baseball.

Sidney J. Weinlander of Flatbush, a member of the Class of 1919, was elected Manager for 1918. Letters were awarded to the following: Egan, Finley, Fernandez, Goff, Brin, Goldberg, Sokolower, Gardiner, Christopher, Gilloon, Ebenfeld, Buckley, and Güntzer, Manager. Numerals were awarded to Billo, Covello, Fiedelbaum, Sulzer, Baker, Stellwagen, Wirth, Storch, and Weinlander, Assistant Manager.

Amateurs to Box at Newark.

Amateur boxing bouts at 110, 118, 128, 138, and 148 pounds will be held in the first tournament of the season for the National Turn-Verein of Newark, on the nights of Dec. 1 and 3. The entries will close Thursday.

CORNELL'S LINEUP IS STILL IN DOUBT

Coach Sharpe Not Expected to Pick Eleven for Penn Game Until Last Moment.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 27.—The makeup of the Cornell team in the game against Penn may not be known until after the players reach the clubhouse on Franklin Field Thursday noon. Dr. Al Sharpe, head coach of the teams, said today that he was not yet ready to announce his selections, intimating that much might depend on the condition of the players after the long trip to Philadelphia.

There were reports among the undergraduates today that in the signal drills Sharpe had been experimenting with a number of radical shifts, and that surprises might be forthcoming Thursday, but the head coach was silent on this question. The Ithacans worked for more than an hour in a final practice of the formations on which Nethercott will rely in the game, and it was noticeable that frequent changes were made in the lineup both in the forwards and backfield. Based on the work of the last two days the coaches are certain to place Colvin and Spiegelberg at the ends, and Herriman and probably Harris at tackles with Swanson, Straus, and Trowbridge probable selections for the centre trio, though there is a possibility of unexpected last minute changes.

Nethercott will play quarter back and Acting Captain Hoffman is certain to play in the backfield. Carry has come to the front fast in the last week, and he is likely to replace Cross at left half back for part of the game at least. Coach Sharpe said he would take thirty-seven men to Philadelphia, including all of the 'Varsity squad and fifteen scrubs.

Weeks to Lead Brown.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 27.—Joshua H. Weeks of New Bedford, Mass.) was elected Captain of the Brown University football team last night. He has played at end for three years.

Feels like *"Forefathers' Cloth."

It is.

We've reproduced as nearly as possible the cloth of 1620—substantial stuff and mighty handsome. The wool comes from the same County of Norfolk, England, that was the chief seat of the woolen industry back in the 17th Century.

Shades characteristic of the folks who landed on the stern and rockbound coast.

Excellent suits for business.

"Shire" collars are all linen where the wear comes.

BOND CLUB HEARS ECONOMY APPEAL

D. W. Morrow of Morgan & Co. Urges Sale of War Certificates.

STOUT HEARTS WILL WIN

Banker Warns Members Not to Be Discouraged by Temporary Military Setbacks.

Dwight W. Morrow of J. P. Morgan & Co., in an address yesterday before several hundred members of the New York Bond Men's Club, 120 Broadway, urged them to take an active part in war economy, by assisting in the sale of war savings certificates.

"The fundamental principle which underlies the war savings movement," said Mr. Morrow, "is to release labor and material for the Government. It is not primarily a bond-selling movement; it is primarily a national thrift movement to conserve materials and labor now utilized for non-essentials. It is the doctrine of releasing services for the Government. It is a doctrine of releasing man power for the Government. And in this war savings campaign if men and women do without goods and services now by lending $4.12 to the Government and getting a bond that pays them $5, five years from now, they are obviously deferring the command of goods and services until a future time when with the proceeds of that bond they will again command goods and services.

"The important thing is that they will at that time be commanding goods and services for which their Government is not in such acute competition with them. It is all summed up in that one expression, that no man ever spends anything without making some one else work for him."

Quoting Lloyd George Mr. Morrow pointed out that the war would have its disasters as well as its successes, its defeats as well as its victories, and that it would be won in the end by the nation with the "stoutest heart."

"The nation that can do without the most for the longest period," said Mr. Morrow, "that will be the nation with the stoutest heart. War means discouragement; war means disappointment. War means the making of plans over and over and over again, and watching the frustration of those plans over and over again. War means a Gallipoli, and perhaps another Gallipoli; another Rumanian and another Italian disaster. War means discouragement until all but the soutest hearts are sick. This war will be won by the nation that can best stand disappointment, by the nation that has the stoutest heart. It is going to depend upon men like you all over the United States whether or no America shall be the nation with the stoutest heart."

George F. Baker, Jr., Vice President of the First National Bank and a member of the Red Cross Mission which recently returned from the Italian front, described some of his impressions of the Italian Army. From what he had seen of Italian soldiery, he said, he had complete confidence in its ability to convert the recent reverses into final success. During the Teuton advance into Northrn Italy, he said, the Italians were forced to abandon hospitals containing 100,000 beds. A good portion of the prisoners taken by the Germans, he said, were undoubtedly wounded Italian soldiers.

"The Italian Army is well fed, well clothed, and well able to keep up its end of the fight," said Mr. Baker. "Even though circumstances may force it to yield its position on the Piave, I have no doubt that it will organize its new lines at the Adige to such great advantage that the enemy will finally find its venture into Italy fruitless of results."

OCTOBER IMPORTS DECLINE.

$25,560,485 of Dutiable Merchandise Entered—$32,742,280 in 1916.

A detailed summary of foreign trade in the customs district of New York for October, made public yesterday by Collector Byron R. Newton, showed that dutiable imports in the shape of manufactured goods entered here declined last month when compared with October, 1916. On the other hand, merchandise returned as free of duty, and for the most part consisting of crude or raw materials for use in American industrial plants, last month exceeded similar entries twelve months ago. Last month's transactions in precious metals and merchandise, compared with October, 1916, were as follows:

Gold and Silver.

Imports.
Gold, foreign	$1,512,928	$1,225,028
Gold, domestic	1,735	None.
Silver, foreign	1,721,486	884,198
Silver, domestic	856	2,535
Exports.
Gold, foreign	9,756	9,575
Gold, domestic	1,301,858	7,474,922
Silver, foreign	241,094	9,643
Silver, domestic	5,154,132	1,268,936

Merchandise.

	1916.	1917.
Imports for consumption, (free)	$49,139,364	$55,705,688
Imports for consumption, (dutiable)	32,742,280	25,560,485
Imports for warehouse	7,523,255	10,053,313
Withdrawn from warehouse for consumption	13,062,844	7,017,150
Exports, domestic	235,979,794	218,377,029
Exports, foreign	2,495,116	1,531,683

October duty collections on direct importations amounted to $6,616,831, against $8,793,351 in the corresponding month last year. Withdrawals from warehouse in October called for duty payments totaling $2,931,197, whereas in October, 1916, such collections had a value of $4,693,808.

Want Trade Bureau Cared For.

Believing that upon the success of the efforts of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce will to a considerable degree depend the increasing of American exports of textiles after the war, the National Council of American Cotton Manufacturers has passed resolutions urging Congress to allow liberal appropriations for the support and development of the bureau. It further urges that the men of the ablest business talents be included in the personnel of the bureau. Copies of the resolution have been forwarded to the President, the Senate, and the House.

Crude Rubber Prices Steadier.

A little more active trading, in which big buyers joined only to a limited extent if at all, kept local crude rubber prices from dropping as much as usual in the week just closed. However, they closed generally below the prices current at that time. Up-river fine was quoted at 55 cents, spot, with coarse at 37 and upper Caucho ball at 35. The plantations brought 57 cents for spot first latex, and 56 cents for prompt shipments of smoked sheets. The market is now thought to be "scraping bottom," and higher prices are predicted by sellers in spite of the dilatory buying tactics of the bigger manufacturers.

Cold Weather Hits Coal Trade.

The Coal Trade Journal will say today that the sharp weather which arrived over the week-end found the local retail trade poorly prepared to meet a sudden increase in demand. For a long time past coal has been going out of the yards as fast as received, so there is no reserve to draw upon. From all accounts there has been little, if any, recent increase in the tonnage coming to this market. Trading in the bituminous market remains practically at a standstill. Mining companies and jobbers alike are putting everything on contract. The only exception is an occasional odd lot which, for one reason or another, has to be disposed of at the Government price.

Jobbers Like Hem Tops.

If makers of men's hemmed top hosiery of the new type, in which a double four-inch top is knitted and welted in a single operation, were as sure of a liberal reception of their product by the consumers as has been given it by the jobbing trade, they would have very little to worry about. Not that they are really worrying, for they feel that the advantages of the new sock over the ribbed top can easily be demonstrated by retail sales clerks. That the jobbers favor the new socks is shown by orders for several thousand dozens which have been received in various quarters before the mills are equipped with the special machines to turn them out. While these jobbers are calling mostly for cotton hose, the new tops are also being favorably regarded by them in medium-priced silk goods.

New Bathing Suit Styles.

New bathing suit styles for the Palm Beach trade and for Spring, as shown by a number of local manufacturers, include most of the striking effects that were produced so successfully this Fall in women's dresses. The bustle effect is variously treated, in several cases the designers going so far as to use wire for stiffening purposes. In these creations taffetas and satins are most frequently used, sometimes in black and unadorned, other times in bright solids or in brilliant color combinations. There are also stripes and plaids, both large and small, in all the popular shades of the day. The tunics which proved so popular last Summer are again in evidence this year in many attractive variations.

Holiday Neckwear Selling.

Holiday buying of men's neckwear in the local department stores is said to have started in already with fair activity. Though some small stripes and checks in black and white and other hues are sought, it is reported that the most popular so far have been of large splash designs in the more subdued colors. Brocaded four-in-hands have been unusually popular, the quieter shades in these also being the most in demand. In some of the more expensive lines Persian effects and large jacquard figures have attracted a great deal of attention. The bias as well as the straight-cut type are used, and both seem to be well taken.

Something New Is Badly Needed.

That the cry the retail milliners are sending up for new things is not camouflage is shown by the experience a well-posted millinery man had recently during the luncheon hour at one of the city's smartest hotels. He went there to see if he could come upon something new, and this is what he said afterward: "The styles were what might be called mediocre, with the Russian turban absolutely dominant—the same Russian turban that has been selling for the last year in the better millinery departments. Not a single departure in the way of shapes or trimmings was noted."

Gray Goods Trade in the Air.

With cotton at its highest point since 1869, the lid was torn off in the local gray goods market yesterday by buyers who wanted to cover as far into 1918 as the mills would sell. With some of the latter by no means anxious to take up long contracts, and others refusing outright unless top prices were paid, it can be seen that trading for these positions could have been more active. The scarcity of actual spots of all constructions kept the bulk of the trading confined to deliveries wanted in the next three to four months. Contract business was done on printcloths at these levels: 39-inch 68-72s, 13½ cents; 38½-inch 64-60s, 11¾ cents; 60-52s, 10⅝ cents, and 60-48s, at 10¼ cents. Sheetings, drills, and specialties continued to move where sellers had not put the clamps on, with all prices "top." Spot printcloth prices ranged about this way:

39-inch, 80-80s	16c	39-inch, 64-60s	12c
39-inch, 72-76s	*15c	39-inch, 64-56s	11⅝c
39-inch, 68-72s	*14c	39-inch, 80-52s	10⅞c
39-inch, 56-44s	9⅝c	39-inch, 60-48s	10⅜c
38½c-inch, 64-64s	12½c	27-inch, 64-60s	*8⅝c

*Asked.

Coat-Dress for Spring.

The coat-dress, which proved to be so popular this Fall, and which many believe was a big factor in the reduced demand for suits, is very much in evidence in the early Spring styles. It is variously treated and many attractive arrangements of materials are displayed. Wool velour is used extensively, and so is wool jersey cloth. In many of the garments the bustle effect is beautifully worked out, sometimes in modified forms, sometimes quite extreme. The straight silhouette, however, has also been given a good deal of attention and thought by designers, and especially in the "stylish stouts" great ingenuity is shown. Houses with men out on the road are already said to be receiving substantial orders, and everything points, they say, to a prosperous 1918 season.

Some Eastern Underwear Priced.

Buyers who came to this market yesterday in the hope of a general opening of Fall, 1918, lines of ribbed and fleeced underwear were disappointed. Several well-known ribbed lines were opened at prices running from 45 to 60 per cent. above those quoted for 1917 goods a year ago this time, but other lines, it was announced, will probably not be priced before Monday next. Fleeced goods probably will be opened at that time also. Many of the prices made yesterday were tentative, and it is probable that several of them will be withdrawn by today. As for the actual figures, a line of 11-pound ribbed shirts and drawers was opened at $8 a dozen, against $5.50 a dozen last year. Others brought as low as $7.50, while 15 and 16 pound union suits for men were priced anywhere from $4 to $5 a dozen higher than last year. In percentages these advances were practically the same as on separate garments.

CANADIAN WHEAT POURS IN.

Volume Entering United States Greatly Increased with Duty Off.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Canadian wheat is pouring into the United States duty free through every customs district on the northern border in largely increasing volume, the Department of Commerce announced today.

For the nine months ended with last September, this country imported from Canada 21,490,269 bushels, more than 14,000,000 of which came in free after April 16, the date on which Canada removed its import duty on wheat. During these nine months wheat-flour imports totaled 403,270 barrels, of which 297,000 came in free, against a total of 157,289 barrels in the same period of 1916, and hardly more than 90,000 in 1915.

Movement of Canadian flour to the west coast is noticeable.

Illustrations Are a Feature

6000 PAGES—1000 PAGES OF PICTURES

There are 1000 pages of illustrations of battle scenes, photographs of great leaders and views of towns in the battlefields, reproduced by the rotogravure process in "The European War," published in ten volumes by The New York Times.

Cartoons from the publications of all nations, with maps and charts, also enrich each volume.

The work is a library of the war, and the ten volumes are crowded with the official documents and the facts of history in the making.

Cloth binding — cash $28.00. Easy payment plan, $33.00. Initial payment, $1.00; subsequent payments, $2.00 per month.

Three-quarter leather binding—cash $38.00.

Full leather binding—cash $50.00.

To each person ordering a set of "The European War," Current History Magazine, issued monthly, regular price $3.00 per year, will be sent for a full year without additional charge.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Market Shows No Definite Trend—Campaigning for National Economy Begins.

The stock market continues to reflect efforts of traders to take advantage of opportunities for profit through the readjustment of prices following the halting of the long decline. The changes yesterday were again highly irregular and in no way a reaction to the day's news. The railroads lost a little ground, but the Street has not yet made up its mind as to what the revolutionary changes proposed by the War Board will mean when translated into net earnings. The publication yesterday of October results for the Atchison and Union Pacific served to emphasize the extent to which operating costs are outstripping the economies put in force when labor and materials were cheaper. Both companies enjoyed a substantial increase in gross earnings, and both reported decreases in their net earnings after taxes. These roads are among the more fortunate lines. Some of the Eastern carriers have been forced to accept more business than they have facilities for handling, and have lost any measure of control over their operating costs which was possible when they were able to sidetrack equipment for small repairs when needed.

Wall Street's machinery for the distribution of securities is being made ready to aid in the sale of the new war savings thrift stamps, of which it is confidently expected that the full $2,000,000,000 authorized by law will be sold in the next few months. The importance of this supplementary scheme of Government financing lies not so much in the additional revenues which it will bring into the Treasury as in the lesson it will carry in the campaign for national economies. The line of self-denial must be drawn more clearly if the United States is to make good its promises in the way of support both for its own troops abroad and for the Allies. It is doubly hard to press home the new idea of thrift when wages are at unprecedented levels, but the war savings cards proved an important factor in bringing about the concentration of Great Britain's energies upon the speeding up of useful industries, with the result that with more than 10 per cent. of the entire population under arms the output of manufactures has actually increased, and similar results are expected here. With the lesson of the other belligerents' experience before us, more rapid progress should be attained in putting this nation upon a war business basis.

LONDON MARKET CHEERFUL.

Fair Degree of Activity in Gilt-Edged Securities.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The stock market maintained its cheerfulness and strength today. The publication of the prospectus of the French loan did not lessen interest in other allied war loans, and gilt-edged securities in which there was a fair degree of activity.

Argentine rails were dearer and shipping shares buoyant, while oil, iron and steel stocks were active and strong features, speculators as well as investors buying them. Brazilian bonds were better. Money was tighter and discount rates were steady.

DETAILS OF GOLD EXPORTS.

Japan Alone Took $155,467,726 in 9 Months—Spain $99,337,400.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Details of the country's commerce for the first nine months of the year, made public today by the Department of Commerce, showed that the enormous increase in gold exports was absorbed largely by Japan and Spain. Japan took $155,467,726 in gold from the United States from January through September, as compared with $9,300,630 in the same period of 1916, and was virtually the only one of the allied countries to receive precious metal from America in September. Spain imported $99,337,400 for nine months, against $[illegible]601,520 in the same period of the preceding year.

Mexico got $6,712,279 in gold up to Sept. 30, as compared with less than a million dollars in the corresponding period of 1916. Total gold exports for nine months amounted to $348,968,514 in 1917, compared with $94,430,462 last year.

Silver exports increased from $47,723,604 in 1916 to $62,228,662 so far this year. Imports of gold almost ceased in September, being less than $5,000,000, due to the fact that the Government now is financing the Allies' purchases here by credits. Silver, however, attracted by record high prices, was imported in unusual quantities, amounting to $5,796,820 for the month, or more than 100 per cent. greater than the quantity brought in during September, 1916. Mexico sent the bulk of the metal, with other large quantities coming from Peru.

Importations of merchandise for September included $1,[illegible] worth of German goods bought before diplomatic relations were severed and held in transit by the Allies' blockade.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Cotton Fluctuations.

Apropos of yesterday's slight reaction in the cotton market, which carried prices back somewhat from Monday's high level, an old trader remarked that in his opinion the significant feature of recent market movements is not the strength of the advances, but the feebleness of the reactions. In ordinary markets the speculative pendulum swings back and forth with about equal vigor, but now there is a strong and steady undercurrent which is constantly upward, and consequently neutralizes the down swing almost completely. The result is that not only are the reactions of the market relatively slight, but the volume of business on down days is much smaller. A close observer of the cotton trade, who has just returned from a business trip through the South, reports that the advance in prices has, as might have been expected, failed to keep pace with the desires of the producers. A short time ago they declared that nothing short of thirty-cent cotton would be reasonable. Then their ambitions advanced to forty cents, he said, and now, with prices well over the thirty-cent level, some of them are already beginning to talk about fifty-cent cotton. As a matter of fact, some cotton is selling for fifty cents a pound already—the best quality of long staple, which, it is rumored, is much in demand for airplane cloth.

Christmas Gift Suggestions.

The substitution of United States Thrift Cards, War Savings Certificates, and Liberty Loan bonds for money as Christmas gifts is being actively encouraged by the American Exchange National Bank. A sign was placed over its doors yesterday calling attention to this unusual opportunity to please friends and serve the Government at the same time.

⁂

Bank's Letter Effective.

It was reported last week that a large New York City bank had written a letter to one of its Southern correspondents in regard to the sale of Liberty Loan bonds, in which attention was called to the unpatriotic action of subscribing to bonds merely for the purpose of "making a showing" and selling the same immediately after the closing of subscription books. It was learned yesterday that the Southern institution was enlightened by the letter, repented its proposed move, and immediately canceled the order for the sale of the bonds. The bank further advised that it had decided to join the Federal Reserve System.

Interest on Russian Bonds.

A semi-annual interest payment on the $25,000,000 five-year 5½ per cent. bonds of the Imperial Russian Government is due Saturday and will be paid at the National City Bank. Payments will amount to $687,500. The bonds are not due until Dec. 1, 1921, and they are redeemable either in dollars in New York or in rubles at the Imperial State Bank of Russia at the current commercial rates of exchange in Petrograd at sight in New York. Yesterday the bonds sold up to 49, closing at 47¾, with a bid of 47. The issue price was 94¾, or just about double the present selling price. At current quotations the Russian bonds yield between 13 and 14 per cent.

Not a New Contract.

There was gossip in Wall Street yesterday to the effect that the Wright-Martin Aircraft Corporation had obtained a big contract from the Government. Apparently, however, this was founded upon the fact that the Aircraft Production Board recently altered some of the terms and the specifications of the existing contract under which the corporation is now working on Hispano-Suiza motors, providing for more power in the motors, and also looking to increased production. The latest advices from the Wright-Martin plant are that production is now close to eight complete Hispano-Suizas a day.

HUFF SUCCEEDS MAHER.

Elected President of the Third Avenue Railway Company.

Slaughter W. Huff, Vice President of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, was yesterday elected President of the Third Avenue Railway Company. He succeeds Edward A. Maher, who tendered his resignation last August, the same to take effect Dec. 31.

Mr. Huff is a native of Virginia, and a graduate of Cornell University. The first position he held was with the Baxter Electric Motor Company of Baltimore, one of the pioneer manufacturers of electric street railway motors and equipment, of which company he ultimately became the General Superintendent. He later became Electrical Engineer of the Columbia & Maryland Railroad, Master Mechanic, and Electrical and Mechanical Engineer of the United Railways of Baltimore. In 1902 Mr. Huff accepted the position of General Manager of the Virginia Railway and Power Company of Richmond, Va., and spent six years in rebuilding and reorganizing the various properties. In 1908 he came to Brooklyn to assume the Presidency of the Coney Island & Brooklyn Railroad Company. When the stock of the company was acquired by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, Mr. Huff was continued as President, and in addition was made Vice President of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit and its subsidiaries.

Union Pacific Report for October.

The October report of earnings of the Union Pacific Railway Company shows an increase of $1,439,004 in gross revenue and a decrease of $388,000 in net earnings. This discrepancy was due to an increase of $365,022 in maintenance expenses, $768,362 in operating expenses, and $560,506 in taxes. For the ten months ended Oct. 31, the net earnings amounted to $35,784,325, or $1,644,890 less than in the corresponding period of 1916. In this case, however, the difference was almost entirely accounted for by the increased taxes due to the Federal War Tax.

TELLS STOCK INCREASE NEED

General Electric Co. Issues Statement for Voting Stockholders.

The General Electric Company, which has called a meeting of its stockholders for Jan. 3 next at Schenectady to vote on a proposition to increase the authorized capital stock of the company from $105,000,000 to $125,000,000, has issued, for the information of voting stockholders, a statement of its financial position and of the reasons for this action.

It is explained that the proceeds of the $15,000,000 of three-year notes sold by the company last July, and of the $10,000,000 of two-year notes sold last week, are needed to tide over the emergency need for more capital, resulting from the increase, under war conditions, of the company's business from the 1915 total of $1[illegible],000,000 to the estimated total for the present year of $230,000,000. The company has already expended $36,000,000 in extensions of its manufacturing facilities, with an increase of $70,000,000 in inventories and customers' notes and accounts outstanding.

As normal business conditions are restored, the statement continues, "it is expected that sufficient capital will be released by the reduction of inventories and notes and accounts receivable to meet the $25,000,000 notes at their maturity. The $10,000,000 capital stock which it is now proposed to offer to the stockholders at par will supply all the permanent capital which it appears necessary to provide at present."

A brief statement is appended showing the orders, sales, net income and surplus of the company for 1915 and 1916 and an estimate, based on the business so far done, for 1917. The net income is estimated at $27,0[illegible],000, against $19,160,975 in 1916, and the surplus at $50,900,000, against $[illegible] in 1916. The policy of semi-annual stock dividends was adopted, it is explained, because of the large surplus account which represents earnings invested in additional manufacturing facilities and working capital.

COTTON MARKET DULL

Reaction Follows Three Bull Sessions—Closing Prices Off 3 to 23 Points.

Th cotton market rested yesterday after three successive exciting bull sessions, the last of which had carried the list above the 30-cent level. The market, accordingly, was rather dull, and trading was narrow in scope. Such fluctuations as took place seemed due to the efforts of some traders to even up their commitments over Thanksgiving, even at less than top profits. As a result, the market, after an abbreviated imitation of recent rallies in the morning hours, sagged off later and closed barely steady, off from 3 to 23 points.

The opening was from 2 points down to 3 points up. Early trading was more brisk than at any other time during the day, Liverpool and domestic trade buying continuing to supply the impetus. Presently, however, immediate demands seemed to be met, and profit taking became evident, with the result that prices went down almost as rapidly as they had gone up. The bottom was found between 20 and 30 points below the opening, before the short interest had had a chance to develop much strength. The result was the best upward swing of the day, but on a small volume of trading, and realizing at the close brought prices down once more.

Southern spot advices varied, there being reports of continued demand east of the Mississippi, but easier trading in the Southwest. There was some Southern selling on the local market.

No improvement was reported in the ocean freight situation so far as immediate room was concerned, and cotton sold for shipment abroad is said to be accumulating in the warehouses. Exports yesterday were 12,836 bales, making 1,654,401 so far this season. Southern spot markets, as officially reported, were 13 points lower to 13 points higher; generally unchanged.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

RAPID TRANSIT REVENUES.

October Gross Report of Interborough Gains Over Last Year.

The monthly report of earnings of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for October shows a gross operating revenue of $3,563,592, an increase of $16,658 over the figures for October, 1916. The net operating revenue, however, owing to an increase of $233,068 in operating expenses, decreased from $2,211,543 to $1,965,134. Owing to heavy increases in interest and rental charges and taxes, the reduction in net corporate income dropped from $1,032,940 for October, 1916, to $724,570. For the four months' period ended Oct. 31, the net corporate income was $2,080,763, a decrease of $246,780.

The monthly report of the Third Avenue Railway shows a total operating revenue for October of $896,965, an increase of $506,943 over the figures of October, 1916, when the lines were still affected by the strike. Operating expenses were slightly decreased, and as a result the Third Avenue, which for the month of October, 1916, showed an operating deficit of $238,442, last October showed an operating income of $276,516. The net income for the month still shows a deficit, but of only $5,870, against $305,508 for the previous year.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

It remains to be seen whether the new departure of the Food Administration, which will no longer give entire preference to the moving of wheat but will also control corn and oats, is going to seriously affect the movement of wheat to the mills. Some authorities complain that if the receipts are materially curtailed, mills in all parts of the country will be clamoring for wheat within a very short time, as the movement at best has been moderate, at least as it appears in the daily statistical reports. A break of 4 cents a bushel occurred in the Argentine market yesterday, which was thought to reflect larger offers and possibly less favorable conditions regarding tonnage.

RYE.—Market firmer; No. 2 Western, $1.91, cost and freight, New York.

CORN.

The corn market was easy at the close owing to the promise of larger receipts in the near future. The Food Administration has taken up the question of moving the corn crop, and it was said that in the future preference will not be given to wheat, but that corn and oats will also receive attention. John J. Stream, Vice President of the Chicago Board of Trade, has been appointed head of the coarse grain division of the Food Administration and will have charge of the transportation and movement of coarse grain. The local cash market was easier, new yellow corn being quoted at $1.89, cost, insurance, and freight, New York, ten days shipment; Argentine, $2.05 to $2.10, free on board, New York, to arrive.

CHICAGO PRICES.

	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close.	Last Year.
December	1.25	1.23¾	1.24¼	1.24	87⅝
January	1.21½	1.20½	1.20¾	1.21⅞	91½
May	1.20¼	1.18¼	1.18⅝	1.19⅝	90⅝

OATS.

Another sharp advance in the oats market sent that market to new high records, but prices reacted at the close on the promise of increased transportation facilities, and final prices were ½c net higher to ⅝c lower. A further sharp advance in Winnipeg and reports that Government buying, both in Canadian and American markets, was absorbing offers proved the potent bull factor. The local cash market was firm, standard quoted at 80c; No. 2 white, 80c; No. 3 white, 79½c; No. 4 white, 79c; fancy clipped white, 79½@81½c; ordinary clipped white, 78½@79½c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

A more liberal hog movement, with the hogs coming in heavier, and a decline in the hog market exerted only a temporarily bearish influence on the provision list. Prices were influenced more particularly by the action of grain, at one time showing a sharp upward movement and closing with a partial reaction, although considerably above the previous close. The cash demand was active, and there was said to be a good export business doing. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 32,000; estimated for Wednesday, 35,000. Kansas City received 10,000 and Omaha 8,000.

COTTONSEED OIL.

A firmer tone prevailed in the market for cottonseed oil owing to an absence of selling pressure and due to the pronounced firmness in hog products, as well as other fats and greases. The volume of business was small, however, consisting of 1,000 barrels, and net price changes were not important, the close being unchanged to 10 points higher. Range of prices:

COFFEE.

The coffee market was steadier yesterday. It seemed that recent liquidation had left a firmer technical position, while there was trade buying as well as scattered covering, accompanied by reports of a steadier tone in Brazil. March contracts sold at 7.24c and May at 7.36c, or about 4 to 8 points net higher, with the general list closing at a net advance of 5@7 points. The business included further exchanges of December for September at 77 and 78 points, and of December for March at 25 points. The local spot market was steady on the basis of 7½c for Rio 7s and 9¼c for Santos 4s. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

Cuban officials are expected to meet here Friday and again start negotiations looking toward a maximum price on new-crop sugars. It is believed that, before the conference is ended a price will be fixed, and that the International Sugar Committee will at once make purchases of new crop, to come forward as rapidly as possible. In the meantime the situation here is acute, and the Russian sugar recently released has not been distributed, but it is believed that details will be settled upon so the sugar may be widely distributed the last of this week. Old crop Cubas remained nominally unchanged at the fixed price of 6.90c, duty paid. Spot prices follow: Centrifugal, 6.90c; molasses, 6.02c; cost and freight, 5¼c.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 8,074 packages. The market was higher and excited. There was a very marked shortage of fine and fancy fresh creamery, and prices on these grades jumped 1c a pound, but the secondary qualities moved upward a little and did not show the same improvement as the finer qualities. More done in storage creamery, but values advanced about ½c. Ladies and packing stock remained slow. Creamery, higher than extras, per lb., 48½@49c; extras, (92 score,) 47½@48c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 43½@47c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 40½@43c; thirds, 38½@39½c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 49½@50c; extras, 48½@49c; firsts, 44½@47½c; seconds, 41½@44c; creamery, held, higher scoring than extras, 44@44½c; extras, 43@43½c; firsts, 41½@42½c; seconds, 40@41c; thirds, 38@38½c; State, dairy, tubs, finest, 46@47c; good to prime, 42@45c; common to fair, 36@41½c; renovated, extras, 41@42c; firsts, 39½@40½c; lower grades, 35@38c; ladies, current make, firsts, 33½@34c; seconds, 32½@33c; lower grades, 31@32c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 33c; No. 2, 32c; lower grades, 30@31½c.

EGGS.—Receipts, 4,072 cases, not including 400 cases in transit for export. The scarcity of new-laid qualities continues, and dealers are short of any new-laid stock to supply urgent needs of the trade. Prices show further improvement under the competition to secure the few lots arriving which show desirable quality. Storage eggs more active, and the tone firmer, with sales reported showing some improvement in prices. Nearby white eggs are in comparatively light supply, the demand is quiet and selective, and values very irregular. Few of the receipts show uniformly good size and freshness, and only such reach top quotation. The greater part of the business ranges from about 72c downward. Fresh gathered extras, per dozen, 58@60c; extra firsts, 56@57c; firsts, 54@55c; seconds, 47@53c; thirds and poorer, 40@45c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, storage and insurance paid, 34½@35c; firsts, storage and insurance paid, 33@34c; seconds, storage and insurance paid, 30@32½c; lower grades, storage and insurance paid, 24@30c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 72@76c; ordinary to good, 60@70c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 60@72c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby whites, pullets, 55@60c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 55@65c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 60@65c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 56@60c.

Safety in War Time

ESPECIALLY in times like these, investors should rigorously apply the standard rule to confine their investments to securities founded on necessities.

FIRST mortgage bonds, safeguarded under the Straus Plan, are based on the first necessities of life. They mature serially in two to ten years, and yield 6% net. Denominations, $1,000 and $500.

THE character and record of these sound bonds merit their thorough investigation by conservative investors. On request we will send literature explaining the merits of the Straus Plan and the bonds safeguarded thereunder. Call or write for

DISCUSS EFFECTS OF PAPER DECREE

Government's Lawyers See in It an End of General Combinations.

AID TO PRICE REGULATION

Federal Trade Commission Now Recognized by Court as Body to Fix the Maximum Figure.

While members and employes of the News Print Manufacturers' Association, which was dissolved by court decree on Monday, were preparing yesterday for a wind-up of the business of the association, lawyers and corporation heads were discussing the significance and probable ultimate effects of the agreement between the Government and the news print manufacturers by which the paper situation was settled.

Two features of the agreement and court action based upon it were generally considered as especially important to the country at large, as distinguished from the news print paper industry. These were the establishment in law of the illegality of the so-called open competition associations when they have the effect of restraining trade and the court recognition of the Federal Trade Commission as a maximum price-fixing body for manufacturers and their customers.

Mark Hyman of 61 Broadway, one of the special assistance to the Attorney General who represented the Government in the action against the news print manufacturers and in the agreement, said yesterday that, in his opinion, the court decree abolishing the News Print Manufacturers' Association would have the effect of causing Directors to modify many other open competition associations now acting to restrain trade, and would, in addition, give the Government a sound basis of action against any such associations which continued to operate illegally. He pointed out that the decree had been admitted as having a foundation in law by several of the leading corporation lawyers of the city, and this gave it a standing among the members of the bar which would be generally recognized.

The News Print Manufacturers' Association, as do similar organizations in various industries, represented the latest method adopted by manufacturers to control their market, according to the Government's contention. When the first "trust busting" activities of the Government directed against the great corporations were successful, manufacturers seeking a new way to do an old thing, made formal agreements among each other as to prices, output, and distribution of products, Mr. Hyman said. The Government broke up these formal agreements as illegal, he went on, and then pooling agreements, according to which manufacturers paid certain sums of money into a pool and forfeited their stake if they became independent as to prices, &c., began to be heard of.

The Government put an end to the pooling agreements, and then came arbitration agreements, under which a man employed by manufacturers went from place to place to investigate and determine the prices and conditions that should govern the selling of products. When the arbitration agreements had been declared illegal, some manufacturers devised the system of selling their products through an agent who would apportion his sales among them.

Such selling schemes had their short day before falling below the law, and the next and latest development was the informal agreement among manufacturers which in the popular mind is represented by the famous "Gary Dinner," although Judge Gary has denied without successful contradiction by the Government that the dinner over which he presided was a price-fixing occasion. The News Print Manufacturers' Association, according to the Government, was a "Gary dinner" kind of an organization. The allegation upon which the decree for its dissolution was based was that the Executive Committee of the association held secret and informal meetings at which no minutes were kept but at which a small group of men who knew each other well discussed their industry and verbally agreed as to how it should be controlled in the interests of the manufacturers. The results of these agreements, the Government charged, were distributed among the members of the association who, though under no stated compulsion to abide by the decisions as to prices, production, and distribution, acted in what they considered their own best interest and did so.

The dissolution of the association was the first instance of Government success against this particular kind of "open competition association," and so established a precedent of importance. Mr. Hyman pointed out, however, that many industrial associations of manufacturers and others, formed for the purpose of advertising, research work, and mutual co-operation in such things as patents, were perfectly legal and distinctly beneficial. The only associations which need fear the law, he said, were those which had the effect of restraining trade, whether this was their expressed purpose or not.

Herbert C. Smyth of 15 Wall Street, who was also a special assistant to the Attorney General in the case against the paper manufcturers, emphasized yesterday the importance of the court recognition of the Federal Trade Commission as a price-fixing body. He said that the commission appeared for the first time as the fixer of a maximum price to govern an open market. The first price regulation by the commission came when it advised purchasing war boards what prices they should pay for products. Now the commission has been empowered to fix maximum prices for news print paper as between manufacturers and customers in general. This granting of authority to the commission was by agreement, but, Mr. Smyth said, if the public came to look upon the commission as a price-fixing body, the time when the commission would be authorized by Congress to fix maximum prices in any industry would be brought nearer. Mr. Hyman yesterday presented the most important features of the news print agreement as follows:

1. The agreement provides for determining maximum prices and does not fix prices; thus it leaves competition open up to the point of the maximum price, and assures the publishers that they will not have to pay more than the maximum.
2. The agreement will bring before the Federal Trade Commission considerably over one-half of the total consumption of news print paper within the United States and over three-fifths of the total consumption east of the Rocky Mountains. It brings in practically all of the Canadian manufacturers, including the tonnage represented by the Canadian Export Paper Company, Limited, which tonnage would not be subject to the jurisdiction of the United States except for the making of this agreement.
3. It is expected that steps will be taken to request the consent of the other manufacturers so that the great bulk of the tonnage, at least east of the Rocky Mountains, may be brought before the Federal Trade Commission, with the exception of the two companies that have never been in any combination and have always made just and reasonable prices without Governmental coercion.
4. The agreement brings in the tonnage represented by Mr. Gould and Mr. Backus, both of whom had declined to come into the previous arbitration agreement.
5. The agreement provides that each manufacturer shall insert in his contracts with his customers the arbitration provision as to prices and terms of contract, so that each publisher will have a legal cause of action in case of a violation of the agreement. In addition, the right is reserved to the Attorney General, representing all the publishers, to take steps to have the agreement carried out. The agreement is also recognized in the court decree.
6. The previous arbitration agreement provided for merely a six months' duration of fair prices, leaving the publishers at the mercy of the combination when the six months was up. The present agreement is complete, and covers the entire duration of the war and three months thereafter.
7. The defendants are put under broad injunctions preventing any form of general combination in the future, and preventing any of the manufacturers or their agents from entering into agreements, understandings, or concerts of action to limit or restrict them in their competition or to deter others from entering the field.
8. The Government's view that these open competition associations are illegal, is recognized in the most sweeping way, first, by the imposition of very substantial fines upon the indicted defendants, and, second, by the broad provisions of the decree enjoining the defendants from entering into any general combination which involves a concerted working to control or raise prices.
9. The agreement provides for regulation of just and reasonable terms of sale, instead of the arbitrary uniform contracts which were sprung on the publishers last Fall.

It was said yesterday at the offices of the News Print Manufacturers' Association, 18 East Forty-first Street, that a meeting of the members of the association would be held here about the middle of December so that they might take formal action dissolving their organization in accordance with the court decree.

JACOB H. SCHIFF RESIGNS.

To be Succeeded on Federal Milk Commission by His Son.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Because of pressure of other affairs, Jacob H. Schiff, the New York banker, has resigned from the Federal Milk Commission of New York. The Food Administration announced the fact in the following communication:

"To the great regret of the United States Food Administration and of those who would have been associated with him, Mr. Jacob Schiff of New York finds it necessary to resign from the Federal Milk Commission for New York City.

"Mr. Schiff's wide experience, both in business and in philanthropic projects, would have made his judgment of very great value to the Commission, but the pressure of other affairs prevents his giving the time required for the comprehensive and extended hearings planned by the Commission. Mr. Schiff will be succeeded by Mr. Mortimer L. Schiff."

WAYS TO WIND UP ENEMY INSURANCE

State Official Suggests That They May Return Premiums or Reinsure.

It will be easy to liquidate the German insurance companies doing business under the laws of New York State, according to Daniel F. Gordon of the Insurance Department, who has supervision over the German insurance situation in New York.

"There are two things they can do," he said. "One is to cancel contracts and pay back the unearned premiums, and the other is to reinsure. Either course will take time, and needs careful administration."

The latest order of Secretary McAdoo, which calls upon German life insurance companies and companies of countries allied to Germany to stop writing new business, and to liquidate, was unexpected by several companies whose business here totals hundreds of millions.

D. H. Quackenbush of the Aachen and Munich Company, which writes direct fire insurance, said yesterday that his company had received no order from the Government. "We have just seen in the newspapers," he said, "what we are called upon to do. They say to liquidate, but, of course, that in itself means nothing. We can tell more about where we stand when we learn what plan the Secretary proposes. If they ask us to liquidate within a month, it can't be done, that's all."

H. N. Kelsey of the Hamburg-Bremen, another direct fire insurance company, said his company would need months to close up its business.

"It will be no easy matter to liquidate the German companies," he said. "I am afraid it will be like the small boy with the big meal; easy to swallow but bad in after effects. We can only wait until the Government tells us how to proceed and then do the best we can for the country and our policy holders."

The German companies all reported, in answer to inquiries, that their business had suffered tremendously since the entrance of the United States into the war. Before that, while the Allies were fighting alone, it was declared that business went on as usual, with the exception of a few anxious queries as to the prospects of loss due to the possible bankruptcy of the home offices.

The companies doing business in New York affected by the Secretary's order, are the Aachen and Munich, Agent J. A. Kelsey, 80 Maiden Lane; Francona Reinsurance Company, (Fire,) Agent C. H. Franklin, 123 William Street; Hamburg-Bremen, Agent H. N. Kelsey, 123 William Street; Nord Deutsche, (Fire,) Agent J. A. Lenahan, 123 William Street; Frankfort General, (Liability,) 123 William Street; First Bulgarian Insurance Company, Agents Snow & Theime, 80 Maiden Lane.

A number of German companies have already suspended business because of war conditions and the order issued several weeks ago directing German insurance companies writing marine insurance to close. One German life insurance company, the Mercury Reinsurance Company, Agent M. W. Torrey at 1 Liberty Street, remains open.

DECLARE SUGAR DIVIDENDS.

Two Companies Make Disbursements Besides Regular Payments.

Three sugar-producing companies declared dividends yesterday, two of them making disbursements in addition to the regular payments.

The Great Western Sugar Company declared an extra dividend of $10 a share on its common stock, in addition to the regular quarterly dividends of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred and common stocks, all payable Jan. 2 to shareholders of record Dec. 15. Three months ago an extra dividend of the same amount was declared on the common stock.

The National Sugar Refining Company declared yesterday a quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent., payable Jan. 2 to holders of record on Dec. 10. This places the stock on a 7 per cent. basis. Previously the dividends have been at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, or 1½ per cent. quarterly.

The Federal Sugar Refining Company declared its regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the common stock, the same being payable Dec. 15 to sharholders of rcord Dc. 5.

National Bank Call Modified.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—To facilitate the reports of national banks in response to the call for conditions as of Nov. 20, Controller Williams tonight waived the requirement that the reports must include items of "interest accrued, but not yet collected," and "interest collected, but not yet accrued." Banks must keep their records of loans, however, so that these items may be reported in future calls.

5-CENT MATINEES EXEMPT.

New Government Ruling on Application of War Tax on Theatres.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—A ruling has been made by Internal Revenue Commissioner Roper to the effect that where the admission to a theatre at a matinee performance is only 5 cents the charge is not to be regarded as a fraction of the 10 cents admission which is taxable under the War Tax act. The law imposes a tax of 1 cent on each 10 cent admission or fraction thereof, and the tax is to be paid by the person buying such admission. It is now held that where the maximum charge for admission to a matinee is but 5 cents and to an evening performance more than 5 cents, the tax is due only on the evening performance. The text of the decision follows:

"The rule has been established that where the charge for admission to any part of a theatre during a matinee performance does not exceed 5 cents and a charge exceeding 5 cents is made for the evening performance, tax will be due only on admissions to the evening performance. However, all admissions for the evening performance, including those not over 5 cents, will cause liability to tax to accrue.

"The same rule applies where the performance is continuous and the maximum charge up to a certain hour is not in excess of 5 cents, and the maximum charge after such time does exceed 5 cents. In such case tax is due only on admissions paid after the time when the increased charge takes effect, but is due on all admissions paid after such time, including admissions not exceeding 5 cents.

"Bona fide employes of the theatre, municipal officers on official business and children under twelve years of age are exempt from such tax when admitted free. All other persons admitted free are subject to tax the same as parties paying for admission."

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Profit taking, stimulated by the approaching holiday, caused prices on the Consolidated Stock Exchange to recede in the last half hour of trading. In practically all of the active issues the early gains were not only wiped out but were replaced by net losses. In the early morning the market advanced vigorously and sentiment was optimistic, although based upon little that was definite beyond the improvement in Italian exchange, the ease of call money rates and the success of the British and French in maintaining their gains against counterattacks by the German allies. After the first hour the market was dull and reactionary following a selling movement in the rails.

Cordial Relations

The business man who brings his financial problems to this Trust Company may or may not receive the assistance he wants, but he will receive courteous and respectful treatment. No institutional aloofness will cause him embarrassment. The spirit of courtesy permeates every department and the easy accessibility of its officers makes a pleasure of dealing with business problems. It is seldom, however, that its officers are unable to be of real service to a customer.

Inquiries invited as to the various forms of service rendered.

HYLAN WARNS BOARD AGAINST BUS GRANT

Urges Estimate Members to Hold Up Contract with Fifth Avenue Company.

POINTS TO ITS EARNINGS

Judge Says Corporation Made 1,100 Per Cent. in Year—Prendergast Calls Letter "Nonsense."

Mayor-elect John F. Hylan sent a letter to the Board of Estimate last night protesting against any grant to the Fifth Avenue Coach Company of rights to operate in streets, not covered by the company's present franchise. The Mayor-elect declared he had been credibly informed the Board of Estimate had called a special meeting today to take steps toward "granting to the Fifth Avenue Coach Company, a subsidiary of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, sweeping rights to operate motor omnibuses upon certain most important streets of the Borough of Manhattan." Controller Prendergast last night pronounced Judge Hylan's letter the "veriest nonsense," and declared that a glance at the City Charter would convince Judge Hylan that the Board of Estimate could not if it would do what Judge Hylan said it intended to do.

In his letter Judge Hylan urged that any new grant to the company be deferred for at least ten days to enable the incoming administration to investigate, and that nothing be done until there had been adequate publicity regarding the terms on which the grant was to be made.

"This matter," Judge Hylan wrote, "together with the application of rival companies, has been before your board during the entire term of its existence. The last active step in connection therewith, I am informed, took place in the Spring of this year; after that time, I am informed, despite the frantic efforts of the chief competitor of the Fifth Avenue Coach Company for this franchise to obtain some action at your hands, nothing was done by your Franchise Committee or by your board. So passed the Spring, the Summer, the Fall, and the campaign period; the time when the important public acts of an administration are under close scrutiny. Now, within just about a month from the finish of your administrative life, after conferences with the Interborough interests, a proposed form of contract has been determined upon, and, I am credibly informed, you are seriously contemplating turning over to the Interborough interests the last rights in the surface of the important streets of New York that this outfit does not already control.

"At this time," the Judge continued, "I will call your attention to the opinion of your own Corporation Counsel, embodied in the minutes of your board of March 16, 1917, to the effect, briefly, that the operation of the Fifth Avenue Coach Company's vehicles upon the streets of New York, other than upon Fifth Avenue, between Eighty-ninth Street and Washington Park, is absolutely without authority of law, and to the further fact that the Public Service Commission of this district, in a short memorandum handed down on the 29th day of June, 1917, stated, in reference to the 'permits' for operation that your board saw fit, in the goodness of your generous hearts, to grant to the Fifth Avenue Coach Company, without going through the formalities prescribed by law for the granting of rights in the streets of this city, that such 'licenses' were of no value or legal force.

"The incoming administration, which I shall represent as Mayor, was elected upon a platform of municipal ownership and operation of public utilities. This principle was advanced by me in the campaign as one of the leading issues on which I solicited the judgment of the public, as evidenced by its votes. The citizens answered the question emphatically on Nov. 6 last. Their verdict is made no less positive by the fact that the present incumbent in the office of Mayor was elected on a like platform."

On the subject of the Fifth Avenue Company's earnings the Judge wrote:

"The official figures seem to show that for the year 1916 the Fifth Avenue Coach Company earned, net, the sum of $458,672.90, over 900 per cent. upon the company's capital stock. For the year ending June 30, 1917, the Fifth Avenue Coach Company seems to have earned, net, $582,535.69, over 1,100 per cent. on the stock.

"The 1917 statement shows that the company has a total earned surplus of $1,785,474.32. Taking the figures for the last three years, since June 30, 1914, this seems to show that the company's surplus earnings on its capital stock have increased over 3,500 per cent. in three years. Why should rights that have shown such an amazing earning power be given away to this private corporation for a miserable 5 per cent., or 10 per cent., or 15 per cent., of its earnings, inclusive of the State taxes? Is this city so prosperous? Have these gentlemen in their past dealings with the city shown such fairness, such big-heartedness, as to entitle them to this fabulously rich Christmas gift to it in the last few days of your official life?

"The figures before me show that these rights, for the period of 15 years covered by the proposed franchise, are worth not less than $45,000,000, in place of the miserable few hundred thousands of dollars per annum for which it is contemplated to hand them over to the Interborough crowd. In the 1917 statement of this company, there is shown an expenditure of over $150,000 under an item explained as being, among other things, in connection with 'New Franchises.' Why should any one spend any such money in an application to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of this city for a franchise?

"It is my intention, as Mayor of the city, not only to see to it that no further such rights are given away to any one as a gift, a favor, or as a poor bargain, but that operations by public utilities corporations, be they motor bus companies, street surface railways, telephone companies, or electrical or gas companies, be promptly stopped where such operations are not founded upon legal rights. I ask that this matter be laid over for 10 days and that the terms of the franchise be published in full, (at the expense of the applicant for the franchise,) in The City Record."

Controller Prendergast said last night that the principal competitor for the franchise sought by the Fifth Avenue Coach Company was the New York Motor Bus Company.

"The statement at the beginning of Judge Hylan's letter is quite as incorrect as everything else he says," said the Controller. "The simple fact is that the Fifth Avenue Coach Company has submitted what virtually amounts to a new offer to the city. The New York Motor Bus Company has been invited to do likewise. We have been informed that it will have an offer ready by 10:30 tomorrow forenoon. If this offer is ready then, the Board of Estimate will go ahead with the advertising and arrange so that public hearings may be held in three weeks.

"It would not be legally possible for the Board of Estimate to do what Judge Hylan says the board is going to do. Mr. Hylan not only shows his arrant ignorance, but doesn't even take the trouble to look at the charter and convince himself as to what the board can or can not legally do. Nothing can be done under any circumstances before three weeks have elapsed, and then only after fullest publicity, including advertising of the form of contract and public hearing. Tomorrow's meeting was called merely to arrange for the advertising of the contract."

WANTS NEW LAWS FOR DRUG TRAFFIC

Investigators Fear Many Soldiers Will Return From War Under Thraldom of Narcotics.

Fearing that thousands of soldiers will come back from the front addicted to the use of drugs originally administered to them in field hospitals to relieve suffering, two committees on drug evils met in this city yesterday to consider measures that would put the use of narcotics under more stringent State or Federal control. One committee was the Whitney Legislative Committee, of which Senator G. H. Whitney is Chairman, and the other was the New York City Committee on Drug Evils, of which Justice Cornelius F. Collins is Chairman. Both committees worked on the subject of drug evils last year, and were more or less instrumental in bringing about certain restrictions which prevail under the present laws.

In its conference at the Murray Hill Hotel, the Whitney Committee, consisting of Senator Whitney, Senator John J. Boylan and Assemblymen Morris Bloch, George R. Brennan, and R. M. Prangen, decided to make a thorough investigation of the drug evil as it exists in this city at the present time. Beginning next Wednesday, the committee will hold a series of hearings at the City Hall, where it will take testimony regarding various phases of the drug traffic. According to Senator Whitney, a special effort will be made to have drug victims themselves appear before the board to tell how they manage to obtain their supplies.

"We desire to have addicts before us," said Senator Whitney, "and also wish to learn what treatment, if any, they have ever received to cure them. Contrary to the position taken by physicians, it is the contention of this committee that the addiction to drugs is not a habit but a disease, and should therefore be treated as a disease. The aim of this committee is primarily to provide a method of treatment that will make it possible to deprive a victim of his drug without demoralizing him so completely that he merely hungers for it and seeks to obtain it in any way he can. The solution of the whole drug evil problem lies in a proper method of treatment, such as will help to bring the victim back to his feet, after the drug which sustains him has been taken away. Once this method has been ascertained the entire situation will clear up."

Aside from addicts to the drug, witnesses before the committee will include physicians, pharmacists, members of the Police Department, and attachés of the Magistrates' Courts, who will be called to testify to the effect of the present laws upon the use of drugs. Senator Whitney said that there was much opposition to the provision in the present law which requires every physician to file his list of drug addicts with the State Department of Healty, whereby the name of the victim was open to inspection. In many cases, according to Senator Whitney, this requirement tended to discourage victims who were honestly endeavoring to overcome their weakness from submitting to treatment.

At the meeting of the New York City Committee on Drug Evils in the Criminal Court Building the same situation was discussed. The members of this committee, however, agreed that what was most needed was Federal control of a definite and comprehensive sort.

Mark P. Andrews, solicitor in charge of collection of customs in New York, submitted to the consideration of the committee a bill which he had drafted to meet the problem. This bill provides that the Government shall restrict the sale and manufacture of narcotics through the imposition of a tax which would tend to make the distribution of drugs for any but legitimate purposes prohibitive. The bill will be brought to the attention of Government officials at Washington.

MONEY TO RUSSIAN POLAND.

American Express Co. Authorized to Send Remittances.

Under special authorization arranged for by the United States Government War Trade Board, the peoples of that portion of Russia and Russian Poland controlled by Austrian and German forces can now receive money remittances from this country by means of the American Express Company.

The American Express Company can now handle these remittances by foreign money orders sent through their Rotterdam office for reforwarding to destination, and its officers have every reason to believe that delivery to the payees can be effected with reasonable promptness.

The War Trade Board has, however, imposed the following conditions, and the company is allowed to accept remittances only on the understanding that remitters and sellers have complied with them:

1. Remittance may be sent to individuals only.
2. Payee must be a Russian or allied subject.
3. Payee must be in need of funds for daily necessaries of life.
4. Remittances for any one individual must not total in excess of $75 to an adult or $25 to a minor during any one period of thirty days, (not more than $125 to a family.)
5. Remitter must furnish an agreement and guaranty signed by him (or her) witnessed by selling agent or banker, and sworn to by remitter before a notary public.
6. Remittances must be in United States dollars only.
7. Payments will be made in Polish money by means of money orders.

Arrangements have further been made for the return of payees' receipts, but upset mail conditions make it impossible to set a time limit on that feature.

SEIZE NEGRO McCALL FREED

BOSTON, Nov. 27.—John Johnson, the West Virginia negro whom Governor McCall last week declined to surrender to the authorities of that State on extradition papers, gave himself up to the Federal authorities here today and was held for a hearing Dec. 5 on a complaint charging him with being a fugitive from justice.

His counsel, William H. Lewis, formerly Assistant United States Attorney General, announced that the defense had the backing of the negroes of Massachusetts and that the case would be fought to a finish. Bail of $2,000 was furnished by the pastor and Treasurer of a Cambridge church.

The indictment against Johnson returned by a Federal Grand Jury in West Virginia charges violation of the Mann "White Slave" act through the transportation of Edith Godbey, a white girl, from Charleston, W. Va., to Catlettsburg, Ky., in November, 1916. In the extradition proceedings on which the Governor acted last week Johnson was charged with an attack on a child.

$20,000 OF DIAMONDS GONE.

Package Stolen from Clerk's Desk in a Cleveland Hotel.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 27.—Cleveland police and detectives today were working on the theft from the crowded lobby of a prominent hotel of a registered mail package containing diamonds valued at $20,000. Although the theft was committed last Friday evening, no word of it became public until today, and then every effort was made by the police to keep the facts quiet.

It was learned, however, that the diamonds, said to be sixty-five in number and unset, were the property of the Yankhauer, Newitter & Platt Jewelry Company, New York.

The mail package containing the diamonds was sent to Theodore Yankhauer, in this city, by one of his partners, M. R. Newitter, in Detroit. The package reached the hotel Friday. A boy was sent to page Yankhauer. Failing to find him, the boy returned the package to the mail clerk's desk. Before the girl in charge of the desk turned to take up the package, some one had stolen it.

Celebrate John Harvard's Birthday.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 27.—Harvard today celebrated the 310th anniversary of the birth of John Harvard, founder of the university. For the first time in Harvard's history the observance was marked with military ceremonies. Eight companies of the Harvard regiment numbering 900 men drew up around the statue of John Harvard outside Memorial Hall. A huge wreath was placed on the statue.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Considering the present state of the realty market, the sale at auction yesterday of 234 Bronx lots by Joseph P. Day and J. Clarence Davies was one of the most remarkable ever conducted in the Vesey Street Exchange salesroom.

A total of $415,400, or an average of $1,775 a lot was realized for the holdings of the Joseph Godwin Estate, as the result of a Supreme Court order directing the partition sale.

In spite of the general opinion prevailing that vacant land could not be sold at the present time, one of the largest crowds in the history of the salesroom attended and filled it to capacity. At one time the attendance was estimated at 1,000 persons.

The first lot offered, at the southwest corner of Bailey Avenue and 230th Street, 32 by 105, went to Simon & Polsky, Bronx builders, for $3,300. The same buyers took the adjoining lot, 25 by 109, on Bailey Avenue, for $1,550.

The lot, 25 by 125, on West 230th Street, opposite the Kingsbridge station of the New York Central Railroad, and containing a small saloon building renting at $35 a month, was sold to H. Canning for $3,000.

Emil Fred of Bayhead, L. I., took the eight adjoining lots, including the northwest corner of Bailey Avenue and 230th Street, for $16,350.

Other lots sold were on Broadway, Albany Crescent, Ver Veelen Place, Exterior Street, Kingsbridge Avenue, West 231st Street, Goodwin Terrace, and Kimberly Place. The prices ranged from $16,000 for the corner of Broadway and 230th Street to $750 for inside lots on the side streets.

Among the buyers were Alexander McLean, Charles E. Gremmels, Patrick J. Hanley, Hugh E. Smyth, William L. Thompson, C. F. Keyes, L. Lessner, William G. Fitzgerald, and James Keane.

Messrs. Day and Davies announced at the close of the sale that it could be adjudged a successful undertaking from all angles, especially in view of the fact that the advertising commenced after the flotation of the second Liberty Loan of $5,000,000,000. They said: "This loan absorbed almost entirely the available cash in the hands of the public, but this condition was somewhat relieved by the acceptance of Liberty bonds in payment as deposit for the lots.

"The Godwin estate is to be congratulated at the successful disposition, in these times, of their unimproved property for $415,400, irrespective of the fact that it represented about one-half of the assessed valuation. The purchasers are also to be congratulated on their foresight and good judgment in buying at these prices.

"The agents and auctioneers feel happy at the successful marketing of so large and important an offering in war times, and predict that as soon as the war is ended, the section will develop into a substantial apartment house community that will double and even treble the lot prices that prevailed at this sale."

$120,000 Bronx Exchange.

The Morgenstern Brothers Syndicate, which has been active lately in the Bronx realty market, figured in another transaction yesterday involving properties in that borough. The syndicate bought from the Henry Morgenthau Company the five-story new law apartment house at 906 Simpson Street, on a plot 75 by 105, containing thirty apartments. The property has been held at $100,000.

In part payment the purchaser gave the taxpayer at 511 to 517 East 136th Street, on a plot 75 by 100 by irregular, held at $20,000. Solomon Gerlich & Co., were the brokers in the deal.

Buyers for Private Dwellings.

The two three-story dwellings 235 and 237 West 120th Street, each occupying a lot 16.9 by 100 have been sold to an investor by the Lawyers Mortgage Company.

Bronx Sales.

L. A. Adams sold to an investing client of Samuel Cower, 829 Jackson Avenue, a five-story new law apartment on a plot 42 by 90.

The Howard Realty and Development Company purchased from Lillian B. Taylor, 639 East 137th Street, a five-story tenement on a plot 37.6 by 100.

An investor purchased from the Day McDonald Company, the five-story tenement with a garage in the rear, occupying a lot 25 by 100 on the northwest corner of Lincoln Avenue and 135th Street.

In the Unionport section of the Bronx Joseph Connelly has sold to Matthew Gaskin a plot 50 by 100 on the east side of Westchester Avenue, 25 feet west of Purdy Street.

Long Island.

John Greer has sold for Mrs. K. Anderson a four-story tenement house in Academy Street, 275 feet south of Broadway, Long Island City, to John Eulgem, as an investment.

Brooklyn.

The Meister Builders, Incorporated, have purchased the northeast corner of Bath and Twenty-third Avenues, a three-story private dwelling, on a plot 96.9 by 97.3.

The Good Homes Building Company, Incorporated, has purchased through M. Wiley & Son the apartment house known as the Court Royale, Beverly Road, corner of East Nineteenth Street, at a consideration of $80,000.

Staten Island.

Cornelius G. Kolff has sold for Carl F. Grieshaber the stucco dwelling just erected on Washington Place, Westerleigh, to William M. Decker of Port Richmond.

New Yorker Buys $35,000 Scarsdale Estate.

Fish & Marvin have sold the Shreve residence at Scarsdale, Westchester County, to a New York client. The property adjoins the estate of John Carstensen, Vice President of the New York Central Railroad, and consists of a residence, several acres of land, and outbuildings. It was held at $35,000.

Westchester.

The Scarsdale Estates has sold a plot on Walworth Avenue, in the Greenacres section of Scarsdale, to F. Albert Hunt of New York, who plans to erect a Colonial dwelling.

Commercial Leases.

Cammann, Voorhees & Floyd have leased the building at 167 Front Street to L. H. Waterman & Co., to be occupied in conjunction with their Factory 4 at 163 Front and 40-44 Fletcher Streets. This is the fifth building that the same brokers have leased on Front and Water Streets in the last few weeks, all at increased rentals.

The American Jewelry Company, for twenty years located in the Church and Walker Street district, has leased for a term of years the entire store, basement and sub-basement, containing over 22,000 square feet at 677 Broadway. This is part of the old Broadway Central Hotel, and formerly occupied by a millinery concern. White & Goodman negotiated the lease.

The Cross & Brown Company leased the building, 100 by 100, at 829-835 Eleventh Avenue, to the Wire Wheel Corporation of America for a long term of years.

The Duross Company leased the P. G. Kemp Coal Yars at 790 to 794 Greenwich Street to William Farrell & Son for a term of ten years for Dr. Sylvester F. Morris.

Complete Hotel Plans.

Final plans for the Hamilton Apartment Hotel, to be erected at 141 to 153 West Seventy-third Street by L. K. Comstock, Edgar Ellinger, and Harry B. Davis were announced yesterday. The building has been considerably enlarged and modified from the original plans at an additional cost of about $200,000. As a result, the amount of the loan underwritten by S. W. Straus & Co. has been changed to $775,000.

$85,000 East Side Loan.

William H. Archibald, in conjunction with Lloyd N. Worth and John F. Bottomley, has placed a loan of $85,000 at 5 per cent. for three years on the two and four-story store and dwellings at 7 East Twenty-eighth Street and 8 and 10 East Twenty-ninth Street. The property runs through the block, and is twenty-five feet on Twenty-eighth Street and forty feet on Twenty-ninth Street, and adjoins St. Leo's Church.

Realty Notes.

Louis Pape is the buyer of the German Evangelical Reformed Bethany Church and dwelling at 235 and 237 East 109th Street, on a plot 38.9 by 100.

The Institutional Synagogue, tenants, have purchased from the Wellworth Property Company, 112 West 116th Street, a four-story building, 20 by 100.11, near Lenox Avenue.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—There has been a general fall in pressure throughout the country attended by snows and rains from the Upper Mississippi Valley eastward as far as New York, Maryland, and Pennsylvania. Rains also fell in the Southwest and in the North Pacific States.

Elsewhere the weather was fair. Low temperatures continue in the Atlantic States and the lake region, but elsewhere they have risen above the seasonal average, except in the Central Rocky Mountain region, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Northwestern Texas.

Snow or rain will occur Wednesday in the Ohio Valley, Tennessee, the lower lake region, the Middle Atlantic States, and New England, followed by generally fair weather Thursday.

In the upper lake region and the South Atlantic States fair weather will prevail Wednesday and Thursday, while in the East Gulf States there will be local rain Wednesday night or Thursday. It will be somewhat warmer Wednesday in the Atlantic States.

Winds for Wednesday and Thursday along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate east to southeast, snow by Wednesday night; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate south, with snow or rain; South Atlantic Coast, moderate east and southeast, generally fair.

FORECASTS—TODAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York.—Snow north, snow or rain south, portion, warmer Wednesday. Thursday, probably fair.

Southern New England.—Snow and warmer Wednesday. Thursday, cloudy.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania.—Snow or rain and warmer Wednesday. Thursday, probably fair.

Western New York.—Snow and warmer Wednesday. Thursday, partly cloudy.

Northern New England. Snow Wednesday or Wednesday night. Thursday, cloudy.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

The Civil Service.

City.

Examinations have been ordered for mechanical draftsman, (heating and ventilation,) Grade C, one vacancy in the Department of Education at $1,570 a year, minimum age 21 years; for dental hygienist, minimum age 20 years, several vacancies in the Health Department, at $720 a year; for medical inspector and for alienist.

United States.

The commission announces for Dec. 4 an examination for vehicle engineer, for men. A vacancy in the Signal Service at Large, New York, N. Y., at $1,500 a year, will be filled from this examination. The duties will involve a general inspection of the raw materials entering into vehicle construction, and also the expediting in manufacture and delivery of electric vehicles for the Signal Corps. Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated on education and preliminary training and experience and fitness. A good common-school education and apprenticeship or equivalent preliminary training as an electrician or automobile mechanic, with one year's experience on electric vehicles and storage batteries, are prerequisites. Applicants must have reached their twentieth but not their fiftieth birthday on the date of the examination. Further information may be obtained from the commission, Washington, D. C.

LEGAL NOTICES.

RESOLUTION OF MEMBERS AUTHORIZING change of name:

The Members of the National Child Welfare Exhibit Association, Inc., at a meeting duly convened this 14th day of November, 1917, desire to change the corporate name of said Company from that of the "National Child Welfare Exhibit Association, Inc.," to that of the "National Child Welfare Association, Inc.," for the reason that the new name will more correctly describe the proposed work of the Association.

And a Certificate in duplicate of the Secretary of State having been presented to the Meeting to the effect that the name which said corporation proposes to assume is not the name of any other corporation appearing on his index of corporations as authorized to do business under the Laws of the State of New York, or a name which he deemed so nearly resembling it as to be calculated to deceive; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the said members of said Association that the name of said Association be changed from the "National Child Welfare Exhibit Association, Inc.," to that of the "National Child Welfare Association, Inc.," and that a Certificate containing this resolution duly signed, verified and acknowledged, together with the other necessary papers, as set forth in Section 66 of Article 2 of Chapter 177 of the Laws of 1917, be filed in the Offices of the Secretary of State and of the County Clerk of the County in which the Association has its principal place of business.

SAYS PREFERENCE CLOGS RAILROADS

Freight Congestion Due Largely to Excessive Priority Orders, Harrison Asserts.

CABINET TAKES UP PROBLEM

Government Operation of Railways Only as a Last Resort, It Is Announced After Session.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—In a statement issued today Fairfax Harrison, Chairman of the Railroads War Board, pointed out that the congestion on the railways due to war demands was largely confined to the East, and made the point that this congestion was traceable in great measure to unrestricted extension of the expedient of preference freight. Mr. Harrison's statement follows:

"The measures which the Railroads' War Board has adopted to improve transportation conditions in Eastern territory apparently have given many persons an erroneous impression regarding the transportation situation in the country as a whole.

"Reports from the West show that there is no serious congestion in that territory, and that the railroads are handling the traffic in as satisfactory a manner as could be expected in view of its very large volume. They are not able to furnish all the cars for which shippers ask, but this is largely due to the detention of cars in Eastern territory, owing to the congestion there, which special measures have been adopted to relieve.

"In the Southeast the railways, without serious trouble or delays, are handling the heaviest business ever known in that territory. They could handle a still larger business, and our committee anticipates that the Government authorities will adopt the recommendation it has made for 'immediate measures to transfer movement of foodstuffs and other export material to South Atlantic ports to as large a degree as compatible with the public interest' as one important means of relieving the congestion in the East.

"Our further investigation of industries in the East emphasizes the fact that the congestion in that territory has been to a great extent brought about by the excessive use of preference orders for freight being handled for the Government or for concerns directly or indirectly engaged in work on Government contracts. The condition referred to is not due to priority orders issued by the Government Priority Director, Judge Lovett, but to routine preference orders issued by many representatives of the various Government departments.

"The number of these routine preference orders has become so large that on some of the Eastern railways they are being applied to the greater part of the freight. The attempt to give expedited movement to an excessive amount of freight has increased congestion in yards by causing a large increase in switching movements.

"A constant flow of traffic concurrently produces the best transportation results. We are, therefore, emphasizing to representatives of the Government the desirability of reducing the number of preference orders, which, by causing attempts to give expedited movement to so large a volume of traffic, are slowing down the movement of all traffic and thereby defeating the very object sought. We are assured of the co-operation of representatives of the Government as respects this matter."

Discussed at Cabinet Meeting.

The pooling arrangement proposed by the Railroads' War Board continues a subject of intense interest and animated discussion. Railroad managers studying the acute transportation situation growing out of the congestion arising from the enormous war business say that the problem cannot be solved by a mere pooling of equipment. They hold that more radical reforms than those thus far discussed by the Railroads' War Board must be enforced.

The railroad problem was discussed at length at today's Cabinet meeting. Afterward it was said that Government operation of railroads during the war would be attempted only if it became certain that the roads themselves were unable to deal with the difficulties confronting them.

The general belief among Administration officials is that the pooling plan about to be inaugurated by the roads should have a thorough try-out and that if it fails the Government then should take a hand. There is no concealment, however, of some doubt that any pooling plan will work as well as it might so long as each road is compelled to concern itself with its individual profits.

Since railroad congestion and coal distribution are linked so closely, officials are watching a movement toward the pooling of coal shipments in the Middle West. If the plan works well, it will be extended, with Government encouragement, to other districts. Government requisitioning of coal and a general Government coal pool are considered likely next year. At present there is a disposition to let contracts run out before a Government pool is formed.

The railroad congestion is heavier each week. The roads are approaching a situation which will mean that they must place an embargo on non-essential freight or fail to furnish adequate service to the Government. The situation will be placed before President Wilson this week by a Cabinet member. The railroad managers hope the President will exert his influence with Congress for remedial legislation along broad and revolutionary lines. Such legislation is proposed for the war period only.

In the meantime the seven railroad Presidents and Vice Presidents appointed to consider the pooling of facilities will do what they can to alleviate the situation. As the next step a pooling of earnings is suggested. This can be effected only by the amending of the Anti-Pooling act. If the pooling should be carried to its logical conclusion the roads could be run by a single board.

Government officials and railroad managers cannot see that the situation would be bettered by Government ownership or Government control. The Presidents of all the railroads in the Eastern territory are willing to adopt any possible plan presented by the Government to relieve the congestion. The War Board, which began its work here long before war was declared against Germany, has thus far accepted every plan originating with the Government.

President Wilson will be asked to consider the advisability of authorizing a list of non-essential freight. England and France adopted this plan, along with a 50 per cent. increase in passenger rates. This Government has hesitated to forbid the transportation of specified commodities because of the great losses it would entail upon industry and labor.

Several days ago the Railroads' War Board furnished to Judge Lovett, Director of Priority, and Dr. Garfield, Fuel Administrator, at their request, a list of 450 commodities whose transportation they declared could be dispensed with without any considerable inconvenience to the public; also a list of seventy-five other commodities which might be embargoed, but at the cost of inconvenience. Judge Lovett and Dr. Garfield have not as yet acted upon the proposal. Judge Lovett, while admitting the necessity of an embargo on non-essentials, said he would take no action until all the industries affected had been heard.

"We have no doubt, if non-essential commodities are eliminated," said Fairfax Harrison, "that the railways can transport all the commodities required by the Government in carrying on the war and by the people for their subsistence and comfort."

Further curtailment of passenger service is to be attempted. It is understood that the program includes consolidation of through passenger service, eliminating trains not well patronized. Special trains will not be run on branch roads, and passenger service will be reduced.

Proposes $100,000,000 to Buy Cars.

Senator Reed of Missouri, who appeared at the capital today, said he would advocate the passage of a bill at the next session of Congress to appropriate $100,000,000 for the purchase by the Government of freight cars to relieve the existing shortage.

"From all I have heard, the country is threatened with a food shortage unless cars are available to move food products," he said. "The railroads say they cannot supply the cars. At the last session of Congress Senator Hoke Smith offered a bill to provide $20,000,000 for the purchase of freight cars by the Government, but it was killed. If it had gone through, it is likely that the menace of today would not be so aggravated.

"There may be a question as to the ability of the Government to purchase all the needed cars now. It would entail building new cars, and it is hard to tell what the conditions might be in the car factories, owing to other demands of the war. But the Government ought to have the authority to do it. Sooner or later it will have to build the cars if the people are to get an adequate food supply."

No Reduction on Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 27.—The Pennsylvania Railroad will not reduce its passenger service unless a limitation is placed on the traffic as a war measure, according to a statement issued tonight by Samuel Rea, President of the company.

"Less passenger train service on the Eastern railroads, and especially on the Pennsylvania system, would be very desirable, but, until the situation develops further, and some limitation is placed on the traffic as a war measure, it will be difficult to accomplish," says the statement. "Any traveler on this system can see for himself on day or night trains the extraordinary increase in the passenger travel, including the heavy family travel to and from camps, and to and from Washington on Government business. I doubt whether slower and longer trains of coaches carrying full loads would reduce the number of cars and trains or materially relieve the tracks and terminals. Therefore, at this time I can see no other course than to continue meeting the abnormal demand for passenger transportation to the best of our ability."

APPEALS TO BRITONS HERE.

No Escape from War Duty, General White Says.

"British and Canadian residents in the United States cannot escape their duty while their fellow-citizens in Great Britain or Canada are being drafted for service, and their neighbors in the United States who are citizens are being drafted here," said Brig. Gen. W. A. White, head of the British-Canadian Recruiting Mission, yesterday. "The mission has established recruiting depots all through the country to give Britishers and Canadians an opportunity to volunteer for service through these depots. Some 13,000 men have been enlisted and sent forward to the British and Canadian Armies."

Regarding the negotiations between Great Britain and the United States relative to the drafting of Britons and Canadians, General White explained that among the ten million men who registered for service in response to the President's call there were many Britons and Canadians who registered under their nationalities and as such are not subject to draft. In Great Britain and Canada there are also Americans of military age. The proposed conventions between the two countries will provide the regulations under which these men may be drafted for service in the countries of their residence by the Governments to which they owe allegiance.

"Pending the completion of the conventions, which it is expected Secretary Lansing will submit to Congress," he said, "a very active campaign is to be carried on all over the United States through the British and Canadian Recruiting Mission. This will give all Britons and Canadians an opportunity to volunteer for service instead of waiting to be drafted. The mission now has the names and addresses of the Britons and Canadians registered in the United States, and has made a special written appeal to them to come forward and offer their services."

JOHN W. FOSTER'S ESTATE.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—John W. Foster, former Secretary of State, left an estate valued at about $400,000, according to the petition for the probate of his will, filed today by Robert Lansing and John F. Dulles, the executors. Secretary Lansing is a son-in-law of the deceased, Mr. Dulles is a grandson. Comprised in the estate is realty assessed at $163,358, and personal property "in excess of $200,000."

The beneficiaries of the estate are the widow, Mrs. Mary Parke Foster, and the two daughters, Mrs. Edith Foster Dulles of Auburn, N. Y., and Mrs. Eleanor Foster Lansing. The will, filed several days ago, provides that Secretary Lansing and Mr. Dulles shall hold the entire estate in trust for the benefit of the widow during her life, and at her death shall divide the estate equally between the two daughters.

Why

A USED PACKARD TWIN-SIX

returns you better value—

DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR

HERESY—you exclaim! Not for a minute. Won't it injure our new car business? Not if we know the American buyer. People who want new cars buy new cars. In times like the present they are demanding wearing qualities above everything. If a Packard Twin-Six wears so well that its second-hand value is relatively greater than its first value—that, we should say, would be about the strongest possible argument for the new Packard.

THERE is nothing new about this condition. New Packards have never been as good "buys" as Packards with a season or two of use—because the used Packard has exactly the same fundamental quality as the new one. All that's taken out of it is the wear, and the price reduction is altogether out of proportion to that. Why? Because that's the way the market rules. There is no sound reason for its ruling so but the used car buyer is just so much better off because it does.

A USED PACKARD TWIN-SIX is the very best automobile value on this planet. Its motor design is years ahead of the field. Its Packard distinction hasn't depreciated one iota. Its riding qualities are unimpaired. Wear? Why with reasonable care we don't know what its limit is. We have never seen a worn out Packard. When there is enough wear to loosen things up, Packard Service stands ready and able to take up the slack in the least expensive and most efficient way. Upkeep cost? You will be amazed to find how low it is.

A USED PACKARD TWIN-SIX is an investment for a lifetime if you will have it so. If you have but a moderate amount to spend for a motor car and a keen desire to get the worth of every cent it is the car of cars—the only car—for you.
